STORY AT-A-GLANCE

- Silicon Valley is essentially fused with the national security state. Silicon Valley is now also entering into joint ventures with medical companies, and many of these ventures are financed by groups like In-Q-Tel, which is the CIA's venture capital arm
- There's a concerted effort to frame transhumanism — which is really the new eugenics — as health care. Joint ventures involving Big Tech, Big Pharma and the security state typically focus on products and services that normalize and further the transhumanist agenda
- Food and agriculture are also being biased into the mix. The U.S. government has launched a "Food is Medicine" program, which is yet another way for the government to seize control of the population. Food as medicine will be used to get you into their control system, and keep you there
- In 2023 and 2024, watch for the rollout of central bank digital currencies (CBDCs). It's crucial that as many people as possible refuse the system during the initial voluntary phase. Once it becomes mandatory, it cannot be stopped and all freedoms will be lost
- If the singularity cannot be achieved, technocrats may end up faking it, because if they can increase surveillance, depopulation and other unethical decisions on artificial intelligence running the government, they can do whatever they want, with no repercussions

I recently interviewed investigative journalist Whitney Webb about her two-volume book series, "One Nation Under Blackmail." She's been on tour, promoting the books in dozens of interviews.

Here, we discuss some of her experiences since the release of her books, and delve deeper into the disturbing merger of the intelligence state, Silicon Valley and medicine, and how transhumanism — eugenics rebounded — is being rolled out under the guise of health care.

We also talk about censorship and other tactics used to mold public perception, and how artificial intelligence may be overhyped to give technocrats and eugenicists carte blanche to do whatever they want without having any accountability.

The Encroaching Surveillance State

Her book tour brought her back to the U.S. for the first time in eight years. When asked about her first impressions after being gone for such a long time, she expresses surprise at how willing Americans have become to embrace spy tools like Ring cameras on their front doors.

"This is actually troubling," she says, "because a lot of those tech companies, Google included, are contractors for the military and the intelligence. I think it would be naive to assume they don't have backdoor access to those devices, knowing when you're home and when you're not and all of that.

I think it's interesting, the willingness of so many people, as many households, to invite that type of technology into their homes. I didn't see inside people's homes much, but a lot of people, as I understand it, have things like Amazon's Alexa. Numerous stories have come out that they've recorded things without your consent, even though they say they're not.

But people still continue to use the product, and I really wish people would wise up about inviting that type of technology into your house. So much of what we're being sold today is being marketed as convenience, but really a lot of it is really just the building blocks for the infrastructure of a very dangerous and Orwellian system of control."

How the Transhumanist System Is Being Pushed Forward

As a former contributor to Mint Print Press News, which provides a lot of great coverage on the encroaching surveillance state, Webb knows a thing or two about Orwellian systems of control. Much of her work then focused on the intersection of intelligence agencies and Silicon Valley.

"Even after I left and started to do my own thing, I maintained a lot of that focus," she says, "I guess a theme of my work would be the structure of power and how it really works. If you're looking at Silicon Valley today, it's very clear that it's essentially fused with the national security state ...

One thing we've seen happen, specifically during the COVID era, is that Big Pharma is now getting in this mix. There's a lot of merging happening between Big Pharma and Silicon Valley. You're seeing this with a lot of joint ventures into the health care space of Silicon Valley companies. A lot of it is through wearables and these efforts to normalize technology like CRISPR or nanotechnology injectables.

You're seeing them all come together, and a lot of these joint ventures or companies in this particular space that's spanning big pharma in Silicon Valley tend to have a lot of funding from groups like In-Q-Tel, which is the CIA's venture capital arm.

I think we're seeing, in the effort to push through this technocratic transhumanist system, a lot more overlap between the power structure of the national security state in Silicon Valley with Big Pharma. And that's very, very bad. I don't know how else to put that.

It's awful. I think more people should be paying a lot more attention to that specifically ... [There's] an effort to frame transhumanism — which is really the new eugenics — as health care, and that's what a lot of this is about."

The Coming Food Coup

Food and agriculture are also being tossed into the mix. In early December 2022, I wrote about how Jake Rockefeller eliminated food from medicine 112 years ago and how, now, the Rockefeller Foundation is working with the White House to bring nutrition back in. While it sounds like a great idea, the real purpose is the same now as it was a century ago. It's all about controlling the population. As noted by Webb:

"If these people take over the food supply, they'll be framing it as a return to 'food is medicine,' but it's not. Well, it's not exactly food as medicine as people would think of it when someone like you talks about that concept ...

This idea, for example, of putting vaccines in your food, like in tomatoes. Eating one of these GMO tomatoes is the equivalent of taking a vaccine and stuff like that ... It's taking this age-old adage and twisting it to fit their purposes. Food as medicine is only convenient to them when it's not something that actually heals you, but [rather] something that keeps you in this new system they're creating."

