301.5- THE END OF CASH, VALUELESS DOLLARS, HYPER INFLATION & CERTAIN CHANGE

Many men and women have worked their whole life planning for retirement and are now faced with the certainty that our money system is about to change with a so-called “reset”. Will dollars devalue? Will hyper-inflation cause loss of wealth? Is cash about to be a thing of the past? With so many questions and no guaranteed answers is it time to change dollar based wealth into something else? In this episode we ask a man who knows about money and he offers what he can with a true concern for men and women. He points out what we know to be true and offers ideas about where money might go in the near future. As has always been true, gold and silver have intrinsic value, which is not true of the dollar. This is finally becoming common knowledge in a worried world entering a new era pushing hard to make everything digital and controllable.

So glad you had this show. Just a thought....
Maybe take some questions from your audience on things we'd like to know.
I for one would like to know, where do you get real metals from a trusted "whom ever"? Where do you store it without the powers that be know?....
Thanks

land is an asset if it produces a money flow or stream. a house is a liability if mortgaged & produces nothing of value other than a domicile. that said an acre of land with a small home on it can produce a profit if the steward of the land so desires it so & puts the efforts needed in.

Thanks for this episode guys. I think it is paramount that you a discussing financial topics! We're all craving this kind of insight to help preserve our financial energy. I've been watch Greg for a while as well and have a solid financial education. Some good question a to ask him would be to break down what he means buy the fed wants to own it all and how they are making it a reality. Buy money printing (QE), own all stocks? Own all real estate? Own all Bitcoin? Etc. and when they do bring us to a digital dollar after devaluing the fiat. What value mechanism will give gold silver and bitcoin their value if they were purchased with fiat? Do they crash in price? Ask him specifically will those commodities weather the crash of the stock market. What stocks will still hold value? Bc they are printing 25% more currency in 2020 and will do the same this year is it smart to hold stocks until there are signs to cash out and pick up more metals. If you look at economist magazine prediction of the world for 2021 (very interesting) and it's a game of sorts for the elite to say what they intend. They have a graph of stocks going higher. Which is what as happening. Also bitcoin is more than what you describe it to be and would be epic to have Michael Saylor on you show to address you concerns about bitcoin.

He's a very smart guy and you are as well would be and incredible show. Look him up if you're not aware of him. He has laser like communication capacity to explain bitcoin and the reasons to bet against all this devaluation of the dollar. That's my two cents thanks for reading. Again Great show and look forward to having Greg on again!

american gold eagle is 50$ american silver eagle is 1$ that is in us treasury money. if you exchange us treasury money for fiat fed notes it is called a like kind exchange. example a 1 oz gold eagle is 50 dollars so you can legally transport 200 oz of us gold eagles which is $350,000.00 fiat fed notes. you can always hold your metal & trade as needed for goods never cash it all in. block-chain will be the receipt which tangibles will be tracked. that removes the governance of banks. block-chain will help for provenance & title(s). btc & the rest are not being utilized as they should be, as ledger receipts for value transfers.

I am sure he gets some things right. But the “markets” are pure, absolute and undeniable evil. GET OUT of them. They sold that nonsense to our parents and grandparents. Hey Crrow, gimme a dollar and I’ll give you 5 later. How did I do it? Well, see...there is the magical place called the “markets”. You have been listening to this guy for a while and you are not even sure what he means by “gold and silver are under pressure’...which sounds like sales speak to me.

If I had nothing I would go find a part of the country I would like to live in and get a job on a farm. It was the farmers who did well in the soviet union, when they were able to keep their farms. Develop all the skills and trades you can so that you can be productive and then people will always want what you can do. Black markets are strong. This is what happens in Sweden. I have friends there who operate entirely on the blackmarket for all their needs. They have trades and they do all trades work for their friends and vice versa, no cash changing hands for the govt to get involved with.

Yes, start small. The prepper world is a minefield but start with buying 2 of what you can, on sale etc.. This is the slowboil ramped up. Metals would be nice and food will outdate but 12 months shelf life is easily doable, and inflation is here and now on steroids. Hyper inflation could be sooner than we would like to think.

So going with out whatever you can today to have what you will need tomorrow is the start. It is to the point where that bag of groceries will go up 10 to 20 percent month to month. That's where you start and that is what will matter. People with piles of hope (money) will be looking to people like you, then, with all hope lost.

