0 Awesome. We need lots more of that. Positive anti-(corrupt) authority attention. It reminds me of a documentary I saw for the first time a couple of days ago, Man On Wire, about a French wire walker who walked between the WTC towers back in 1974. It was an extraordinary tale of daring, competence, fearlessness, and the creation of a positive sensational spectacle. I thought glumly about the comparison between Philippe Petit's brilliance using the twin towers in NYC to advance human freedom and aspiration (he didn't get permission, he just sneaked in and did it with great zest and style) and the cocksucking Zionists who saw the towers as instruments of death and global control. When was the last time anyone in Washington inspired someone? A ZH poster earlier today spoke about the startling difference between the statesmanship of the Russian leaders, and compared that to the grunts and snarls coming out of McCain, Clinton, and the rest of these adolescent, blackmailed demons. The USA is suffering for lack of imagination, moral courage, and intellectual honesty.

all fight back the best way we know how. I like the Oscar Wilde approach to death, making liberal use of one's wit to the very end. Or maybe like John Galt helping his torturers repair the electrocution device they were savaging him with. But outside a book, sociopaths likely should be met with death or at least a real threat of death. Theatrics and demonstrations, or the cries of a billion innocent children, just feed the Elites' desire for more control and punishment.

saying that the American MSM have been all over this as a racist act?

That's why I think it's the CIA essentially besmeerching the Russians as a whole.

It doesn't exclude some small group of homegrown Russian activists but look at the Ukraine or how the USAID organization was using an HIV program in Cuba to destabilize the government there.

OT but I just wanted to share this ebola update, couldn't post a link for some reason but according to the Hindu times health officials are monitoring three suspected Ebola cases in Dwarka India.

also I was sent this from a friend who works in the field translated from a Mexican news source...not sure of it's validity yet but it wouldn't be surprising if it was as you had to know it was just a matter of time.

"District Federal.- Jose Antonio Gonzales Figueroa, the first case is confirmed in Mexico and infected with the deadly Ebola virus. Joseph was admitted and isolated immediately after going to the emergency room with high fever and having confessed that had just returned from vacation in an African country.

The first confirmed case after taking necessary and with the support of the United States government evidence, is in the city of Mexico. Young is a medical student at the UNAM of 22 who went on vacation to an African country and was there for almost a month. Young returned to Mexico on August 2 and was admitted the next day by high fever, vomiting and diarrhea. The young and being treated and medical staff came to the United States and Mexico today in the morning to determine the best control strategy.

So far the Ministry of Health has issued several statements to the federal government so far have not received any response. The releases include a recommendation to temporarily suspend the return to classes until you confirm that you have controlled the virus. The health secretary said he will continue trying to communicate with the government to prevent a pandemic in Mexico."

so it looks like we may have our first confirmed case just south of the border and the first unintentional and unplanned case in the Americas...

perhaps now would be a good time to get serious about closing off the border?

Wake up people, there are no activists in Russia. Such "behavioural abnormality" would not be allowed anywhere else and would be punished by at least 15 days in jail for huliganism or if "HIMSELF" or his friends like Medvedev are pictured they would be looking for 3 years+.

Keep cheering for Putin, keep cheering... If there are any Americans still present on this side cheering for Putin, I would recommend – move to Russia and taste the medicine you are cheering for. Wonder if you can survive there for 3+ months.

I wouldn't want to move to China either, but that doesn't mean by default that the Zionists should dominate China. Plus, there is the moral issue here of the US puppet state of Kiev being responsible for downing the jetliner, and using this staged provocation to justify more military spending and resources expropriating. Oh yes, and immaturely getting back at Putin for exposing the US State Department for yet again being liars last year with respect to Syria and the last atrocity Washington (and the Saudis) committed and tried to lay the blame on their opponent (and claim another Russia/energy nexus).