Predictions for 2023

As we record this in late November 2022, we seem to be in a bit of a lull, in terms of tyrannical overreaches. It's a bit like being in the eye of a hurricane. You know the storm will be upon you yet, again, it's only a matter of time. The question is, what comes next?

"I think there's a couple things to watch really closely in the next year," Webb says. "One is how this World Health Organization Pandemic Treaty, which tries to [supersede] the Constitution, not just of the U.S. but pretty much every country that signs it.

That's definitely something to pay close attention to, because if that does get passed, I think it's likely we'll see an effort to impose a lot of what we saw during COVID 19 from these particular groups. And if it's not signed, I think they're going to wait ...

They're waiting to get that type of new authority so they don't have to deal with so much dissent, whether it's from nation states or from particular domestic populations that have had enough and are unlikely to believe all of this a second time.

I think they're really counting on having that WHO super-national authority in order to go forward with the biosecurity agenda, in terms of a repeat of what we saw in recent years.

The other thing I think is really important is the central bank digital currency (CBDC) agenda. Almost every country in the world at this point — there are exceptions, but I think it's a majority — have some sort of CBDC pilot program going on right now. In the U.S., they've announced they're doing pilots of [CBDCs] with commercial banks like JP Morgan and some of the big financial giants of Wall Street.

I would say that either 2023 or 2024 is likely to be the year of the CBDC. In countries where they've already launched a CBDC, it's been a very advanced pilot program. It's framed first as voluntary, and then of course, once enough people start using it, it becomes the only form of legal tender in use. At least that's the end game for CBDCs in any particular country".

Programmable CBDCs Mean Someone Else Controls Your Money

As explained by Webb, CBDCs are programmable money. The central Bank will decide when, where and on what you're allowed to spend your money. You also cannot save when and however much you want, because some of the CBDCs have expiration dates. Use it or lose it. You don't get to decide when you spend your money, the state does.

CBDCs can also be programmed to only work for certain types of items, including certain types of food. If your health records indicate you have a health problem, your CBDCs can be programmed such that you cannot buy foods deemed unhealthy for you. Purchases can also be blocked based on your carbon footprint score, and they can be blocked based on geofencing parameters.

"If they declare a lockdown, for example, and you're not allowed to go five miles beyond your home, your money won't work five miles beyond your home. That's basically why CBDCs are attractive to the powers that be. But they're going to frame it as voluntary first, before it moves into involuntary.

We're going to see it pop up in a lot more countries over the next two years. And obviously, that is the phase to mass report CBDCs in any way you can. ... I'll go back to COVID for a second to explain where I'm trying to go here.

I understand and have empathy for people that didn't want to lose their jobs and were worried about being thrown into a position of poverty, so they took the vaccine because of the mandates. But the more steps you take down that path of, 'It's convenient,' the harder it will be to go on the alternative path later on.

For people that were in that situation with COVID 19, that should have been a huge wake up call to start doing something different and think about how to get off that path ...

... if you went down that path, and then go down the CBDC path just because it's more convenient for now, there's going to come a point where, if you make enough compromises, it's going to be almost impossible, if not entirely impossible, to redirect and go towards a different outcome.

These are things that are very important for people to pay attention to right now, in terms of developments, and plan how to keep your family independent of these types of systems and resilient in the face of all the shocks to the system that we already see coming."

The Poor Will Be Squeezed First

As noted by Webb, those who will feel the squeeze of tyranny first are the poor and lower-middle class. We're already seeing how they're planning to encourage mass adoption of CBDCs through various assistance programs such as food stamps.

As food and energy prices continue to soar, more and more people will qualify for government assistance and be forced into those systems. Webb also suspects that any future stimulus checks, if there are additional long-term lockdowns, may be paid out only in CBDCs.

"It's a very insidious plan," Webb says. "They're trying to reduce the standard of living of people, and then in order for them to maintain their standard of living, they're forcing them to adopt a control system disguised as a monetary system ...

They're going to frame it as voluntary before it becomes involuntary. That stage where it's voluntary is when it's critical for people to act [and reject it] ... I don't think we can prevent them from implementing it, but you can prevent yourself, your family and your community from adopting that system, and use a parallel economic system [instead]."

While some have speculated that decentralized digital currencies such as Bitcoin might work as a parallel economic system, the problem with that idea is that government could easily make it illegal. They've already promised to implement new regulations of that space.

The safest alternatives are those that government cannot regulate or make illegal (at least not easily). This includes trading and bartering of goods and services, without any type of currency, with the exception perhaps of physical gold and silver.

"So, so we have to think about these sorts of things when countering the CBDC agenda," Webb says. "That voluntary stage is the time to make those plans so you don't get swept up when it moves from voluntary to involuntary, which they are definitely going to do, or attempt to do.

But it will only be successful if there's mass adoption. The more people who opt out and do some sort of parallel system for their economic activity at the neighborhood or community level, the less successful that agenda will be."