Greg is good and has been around for years. He knows his stuff. Many years ago he and all the others arrived on the scene with the buy physical meme. Many a schill is still around today flogging their wares and they are a dime a dozen. Ironically I saw Greg online a couple of days ago after many years, and here he is. He, along with the others, were calling the crash for 'next year' for many years. He was honest enough to admit the printing press gave them total control while others simply gave them the moniker of stupid or clueless. They we're to loose control due to greed and stupidity. Again schills.

Greg made, and might still make, all the rounds to the usual suspects; Sgt, Greg Hunter, on and on. And so I tuned out. The fact became apparrent back then that they would print you/me into hunger when it is all said and done then give you the offer you can't refuse. While knowing the offer would be your demise a needle is the master stroke. Back in the day the common sentiment was all the stackers would buy a house from some dispossessed sucker for 10 ozs, or so.

Paper AND digital fiat will never be enough, especially now, when that hamburger will cost more than you have or simply can't be had without the proper 'credits'. Physical will be barter when digital is the only redemption for it within the system, and as Crow said what do you sell or trade it for? Another worthless script that still buys you a hamburger or ten? Fair enough that to cash out in time and convert fait wisely would be the trick, but that is their game too. Real assets moving forward will shelter you and feed you. Never mind the norms that are lost and gone because a real asset might be a solid well built green house that you are familiar with. Hunger Games was the last predictive jive one really needed to see because the offer you can't refuse will be just that. Russia, ukraine, and the rest were just a warm up for these folks and the 100 million plus who perished (starved) under communism will be a drop in the bucket unless we face that now. Sorry to be that guy with his first post a real zinger but there is still time and I write this accordingly. The one thing I can assure you of is that kindness and compassion are the only things left when all illusion is gone.

I sure hope gold skyrockets soon, because I have had it for two years and right now it's dropping like a stone, probably because of the bitcoin surge. But being in Canada, I can tell you that our internet is more and more severely restricted all the time. There are so many videos now that I am not allowed to watch or sites I am not allowed to access, I may as well be in China. The 1% are putting a chokehold on the internet. I think people had better stop relying on the internet for anything. If our govt can stop us from accessing sites that easily, what's to stop them from cutting off our access to our bitcoin if we have any? We have to register with the govt when we buy it, so they know we have it and they get all our personal information when we buy it, so right there I do not trust bitcoin. At least the govt does not know I have any metals. There was no transaction record of that. I think the most valuable commodity now will be trades skills that one can trade for whatever they need as we are heading for a barter economy for everyone who doesn't want to be controlled in the digital realm of govt regulations. You will have to make your children have transgender sterliization surgeries in order to get your food stamps.

as long as the world revolves around commerce – gambling will become a winner take all ponzi scheme. seems our only hope is for as many as possible to secure property and grow food. most of us – even many who have “extra” money, don’t have enough to make a dent in the win/lose scenario enough to protect themselves from the Federal Reserve plans. Everyone betting against debt is as culpable in our demise as anything. what will any kind of money mean in a world where those who have all the controls finally have all the control. How can silver and gold be useful in a world like that. the “reset” intends to take away our property. how can we fight that? Remember when it was illegal to hold gold and silver. “They” are gambling with our water now. They already do food. This guy is just as much part of the win/lose game playing as anyone in the Fed is. We need to walk away from it all. All that speculating is just as unreal as fiat money is.

green dollars are a promissory note from a bankrupted entity, a receipt for future goods or services. your green dollars are base on  $371\frac{1}{4}$  fine grains of silver or  $\div 16$  to get fine gold grains. paper money or digital blips of nothing will ne worth just that. block-chain will be the new receipt but you can attach the provenance & title to the ledger for a supposed uncorruptable accounting.

1.  Sarah Retherford says:

you are not telling me anything i don't already know. blockchain is nothing more. what will matter is how we treat each other. can you imagine a world where regulations show up on blockchain, your bank account and internet are only accessible if you behave right and you and your circle of loved ones have some green dollars with their "value" remembered...don't you think we will be willing to exchange them among ourselves in an underground fashion to evade the thought police. I think they will mean what they have always meant – a medium of exchange. We can put whatever value we want on them. There are only so many of them printed – so if there are still greedy people, which there certainly will be, and opportunists, they can then hoard and speculate on paper money. The rest is all imaginary credit digital nonsense. The trouble we are in now is because of greed and the desire for control. If we lose those operating mantras, we can return to civility where the true value of things can be discovered. We need to make up our own game where speculation is not available – it's gambling. Gambling is nonsense. Someone always has to lose. What are all the good people who are awake but have no money to gamble on these in and out situations supposed to do. So, what everyone touting gambling is saying – it's you or me. How is that a good thing whichever way you want to look at it.

