There was no law that required the injections, there was only "guidance".

Seems like pretty shaky legal footing for those who did the mandating.

I can't wait for the tsunami of lawsuits against corporations and educational institutions by those who were killed or injured by the mandated injections.

Let the lawsuits commence!

I worked in the Abrazo Hospital System until January 2021. They were not allowing ANY exemptions for employees, so I retired, rather than take the Sudden Death Shots. They did however give unqualified exemptions to all physicians, like our house anesthesia group, who had the greatest exposure, since they were the ones who had to intubate, and extubate patients in all departments, not just in Surgery where I worked. The Group was prescribing Hydroxychloroquine for themselves, and in April of 2020 when a quarter to a third of all staff came down with Covid, strangely none of the gas passers got it. Even though I could prove that I had antibodies for durable immunity, when the Death Shots became available, they still insisted that I and everyone else, get them.

your post is a cop of crap, not gedda's.

gedda could prove to an idiot administrator that she had fake-pcr-tested positive for covid, had recovered from symptoms, had taken the fake-test a second time and tested negative. in their fantasy world, that should properly have sufficed to prove that she had "durable antibodies" and should have sufficed to provide her with an exemption, but they were intent on forcing jobs on the powerless, which she unfortunately was, ... compared to the detestable doktors who refused to take it and were granted "exemptions". this scenario was repeated in all professions, all over the world. fuk them all, cyprus, fukyu too.

so she had to retire instead and presumably cannot sue them for "firing" her for refusing the shot. that is a great injustice.

they literally forced people to take the fukken job or lose their jobs, lose their careers, lose their families; FUKYU to death.

it sucks, you suck. the WHO suks, and tony fauci should die and go to hell. i bet you took that shot, hope you die of it soon.

"Let the floodgates open and bankrupt all these companies that mandated this worthless shot."

Let's be straight here: The shots are not only worthless (I'm ok if it had been useless & harmless), but they are actually highly TOXIC and HARMFUL to oneself, and could even potentially affect ALL your future progeny (should your germline DNA be irrevocably altered and/or you are still able to have kids).

Most govts, the medical establishments as well as those who injected the MotB know they are DAMNED, but they will still keep up their false appearances and will prop up their Potemkin facade with duck tape and copious amounts of saliva if necessary. LOL.

Where I am, the state media is awfully silent on the waves of bad news as more studies exposes the truth on these "vaxxines". In fact some of them are merely playing with words now, fudging deaths statistics via "redefining" basic terms, or actually doubling down (by insisting mRNA technology will be "improved" for future pandemics. Lol)

<https://www.bitchute.com/video/wv1XfTZBAizt>

So unfortunately, I doubt the Big Pharma companies or Blue cross organizations will be bankrupted or be dissolved anytime soon. The same had been going on with the totally corrupted Red Cross Organization, and yet today they are still regarded by many "Normies" to be a supposedly respectable "humanitarian" organization. I had stopped giving them my blood DECADES ago after I saw videos similar to this below:

I had policies there on and off, company provided or individual. I had mixed results. Often they didn't cover stuff, or said they didn't and I never followed up, back in the day. But more recently they seemed to reject all claims as a first step, but when you resend the paperwork three times, or simply call up and yell at them a little, they'd cover it. But that's no way to run an airline.

Also some doctors simply refused to deal with them, and entire health systems like UCLA (very large around Los Angeles) would simply go off their PPO list.

Under existing HIPA statutes that were in effect before all this COVID-19  ever took place was one simple thing.

Employers are NOT entitled to examine an employee or candidate's medical records which includes vaccinations unless they are legally disputing a worker compensation claim.

That is it, period. There are no shades of grey under the existing statutes and people need to start suing the pants off corporate America that fed into all the unfounded hysteria resulting in the ruination of people's lives.

Not sure what that means. I'm a victim of the oppressive tyrannical state. But I don't go about considering myself one or sulking. Reality is reality though. I can't get different work because of the vax still. Avoiding the shot in this industry was the greatest challenge of my life. I'm the sole income for a family of six. A lot at stake. I'm fortunate to have been working for a company that didn't fire me.

Employers have no legal defense as HIPA statutes clearly state they have no rights to an employee or candidate's medical records outside of a workers compensation dispute.

They can try hiding behind the "we were just following the mandates" excuse, but mandates have no legal backing either.

Um, the EUA stated no one could be compelled to take it, you didn't need a religious reason to refuse. A simple "f@ck you, you can't legally compel me to take an experimental gene-therapy injection for a virus that is no risk to me" would have worked. And add to it "if you try to fire me I know where all the company secrets are after working here for 16 years and I will scorched-earth this b@tch on the way out the door".

Of course the really smart move was to let them fire you, wait a few years and then sue for way more money.