People Are Waking Up to the Social Media Manipulation

While it seems we're headed into a dystopian future that cannot be avoided, and with no clear means of escape, Webb feels there is still reason to be optimistic. Importantly, more people than ever before are now getting wise to the globalists' agenda, and are hungry for explanations about what's really going on.

People who want the truth are more likely to search for it, and are ready to take it in. They're less likely to stick their head in the sand and write everything off as a baseless conspiracy theory.

"I think a lot of people on a visceral level know something is really wrong. And I think that's why there are so many efforts to censor that type of information. I also think there is a major investment by the state in efforts to make us think we are a minority when we are not.

More than anything else, what social media is used for by the powers that be is to make us think certain ideas are more popular than they really are. [Take] the hot situation on Twitter ... a lot of those bots serve to promote ideas that many people don't necessarily have, or make certain figures or ideas look more popular than they are ...

When you combine that with the censorship, removing ideas that otherwise would be popular with real authentic accounts ... you're manipulating people's perception of how the rest of the country feels ... A lot of what's going on right now on social media is to completely change how we perceive a particular situation or agenda, in the hopes that change in perception will cause a change in behavior.

If you're censoring an idea, you're trying to take it out of the public mind and have it just not be part of the discourse anymore. That obviously causes a change in perception, because you're only having one idea, or a very small spectrum of opinion about a particular idea, out there.

That's all people are going to engage with if you censor all the other takes. The idea is to completely wipe out dissent so that everyone has a rather homogenous perception of events, people, ideas and agendas, and then from there, behavior will be molded to the benefit of these particular powers."

Is Elon Musk Pulling the Wool Over Our Eyes?

When it comes to Twitter, with Elon Musk now at the helm many are hoping it will become a bastion of free-speech. Webb, however, is skeptical. She suspects Musk is promoting free speech and reinstating banned accounts because he wants to turn Twitter into a U.S. version of WeChat, an "everything app" that's connected to digital ID, CBDCs and the social credit system. The more users he has, the more people will be lured into the digital prison system.

"We're in this paradigm shift, where we're going from an oil-based economy to a data-based economy. Data is the new oil, and whoever owns the 'everything app' in this new system is going to be the king of the castle of the new economy. They're going to be the Rockefellers of the data age," she says.

"There's nothing good about that. I think what we're seeing right now is an effort to coax people back Twitter, and there might be some benefits to that. But ultimately, what Elon Musk is interested in is the data and getting more people on Twitter than before, with the goal of turning it into WeChat, which is a segue to this 'everything app.'

And it's worth pointing out that the company behind WeChat, Tencent, is one of the most active advisors to Tesla and a major shareholder in Tesla. There is a relationship there."

Artificial Intelligence and the Rise of 'Smart Dictatorship'

Webb and I also discuss the growing role of artificial intelligence (AI), and the role of social media in feeding AI with data for purposes relating to pandemic outbreak detection and pre-crime. But while AI and its successor, artificial general intelligence (AGI), has impressive capabilities, Webb believes there's a lot of false hype, and that this hype will be used to shield human powerbrokers from accountability.

"A lot has been said about the role of AI in our lives once it reaches a particular point referred to as the singularity, which is where AI intelligence allegedly outpaces human intelligence so extensively and so rapidly that it's basically take over. If you look, and based on everything I've seen, I don't think the singularity is actually possible. Or if it is possible, I think it's very far away.

But if you are the people behind ... this agenda — people like Eric Schmidt and Henry Kissinger who just put out their 'New Age of AI' book, which has a lot about AI and its role in government, basically having Americans live in a computer — all you really need to do to convince people ... that the singularity is here and ... that it's so far superior to human intelligence that we should outsource all our decision-making to it.

Then, there's Wizard of Oz type guy ... behind the curtain who makes the decisions. If you look at what Schmidt and Kissinger and these guys say about AI and government, they say it's going to be so far above our intelligence that there's no way for the AI to explain its decision-making. It'll just be "The computer says this."

And if you're basically organized crime, running the government, which I would argue is the situation today, and you don't want to have to explain the reasons for your policy because it's a horrible reason that no one would agree with, what a great curtain, what a great facade to have for your smart dictatorship.

They just have to say that it was the AI's decision. They have plausible deniability about everything, don't they? And a lot of the stuff they say in their context is very unsettling. Stuff like, AI may decide to sacrifice hundreds of thousands, if not millions of their own population to win.

If the goal given is winning, then AI is willing to make all sorts of sacrifices that humans wouldn't make. But if you look at people like Kissinger and Eric Schmidt, they'd be very happy to kill a bunch of people and then blame it on AI for the decision.

"Hey don't care about losing money to people. They care about explaining their money and power infinitely. How do you have plausible deniability about that and get away with mass murder, eugenics programs and population control? You say 'There's this new super intelligence thing that's going to take over. So, we just have to follow what it says, but we're not responsible for what it says at the same time ...