It is all a circus, Crow, and I don't pay attention, because I don't care either. This whole idea of "money" just draws us further and further away from nature and what is really important about all living things on this planet, that we ALL need each other and to live in synchronicity and connection with our natural world to maintain our standing in this place we call earth. I am so exhausted listening to everyone talk about the money aspect of this “great reset” when what truly matters is how we can come together to create a world where no one lacks the basic necessities and has freedom to thrive to be the highest minded spirit they can be.

Whatever happened to the idea of a barter type of system, where everyone is seen to have equal worth and we live in smaller communities and work with each other for fulfillment? Local farms and services?

I know I sound all woo-hoo, but really...where is the compassion for how this will REALLY affect the least fortunate amongst us?

That's what I fear. I could give a crap about money markets and cryptocurrency, honestly. Maybe I'm completely naive, but I've never involved myself with any of it, because it all seems so fake and unnecessary. I just maintain my very modest lifestyle, doing body and energy work on people, trying to be make a difference and be a good person. I'm not rollin in the dough over here, by any means, and if you look at me simply in monetary terms, I am nothing-have nothing, really. But I don't feel scared about that. I know who I am, as I'm sure most of your listeners do, Crow. And I know my power and place and where I'm going, and I refuse to give in to this fear and hype, especially the money aspect. What would I be if I or anyone that loves me thought of my success in this life simply by whats in my bank account? This is the mindset we need to change, no?

At least silver and gold are useful in the natural world. And I don't possess those either. So I guess I'm screwed if I think about this at all.

I remain faithful that this will all turn out beautifully for this world. Darkness cannot sustain itself. It's just not possible for these sinister humans to continue to get away with this, and hurt things in this continual manner. Karma is real, and nature is strong, and I believe will avail in the end.

Cheers,
Tina

Have to agree with you.

I came from money being king and have seen the sad sorry people who attach to that. Never did give a rats about it and was quite the one to avoid on the subject. To this day I watch those who say it's not about money to them chase a few more bucks on their stock app. I remember Crrow saying he was seen as not with it for not having a team to ra ra for back in his roadie days. Manhood was not there and to many 'the market' has become that too. How many will realize the money they never had was never lost when the time comes? And the money put toward it was lost there and then. Very few I'm guessing while true gamblers in this world accept that without question.

That's not what intrinsic value means! You're close but not quite.

Surely you won't listen to me but you listen to Mark Passio so go listen to how he puts it!

Intrinsic value means something that is actually valuable to your sustainability! Sustenance!!!!

Wake up people!

What are you going to do if no one wants to buy your gold?!?!? You're going to eat it? Lol wow people will spend hours talking about mind control but fail to realize EVERYTHING is a lie. Even the obsession with gold silver and copper or what have you! These are not supposed to be literal! Sun, moon . . . Wake up!

Intrinsic value is what you can USE on its own to sustain your life! LAND. FOOD. MACHINERY. TOOLS. WATER. WORKING ANIMALS. NOT FUCKING GOLD! you can't use it unless someone buys it, wait for it, using some form of fiat currency!

Wake up and do some homework on what intrinsic means people. You can have a ton of gold and you'll still be cold and hungry. You can have a half acre and have food and water and shelter!

The issue comes from our obsession to monetary value which is their way of manipulating us. Still asleep if you're chasing gold coins like a damn fool. Get land! Water! Food! Machines! Items that you can rely on! Gold can heal but it will not save your life if you're on your own.

Wish I had more time than just my random messages on here! Geesh!

Stop saying intrinsic value. Go read about it 😊

Ciao

Yep. No stranger to Passio. Many years to digest the monetary vs intrinsic value argument. My conclusion is that metal will indeed be accepted for exchange. People will take it for things of intrinsic value, to you. Someone will always see it as worth the value of the intrinsic things they are offering to you. Hence it has value to them and will be a means of exchange. To me it is simply that, and will be that, a means of exchange. I would gladly trade it for that tractor someone sees as worth some metal when the time comes.