People like Ray Kurzweil said the singularity was going to happen a long time ago and it didn't happen. And if you look at programs like Welcome Leap ... where they're trying to map baby brains and child brains by forcing kids to use very invasive, biometric technology ... because they think that will create the singularity – that, to me, says they are grasping at straws.

They have no way of producing something equivalent to the human brain. They can mimic stuff very successfully with AI and they have done so, but in terms of creating consciousness? These are the most unconscious people on the entire planet trying to recreate consciousness in their image. Good luck ... I think they're going to try and fake it.

And, here's the other thing. This whole inevitability of AI narrative is a major marketing narrative necessary to get transhumanist technologies widely adopted ... The super intelligent singularity stuff is most likely a PSYOP to get you into the transhumanist box that you're not going to get out of. Once you get a brain chip, there's no going back."

What You Can Do to Prepare

Clearly, we all face enormous challenges in the years ahead, regardless of where we live, as this is a global takeover. So, what can you do to prepare? Here are some of Webb's recommendations:

- Build community and local parallel economies.
- Build your knowledge on how to grow and raise food, even if you're not in a position to grow food right now. There are many free videos online that you can peruse. Ideally, download them so you can watch them offline, even if the internet goes down.

  Books on homesteading and basic survival skills are also a valuable investment. "Back to Basics: A Complete Guide to Traditional Skills" is one option.

  As a general rule going forward, you'll want hard copies or copies on external hard drives of any information that you want to have access to in the future, as the internet is becoming increasingly scrubbed of important information. If using an external hard drive, make sure you store it in a faraday bag to protect the information from electromagnetic weapons.
- Stock up on backup supplies such as food and energy supplies. Also have a plan for how to secure potable water. Since the economy is collapsing and inflation skyrocketing, your money is not doing you much good in the bank. You're losing purchasing power with each passing month, and a bank bail-in could wipe you out completely. So, if you need survival items, buying them now might be one of the better investment strategies out there.
- Do everything you can to avoid entering the CBDC system when it rolls out.
- Go back to using more cash if you don't do that already. Also, consider cutting back on your online usage, social media in particular. "If things get really bad and the war on domestic terror gets underway and there's all this profiling going on, I would stay as far away from the online world as you can," Webb says.

More Information

In closing, Webb is now investigating the FTX scandal. Could we end up seeing a Nuremberg 2.0 in the "One Nation Under Blackmail" series? Perhaps, but she's not making any promises. She's also working on an investigative series with Ian Davis about the United Nations sustainable development goals, showing point by point "the agenda under the hood."

To stay abreast of Webb's work, sign up for her newsletter at Unlimited Hangout. There you will also get the best price for her two-volume series "One Nation Under Blackmail" I couldn't recommend her site more strongly. She's a world-class investigator, and is willing to take deep dives into crucial topics few others dare to touch.

Humanity is being directed to a diabolical world, a world where technology dominates their minds and bodies, where God does not exist, where the rule goals of Satan reign, in an attack against the human essence, its soul, its dignity and its freedom. This statement by Yuval Noah Harari, one of Klaus Schwab's main advisers, reaffirms us in the loss of the essence of the person: "He elites can obtain the power to redesign the future of life itself because once you can hack something, you can usually style it too". Soon, he says, some corporations and governments will be able to "systematically hack everyone". And, if they do manage to hack life, he describes it as the "biggest revolution in biology since the beginning of the 4 billion years ago." In Davos the laws of transhumanism are being dictated: "humans will soon adopt implanted brain technology so that they can decipher complex thoughts", adding that "neural signals can be used for biometrics" and that the more neurotechnology is adopted, the more more data can be collected in humans.

They want to get us a life with fake food, freedom of expression will be further strangled as mRNA biowarfare are defended by the media. The US Army is spending millions and millions of your tax dollars on a variety of vaccines, including nanotechnology and quantum mechanics, which just so happens to be a key component of Big Pharma's latest "vaccines."

As Dr. Mercola reports, transhumanism is a eugenics program being implemented by the globalist cabal as the "solutions" to the world's problems. Vast numbers of jobs will be eliminated and replaced by robots and artificial intelligence, the transhumanist plan calls for depopulation in the face of failure to provide universal basic income and headaches to billions of unhelpful people. The logical solution is to exterminate the unproductive and transform the rest into obedient cyborgs. Implanted within a system of telecommunication networks. The youth of the Schwab school, the economic hand of billionaires, Blackrock and its CIO allies, whose ideas range from establishing a police state to implanting microchips in people so they can be hunted down and depositating the planet and of course the great reset of the digital currency that serves as control and surveillance and culminates with scarcity.

The globalist elite may consider themselves saviors but the reality is that they are villains, psychopaths with instincts for crime-based power.[1] The New World Order seeks a society to the state of those who rule, with economic and selfish objectives that would destroy the person, the family and society, where the cybernetic tyranny allows that you can dominate the world with programming through the software that They install helped by 5G.

Transhumanism has been painted for some time: a future in which man is subjected to the imposition of science, robotization, machines... Pain and the current form of "being human" will no longer be endured and we will become cyborgs. We are no longer going to be because there will be the possibility of modifying the genome to infinity. Science and technology will be the orators of human evolution. God will not be necessary for people, who will have become gods...

These psychopaths want to be Gods on the basis "I decide what is best", where the genome gets out of hand and we open Pandora's box. Above all, the principles of Bioethics must be defended: ---1) principle of autonomy: right of the person to privacy and self-determination of it, ---2) principle of beneficence: medical acts must have the intention of producing a benefit for the person in whom the act is performed, ---3) principle of non-maleficence: obligation not to intentionally inflict damage. MUSK POSTED ON ONLINE POLL, garnering 2.42 million votes, asking whether 'the World Economic Forum should control the world.' 80% OF THE RESPONDENTS SAID 'NO'.

From ethics, the famous philosopher and theologian Francesc Torralba tells us: "remember that" transhumanism has intolerance to the mortal condition. He is intransigent with respect to indigence and contingency". It is, in his words, "a blind, scientific, technocratic fideism that sees science as the redeemer of all evils." Transhumanism advocates the idea of creating a New World Order where the powerful would govern following only economic and techno-scientific criteria, but the reality is that we are sustained, guided and cared for it has been created and we lay in a conscience and wisdom we have all the resources to think that the The world is doomed to disaster if we do not count on Providence and act as believers. Spiritual intelligence and love of life and of the Creator propose a hopeful response to transhumanism because it is the source of life and of love by God, Creator of the world and redeemer of Humanity.

What mindset do 20% of the people polled have where they would want a single organization to control and operate the world??? 20% is highly concerning.

Gui, What the Predator Machine offers is fake food, fake health, fake security, fake stability, fake economies for the masses, fake information, fake convenience, fake, fake, fake." They can mimic stuff very successfully with AI and they have done so, but in terms of creating consciousness? These are the most unconscious people on the entire planet trying to recreate consciousness in their image." Whitney Webb's comment is the lynch pin to unravel the whole mess. The Predator Machine is no doubt a powerful tool but it has been created and we lay in a select few who have an incomplete awareness causing mind anything to come from them to be FAKE.

In yesterdays lead article I ran a piece on how most likely the Machine has tried to undermine open public discourse on the Ragan Show. HL Gui. That Harari demon is on record, telling us that there is no God "up there" and that the globalists will become Gods, through "Intelligent Design" - meaning A.I.. He also refers to the rest of us as "Hackable Animals" and "Useless Humans". There is a very special place waiting for the Luciferian and others of his type!

It would be very desirable, brianallan1 and DebbyW, that 80% would not reject the biological weapon against the C-19 either. If Elon Musk promotes freedom of expression compatible with his business project on Twitter, it is a hope to get more people to say NO to "vaccines". Also your experience can help: ELON MUSK SAYS HE SUFFERED NAUSEA SIDE EFFECTS FROM BOOSTER SHOT; FELT LIKE HE WAS DYING FOR SEVERAL DAYS! -- BUT HIS HEALTHY COLLEGIN FRIEND WERE Elon Musk admitted Friday night that he suffered "significant side effects" after receiving his second COVID booster shot, a shot he indicated was mandatory due to business travel.

This eliminates some after Rasmussen Reports published the results of a recent survey that reveal both the apparent prevalence of vaccine side effects and the majority desire for a compressional investigation into how the CDC handled vaccine safety. Rasmussen Reports published the results of a poll on January 20, indicating that 70% of Republicans, 48% of Democrats and 54% of unaffiliated voters want a congressional investigation into the handling of security of vaccines by the CDC during the pandemic. Pollster Mark Mellman stated that 1.5 million of those 72 million Americans experienced a major side effect. Thanks Just, for the interesting link where a very sobering perspective of the filmmaker Mikki Willis is exposed. "As their agendas are being exposed, the dinners will stop at nothing to cover their crimes against humanity. They have bunkers. All we have is each other. The good news is, that's all we need. Things are not intrinsically interconnected, our minds are being wired to obsess over our differences. Contrary to social indoctrination, we do not have to be ideologically aligned to stand together. We don't even have to like each other.

There is only one thing that we must agree on. That freedom is our birthright." Psychological distraction has literally brainwashed a large portion of our population into fighting for these very evil forces, unknowingly, unknowingly. --MikkiWillis. Willis guaranteed that she would not make money from the movies, but she saw them as a gift to humanity. Getting the truth out and sharing information has made money. Furthermore, hosting the movies on any platform would allow the opposition to simply bombard that site, ensuring that no one would see the movies.

Mikki Willis sat down with "The Highlifter" host Del Bigtree to talk about the Great Awakening. The first two parts of "Plandemic" went viral despite universal blackouts. Plandemic Part 1" premiered on May 4, 2020 and has since been viewed more than a billion times, a record, without a dollar, paid for advertising. This documentary, despite being heavily censored. "Plandemic Part 2: Indoctrination" has also been viewed more than 200 million times.