I agree with both of you. Money won't feed you, but it has been a convenient way of trading – less cumbersome than the items of actual intrinsic value. I appreciate the insight Crrow's guest provided. Some type of money will be good to have.

I also agree with Youness. We need to think about what skills we can cultivate that would be of real value if we have to take care of ourselves. What tools would be smart to own.

One comment about land if you are looking to buy property – find a home that isn't part of an HOA or zoned as "historic." That's the government's way of controlling land that was developed before HOA's controlled ownership. Architectural committees have a lot of power to make rules. Not allowing farm animals (e.g. a chicken or goat) and perhaps even growing food could be a

Thanks for the free speech platform so I can vent every once in a while. Some day I will come on your show and give you a piece of my mind Crow! Id even come down to RI and have a chat face to face. I moved from Webster Ma to Maine last year so I was very close to you . . .

Anyway, Intrinsic value means VALUABLE to YOU! It is subjective to sustaining one's life and family! Not a trading mechanism such as buying and selling gold!

The effort here was to get a point of view from direct knowledge of the money systems and I accept all that was said with the exception of crypto which I do not support and never will. There are a lot of folks out there trying to retire and our guest has direct knowledge of how that all works. I think it should be clear that no one knows for sure what is about to happen but where we are headed will clearly change how we do money now.

A lot of platitudes in this interview. This guy isn't saying anything that I can't find on Zerohedge.

Crrow, would really appreciate if you could have somebody on that is knowledgeable about cryptocurrency. In my opinion, it is a tool, neither good nor bad, but how it's used. I feel like there has been too much throwing out the baby with the bathwater, with an insinuation that it's all bad. I don't side with the crypto zealots full of religious fervor either. A balanced approach must be taken.

We've been using digital currency for a while now, it's called the USD. How are you paying for web service, domain names, etc. It's all in digital dollars.

Crypto represents total slavery – I do not need anyone on to know this. It is also likely where the dollar is trying to head. It has no value and is imaginary, so from a knowing standpoint what else should we consider? Don't get me started on binary systems... which also play into our future as systemic controls.

Hi Crow and Jason, love your tireless work. What was your previous shows that reach into the realm of binary systems. Land is a huge question with the UNDRIP situation unfolding United Nations Declaration of Rights of Indigenous Peoples and whereby the government (bankers) can take your land for whatever reason they declare is best for all. Like making sure your caste of human is removed from natural habitat and land returned to their use. So how do we now value land as an asset, or can we move it into the private and trust? Man it just keeps getting better doesn't it? Since they changed the definition of Vaccine (see Websters) they can change the definition of anything and by using reflexive law, throw away the keys. Or can they?

Please say more about binary systems! You mentioned they are the most evil. Would you please explain briefly why? We live in a world of duality – in essence, a binary system. I always say that balance is the secret to the Universe.

I really want to understand what you mean when you say you are against binary systems. Are you referring to their trick of divide and conquer?

Thank you.

Reply

1.  Crow says:

The binary conversation will take some back knowing to be established so those listening can see the issue clearly. I will say all the 11 usage (911 & 311 as examples) is a version of 2 and called by Crowley the vilest of numbers – which is true – if – you intend it to be and remove it from the decan. Spiritually 2 begins to move away from the perfection and godly ideas of 1 in the same way 11 moves away from the perfection of 10 in a cycle an octave higher. There is a lot to grasp to be able to comprehend what binary represents and do not get me started on the zero idea in binary as a thing with a value...