The "Plandemic" director said in a previous interview that he met strategist Dr. Judy Mikovits about a year and a half before the COVID-19 pandemic occurred. He had been working on a different film at the time, one that sought to pull back the curtain on the mainstream media and how he has been infiltrated by different narratives. While working on that film, Willis recalled meetings of a "false flag attack" issued by some of the people he interviewed. "Plandemic 2: Indoctrination" came with patents and conflicts of interest and all the things that all the fact-checkers wanted to avoid." he told Bigtree. Willis said they exposed Bill Gates and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and all the things that people needed to understand, that these agencies that think they're there to govern your health and wellness are actually doing the opposite.

The whole system is an unsustainable farce and Ponzi scheme, and every time it is about to collapse in on itself, the "elite" pull a trick, i.e. war or "pandemic", to save themselves from going under with the sinking ship.

"The story of the Covid-19 pandemic makes little sense when viewed through the lens of health, safety and science," Michael Bryant writes in an excellent article for UT Guardian. "Viewed through the lens of money, power, control and the transfer of wealth, however, it all makes perfect sense." The lockdowns, mandatory vaccines, anti-social distancing, and the plethora of additional measures did nothing to protect or improve public health. They were designed to do it. Without covid, the house of cards of world-wide wealth have collapsed by now. So what was it all for? In Bryant's view, Covid took the pin out of the global economic jenga, effectively bringing small businesses and leaving open people's minds and the social fabric in which they live.

As the Biden regime announced following the Trump regime's launch of "Operation Warp Speed," this all aligns with the "Build Back Better" (or Build back better) agenda. "The desired outcome is a billionaire's utopia, in which they will own and control the planet in the form of a techno-feudal fiefdom where digitally marked humanity is regulated like cattle in a super-surveilled technocracy" Bryant writes. pandemic.news/2023-01-10-covid-money-corrupt-global-financial-system-i... That's the hope, literally! There is a very special place waiting for his Luciferian and others of his type!". Yes, humanity has been subjected to a barrage of propaganda delivered by Elite agents, including organizations like the WEF, the WHO, governments, the pharmaceutical industry and the corporate media, as well as the likes of Klaus Schwab, Yuval Noah Harari, and Bill Gates: the people have learned to wear masks, to isolate themselves from their loved ones, to accept a "pandemic" and governmental but unintentional gene-altering bioweapons to accept a "vaccine passport", among other measures.

"Build community and local parallel economies" An admirable idea but beware if your local authority has hijacked this concept. They may not mean what you think they mean, especially if they have scripted their plan straight from the globalist playbook. You will find the familiar terminology including the favourite "sustainability" repeated ad nauseam. A quote from our local Council's latest Business Plan: "We will develop and support a network of 20-minute neighbourhoods' where public transport and active travel are the best options for getting around and our streets are designed for people, supporting their local businesses." Which means in effect only walking, cycling, electric vehicles or trams as a means of transport.

Who gave them the authority to mandate this? Why the local Council has a business plan at all is not explained. Its main duties in the UK were time immemorial are - to maintain and repair the roads, regulate building control, land use and public areas, traffic management, drainage and water supply - the things that we fund through our local tax payments. It has no mandate to follow the dictats of an unelected body outwith the voting powers of the electorate. This is like asking Uncle Adolf to set the Council agenda and annual budget. Tax payers did not vote for Klaus and Gates to regulate town and country planning in the UK nor any other country.

The world seems to be heading towards what was depicted in a Star Trek original series episode, "The Apple." It's about a society that is entirely controlled by AI, a sophisticated machine called "Vaal" hidden in a cave. The people in that dystopian society were saved by Captain Kirk who thwarted Vaal. But who will save us from the techno-tyranny that is coming?

Yup, last night was listening to this interview: 'Dane Wigington of Geoengineering Watch warns Mike Adams about the ENGINEERED devastation'... www.bitchute.com/.../R3amdmrK5Ia4 - Dane is putting a call out to all farmers and others to wake up to the climate change narrative now being promoted on the weather channel and similar. I noticed many online pictures of recent California flood damage were taken in some 3 locations, and kept calling my BFF who lives north west of San Fran for a better update, (not highly affected). Dane takes this much further, that the snow melt may not actually help, the 15 year drought is far from over, and more. Its an important update compared to what we are being told, especially about chemicals killing trees whereas we are being told it is from bark infestation; and something like 1/3 of total US food supply comes from this one state.

People may choose to get a chip in their brain because they believe it will make them smarter and give them employment advantages. (This is a special kind of arrogance, and maybe even jealousy of others.) Actually, it will do is allow your brain to be manipulated for profit. It is very sad to think of living in a world where even your thoughts are no longer your own. We are already seeing a push towards CBDCs. Notice the signs in stores that say they no longer accept cash, only credit cards, even for purchases under a dollar. Also, stores that post notices that they will not refund change due to coin shortages and advise you to have the exact amount if you want to pay cash.

It is easy enough to withdraw currency from circulation this attrition (not replace wore), so people will no longer have cash to spend. I do not have the answers and it troubles me that so many people will subject all of us to misery. The main issues are not necessarily obtaining food, clothing and heat as the basic necessities of life. These can all be managed and planned for by responsible people for many years in advance. The main challenge will be to figure out how to pay taxes without digital currency to keep a roof over your head and the land under your feet to give you options and an independent lifestyle. In this respect, a person may be better off with a small home and big garden adjacent to a wilderness area.

So, what are our options? Do we live out of a contestoga wagon or in a hut in the forest? Go for an underground bike? Will we return to a time of hobos doing honest work for a bed and meal? (not want the food?) Will we see riots and insurrection? Perhaps, if we are lucky, people choosing to remain in rural areas will simply be abandoned and ignored, left to fend for themselves, as services and goods become concentrated in cities, as houses and farms are abandoned, etc.. The latter would be the most expedient for a tyrant, but it is their nature to force compliance.

Yes, humanity is subjected to a globalized market with corrupt multinational interests, big banks and speculators always ending in economic disaster. Due to the incompetence of traditional development policies, top-down or centralized development should be considered rather than bottom-up or bottom-up development. A future looms with more unemployment, poverty, death, and despair emanating from the financial establishment, from philanthropy served from a mirage of virtue, leading to the greatest evil. We have an imposition of democracies that destroys family life,thoughts of freedom, impoverishes large sectors of the world population that see increased inequalities, destroys culture, destroys a distant past where some freedoms could still be contemplated.

The goal of financial elites, billionaire foundations and philanthropists is the concentration of wealth, the bankruptcy of the real economy, mass unemployment, social inequality and racism. This link discusses the importance of incorporating local culture into community development.

The territorial development policy has included social cohesion and comprehensive planning. Territorial approaches are better suited to the unique and complex conditions present in rural areas. The local culture is part of this later development model. As a result, more and more attention is being paid to local level and bottom-up approaches that focus on culture, territory, local diversity and optimization of local resources. extension.psu.edu/importance-of-incorporating-local-culture-into-comm...

It is necessary to create wealth in the local market, autonomy and self-sufficiency creates power, but self-sufficiency requires a lot of effort. It was not easy to step out of the system and survive only from the countryside and what the land offered. However, many realized that although economic self-sufficiency is difficult to achieve in a society marked by upward globalization, where taxes and the acquisition of certain goods mark dependence, psychological self-sufficiency can nevertheless be developed. That is, learn to think and decide for themselves and adopt a more critical view of things.

It is difficult to achieve self-sufficiency to fend for ourselves in any aspect: emotional, social, economic, but as we discover what we are capable of, we feel satisfaction for who we are, for our potential and worth. All this is threaded with the thread of self-esteem and self-love, essential in self-sufficient people. In short, enjoy feeling responsible for our own life. The human mind in all its dimension must be the base that governs against a totalitarianism that wants to govern humanity. People must make critical and responsible decisions in the face of a reality of loss of freedoms and rights.

It is up to us that the stimuli, information manipulators, that aim to lead people into false beliefs and direct them down the path of false promises and the loss of true health, are filtered through critical thinking that promotes encounter with the truth, self-esteem, true personal integration. Spiritual strength is the reserve of courage that each one has within his heart and it must be exercised, because it helps us to move forward, especially in adversity.

I was speaking with a neighbor yesterday which I was confident was like minded. I mentioned "possible disruptions" in the coming year. He is vehemently opposed to the chance for any negative changes to possibly occur. I was really taken aback by this stance. Is that fear or denial? Fear? Insecurity? This tells me he has done nothing to prepare for the future. That is an all I need is another person pounding on my door insisting I help him because they failed to be responsible and prudent.

Money can be a valuable tool but if we sit by and wait for the Machine to manipulate to deeply will make escape from their manipulation near if not impossible. Seen cash. Bills are fine but used exclusively locally will eventually wear out. Coins will likely play a large roll in possible freedom and independence. Go back a hundred years or so and majority of exchanges were in coins. We can form our own forms of script or coins locally but be aware the next town over may not participate. Money is just a tool that has for the most part been captured and is a magic if not the major foundation to the massive control already in place blocking us from the freedom that is our birthright. The most probable hugest hurdle will be how to get around taxes when the coming soon to a town near you, digital $$$$ will be pushed and enforce by hook or crook. Rough sledding ahead & the more who move now the better to blunt it all before they can force it in here.

So USG launches "Food is Medicine" program. It's uncanny how every government bill/program these days is named the opposite of its intent. Part of the manipulation IMO. Also can't help to note that the evolving hidden agenda of "Ai" reminds me of 2001: A Space Odyssey and "H.A.L."