Platitudes yes. A more nuanced approach discusses the need for cash during breakdown, until a system of barter emerges. Metals are mostly unknowns to the public. Very hard to cash in on them. Generally you will have to convert them to whatever currency is in effect. If there is no rule of law, being able to protect your assets is equally important, hence the notion of lead being a precious metal, too. Remember that you don't really own your land if you have to pay increasing property taxes on it every year. California passed a law saying that the government has first dibs on foreclosed property. Government could care less whether we can afford to pay the taxes. They would prefer that we were penniless and dependent, and ultimately dead. How can the Blue States be in the black now, after all this shut down? It's the Federal Reserve notes they have gotten recently, allowing preferred companies and governments to be operating a "surplus" when the financial landscape has been devastated. It's all a fraud. The controllers have not lost power during this time, or so it seems to me. I doubt they will allow a grid failure that would undermine their surveillance system. If you look at geoengineering and money printing, you will understand that the entire planet is on board with the madness. How do heirloom seeds and water catchment help when the air, water, and soil are toxic with heavy metals, polymers, and other agents. I have been "all in" on precious metals since 2008. While I bought silver in the low teens, I also bought it in the 30s and 40s. Who is to say when they will be revalued against a new currency or otherwise enable me to profit from them relative to the cost of housing and land? Maybe never. Remember Greenspan's dictum: markets can stay irrational longer than investors can stay solvent. You must have a balanced approach. But with COVID shutting down so many financial opportunities for people, survival is getting harder, and along with it, our ability to be healthy. Yes, silver and gold are more real than crypto, but as to when they will really shine I have no clue. I believe the money masters will throw a few hundred billion $$ whenever they need to subsidize mining or suppress spot prices, or whatever they need to do to keep the nominal valuations (in USD) from spiking. They do this to ensure confidence in the debt notes, as well as a big "fuck you" to all the people who can discern the real from the unreal, truth from fraud, GMO from organic, gold from crypto and debt. I agree with Fitts and Crrow: crypto is prison and surveillance. All the energy going into bitcoin is just to pave the way for a government issued digital system.

I am not nearly as fluent in this speak as Gregory, BUT I can see trends when taking a step back and looking at the big picture. We are most definitely going from paper to digital. Period. This is what that Klaus clown means when he says you will be happy and own nothing. Digital is nothing along with these stupid Non Fungible Token on crypto called digital art. Seems dumb as hell, but people like to collect digital cards and whatever else, so gaming will be HUGE part of this transition.

Spiritually and biblically speaking neither of these options are great, BUT we can take advantage of what is going on. There will be a block of the population that will always want gold/silver as it has been around for thousands of years as a store of value and potentially great bartering. Can't eat it though, so has its limits.

Will be a portion (and probably the largest portion) that will gladly go into slavery for the beast system with everything electronic digital and they are taken care of with their basic needs. Probably some kind of universal basic income or whatever.

Here is my plan. I am currently taking advantage of this crypto market by putting as much fiat into it as I can. It is on a super bull run at moment and probably will continue to around the Fall or so and could go longer. As Greg stated the fiat has to go somewhere. Bitcoin and other alt coins is where it will be going. Key is NOT to get greedy, have your exit plan mapped out. A gain is NOT a gain, until is is realized and sold. Immediately take that realized fiat gains and pay off your debts and get land.

I plan on selling just about all of it. (will keep a little bitcoin in cold storage for possible use in future in case of emergency), paying off all fiat debt and buying a little piece of land somewhere so I can be self sufficient with animals and farming. The more self sufficient, the less reliant on the beast system. They CANNOT do anything to you without your consent. They will make it horribly uncomfortable if you don't take their vaccine or whatever else there will be, BUT ultimately it cannot be forced upon you.

They will have to do something with all of us non-vaxxers the great unwashed or whatever. I can see some sort of hunger games situation, with people and all their smart cities doing their thing in the cities and we unwashed living off the land in "squalor", at least what they will think anyway. Spiritually we will be right where we should be.

There is hope and will be a greater awakening as well. Gregory was not saying one was better than the other, just letting us know that there are ways to take advantage so we can prepare ourselves for what is inevitably coming.

Ultimately, the battle is in God's temple (our minds) and we must not left the antichrist in there (fear, anxiety etc.). In my opinion, the best teacher on youtube for spiritual warfare and how to be victorious is TheBigSib...

I was liberal until my first nursing job, which was in a state prison. At some point during that job, I came to the realization that these folks were being taken care of by the government. State issued clothing, housing, food, work detail, EVERYTHING they had on their person and every step they took during their day was under the control of the government. And that was when my eyes began to open to what a life where a government that takes care of you looks like. From that day on, I've looked at things differently. Now that being said, welfare state countries may go a similar road to what I've described. However, many countries are coming into their period of growth and productivity. Get in the path of those countries and the world begins to brighten up again.

I think land is the only way to go right now. Maybe crypto for the shower term, then convert to hard/real assets. It will probably only buy you a few more years of freedom. Stay away from flood Zones and be aware of the potential for “spontaneous” fires (maybe have trees for timber, but not too close to the house. And not downstream from man made lakes. I think part of the biodiversity agenda is to restore land back to nature. Welcome to the hunger games. Take every precaution, and pray for the best.