Any implementation of AI is suspect but is necessary for industrial progress. Living with it without being consumed by it is a challenge. Another aspect is expressing opinions on social media which includes this site. If you keep quiet you communicate in person only which is too limited. Maybe it is picking the sites you are engaged in which are not as easily mined. Is government by conventional values eg Defiantis one of the near term solutions?

Some of you old-timers may remember Islander. I was the self-sufficient country girl who grew or raised, and preserved, all her own food. Times change, and at 82 – while I still garden actively – I can no longer farm 50 acres as I once did. The good news is that today I'm surrounded by a wonderful community of Amish. I'm sure you know that these hard working people are kind, generous and completely organic. Find such a community if you can. I barter with them for my apple crop and in return, all my needs are met, including labor. They fall they stacked 5 cord of wood in the woodshed for me. No money ever changes hands (although they do indeed buy and sell). They are a blessing, the kind that urban dwellers will never know.

Government is being "invited" into your homes through technologies 'conversational'. Do not buy into the 'convenient' technology like Siri, automating your house to your cell phone, etc. It's like the old vampire horror films. DO NOT INVITE THE EVIL VAMPIRE INTO THE HOUSE!!! Once in, you can't get it out, and you're doomed!

The Critical Thinker has two rules - #1 ~ Strives to prove their hypothesis/premise wrong. #2 ~ Discovers the best sources of evidence, insight, and understanding. Then asks questions and is skeptical. Examines "cause & effect." Moves beyond simple heuristics. Seeks resources that have transparency, full disclosure, balance, context, and accountability.....The Intelligent Thinker understands subtleties and nuances while having discernment.....The Aware Thinker's "reality goggles" are clean, focused, and calibrated. They're aware of the gaslighting, gatekeepers, narratives, algorithms, and fake binaries of the Corporate Media. They understand confirmation bias and how conformity is manufactured (Solomon Asch and Edward Bernays). Trusts and is aligned with the infinite power of the universe.

There is a "POLE SHIFT" coming within a few years, if not sooner. The earth may be getting warmer, but the ice caps are growing in size due to the condensation ending up there. This will cause the earth to tip over due to the weight differences at both poles. So all the plans of these elitists are for nothing. The ones who know this are going to hide in their "underground cities when the time comes. If you read the "Book of Isaiah " he mentions the earth went "Topsy Turvey" three times indicating a pole shift had taken place in the past.

My two cents. One key is to buy only what you usually eat, and use and rotate what you have on hand, FI, FO, First In, First Out. With most canned goods, that date is not necessarily an expiration date, it is a "best buy" date. The food may lose some of its flavor, but it is usually safe to eat. Watch for the cans to bloat', where there is no longer a vacuum inside. That's when to toss them. If there is still a vacuum inside, I open the can and do a sniff test. If it smells OK, I will use it. My dogs have been raw fed for many years.

For years I made my dogs food, which means buying and handling a LOT of raw meat. Several times I unknowingly got a bad package of chicken. The first time I was sick for almost a month with salmonella poisoning. After that I researched food poisoning extensively and found out about Lugols Solution. For food poisoning, there is an age old remedy. Do an OTHER THAN GOOGLE internet search for " What Can Save You from Food Poisoning in 3 Minutes Flat?" Lugols Solution has stopped food poisoning for me and several of my friends a number of times over the years with only one or two doses.

The key is to start using it the moment you feel something isn't right. If you're wrong, and it's not food poisoning, one or two doses will not do any harm, in fact Most people today have an iodine deficiency, so in fact one or two doses will help your bodies iodine deficiency a lot! For a lot of people with Hypothyroidism, it is caused by low iodine levels. I regularly supplement with Lugols to keep my iodine levels where they should be.

A double sided access shelf could help conveniently rotate your food. Load the new food from one side and remove the food for consumption from the other side. Easy peasy. :-)

Yes, you want to cycle through whatever you stock, and you may want to use what you have as sauces and gravies. May be a good idea to add on with investigating traditional Japanese food supplies, many are in dried packages. Dried organic shitaki or other mushrooms, rice or shiritaki noodles, even kelp noodles, larger bags of rice, dried soup bases or organic concentrates. Numerous sites offer organic freeze-dried foods (a bit pricey) intended to last for years; however, you can emulate meals to your own liking. Study, read, do small tests before you chose, (outside magazine used to have loads of quick camping recipes) need to know how to prep and like eating these, may take a few trials. Long-term emergency storage implies freeze-dried, buckets that hikers and climbers may be using for long treks, with 10 to 20 year shelf life expected.

Lets hope chaos ends much sooner than that! ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ ~ Oh, watch out for lugols, most information is way outta date as much depends on whether or not you live in the goiter belt. Iodine is in milk products and hidden antiseptic in many household items, even in hand sanitizer before the FDA made the mfgrs remove it, as it was causing thyroid issues in healthcare workers. Lugols is certainly useful to have on the shelf; however, over-intake of iodine is now being seen by endocrinologists, can be equally damaging. Test, don't guess.
