Schools And Colleges Are Making Students Even More Terrified Of Trump

Via DaisyLuther.com,

the wailing commences. If you glance over and say, "You're okay. You're a tough cookie. Get back up," then you're teaching them that the proper response to falling is shaking it off and getting up again. We're instilling courage and resilience when we do this.

We teach children how to respond to almost everything by modeling a healthy response for them, but our school/indoctrination system seems to have missed this crucial concept of Dealing with Disappointment 101. Their overly nurturing and politically biased response to Trump's win over Hillary Clinton is making everything worse.

Basic psychology tells us that when we bolster someone's fear by our response, we're actually reinforcing that they have grave reason to be fearful.

By babying these kids because their favored candidate lost and constantly discussing the fears, the education/indoctrination system is teaching kids that the proper response to a Trump presidency is abject terror, disappointment, and donning the cloak of victimhood. The meetings for a primal scream, the delaying of midterm exams, the counseling, and the excused absences to protest all say to kids, "Oh my gosh, this is serious. We're all be spending next Christmas in a Death Camp."

Here are some ridiculous examples of anti-Trump bias being taught in schools. These tactics aren't education. They're indoctrination.

One school system introduced an anti-Trump curriculum

The San Fransisco Chronicle is reporting that lesson plans in the Bay area include such instructions as:

instructions as:

“Let us please not sidestep the fact that a racist and sexist man has become the president of our country by pandering to a huge racist and sexist base,” wrote Fakhrah Shah, a Mission High School teacher, in the introduction to her lesson plan. “DO NOT: Tell (students) that we have LOST and that we have to accept this.”

Let’s look at two things in the introduction to this program.

First, “DO NOT: Tell (students) that we have LOST and that we have to accept this.”

Who are the “we” in that line? It seems to presume that all students were Clinton supporters. Would this have been acceptable if a school was teaching the children that they didn’t have to accept a woman as a president? Or a black man? Or a person of a religion other than Christianity?

Not only that, but the plan demonizes anyone who voted for Trump. The curriculum says that the only way Trump won the office was by “by pandering to a huge racist and sexist base.” That means that anyone who voted for Trump will be, in the eyes of the children being fed this garbage in a tax-payer funded classroom, considered a racist and a sexist.

I took the liberty of downloading the lesson plan from Google Docs. You can read the whole thing here.

An English teacher in North Carolina made her students do an assignment comparing Trump to Hitler

English students at Cedar Ridge

English students at Cedar Ridge High School in North Carolina got an earful from their teacher, Amanda Harder, who used the election and her distaste for Donald Trump as the impetus for classroom assignments. She made the kids watch videos of translated speeches by Adolf Hitler and compare them to speeches by Donald Trump.

A with a cell phone caught the teacher saying, “Basically, the only people who seem to be safe from this guy are white Christian males. Am I missing anything? Oh, American - white, Christian, male Americans.”

But then the teacher discovered that kids were recording her and took pre-emptive action, according to a report on Fox News.

After the teacher found out she had been recorded, she demanded that students turn over their cell phones, one parent alleged.

“She made the kids drop their phones in a basket by the door,” the parent said. “So we just told the kids to either take notes or record her on their laptops.”

Here’s a recording of the “lesson” recorded by a student.

Schools across the country are enhancing the fear.

An essay published \(surprisingly\) on US News and World Report gave other examples of this fear enhancement:

...schools and colleges treated a victory by the Republican presidential nominee much as they did the deadliest attack on American soil since the Civil War. Colleges canceled classes. At others, professors ignored their syllabi to explain their hatred of Republicans. Schools and school districts took dramatic steps to comfort their presumptively terrified students, an undertaking that allowed anguished teachers to fan every feverish rumor.

Educators talked in quavering voices about the horrors of the impending Trump administration. One school administrator lamented to the PBS NewsHour: "We won't be able to teach math if they feel scared and if they feel like they are at risk."

The superintendent of schools in Montgomery County, Maryland, wrote to the constituents of his sprawling suburban district: "We must reassure our staff and students that our students that our school buildings are safe places where we truly value and respect every single individual and do not tolerate bullying or hate speech.” The superintendent of the Denver Public Schools responded to Trump’s victory by flagging the “deep differences and bias in our country around race and ethnicity and class.”

A thousand such missives criss-crossed the nation’s schools and colleges. The president of the University of Michigan told a campus vigil last Wednesday that students had voted overwhelmingly for Clinton: “Ninety percent of you rejected the kind of hate and the fractiousness and the longing for some sort of idealized version of a nonexistent yesterday.”

Of course, it’s important to discuss current events and allay fears, but the sympathy and endless discussions are only making it worse.

Back to raising small children as an example: If you tell your kids that darkness is scary, make sure there’s always a light on in the bathroom, and slink around with a flashlight yourself, then they will become scared of the dark.

If you teach them how to handle darkness, how to let their eyes adjust, how to put your hand against the wall and take small steps, then they’ll learn the coping mechanisms necessary to

---

... coping mechanisms necessary to function and will be less fearful.

If you explain that there really is no monster in the closet and open the door and show them, it will allay their fear. If you say, "Oh my gosh, run to my room! That monster is going to get you!" and teach them that panic is the appropriate response, they'll also be terrified.

What the school system should be doing is investigating the truth and explaining it to children. No, Muslim kids aren't going to be rounded up. No, gay marriages aren't going to be dissolved. No, black families won't be "sent back to Africa."

Instead, they're creating a generation of people who will be even more fearful and easily offended than the current batch of snowflakes. If you aren't homeschooling or unschooling, now might be the time to consider it.

Yeah, this is a MAJOR problem with government,
union employee

employee,
schools. Part of draining the swamp is to privatize all schools and allow competition
between them.
Instead of bilking tax payers for extravagant
school employee pay
and retirement
use less than half of that money to fully fund vouchers
that the parents can use to send their kids to whichever school they choose.

Amanda
Harder needs
to be gone.
Never to work again. Bigger issue, she is far from the only one. In fact there are many, many more worse.

Education is

I was the only Jeffersonian Reactionary in both of the university departments where I worked as an adjunct for about 10 years. All the full-time and part-time faculty were Progressives. I am very glad that I retired when I did! Now the university is so broke that there is no money to hire part-time faculty in most departments. Drain that Swamp, too!

genocidal
war at the paradoxe

and their impotenc

which is a preoccupa

death and gloom.

Ms. Lerner is a fine and decent woman, she only needs to take the RED PILL.

Well, well,

we needed Hollywoo

us that some
White

*American

a step further than its

Yes, it's a war zone
out there,
and perhaps you will be more likely to be hurt if you don't

But you

---

but you
know,
America
wasn't always such a multicultu

The
schools in our cities
weren't
always
infested

Even
places like Los

used to be decent,
safe,
wholesom

used to be that White kids didn't get stomped
by Black thugs in the school bathroom

to be that one didn't have to worry about
Blacks
stealing
one's truck from the

In fact there

our whole

there was a time

because drug dealing

And the situation is getting

Let's make a list of what Pro-Trumpers are more like to do than Pro-Clintoners:

- More likely to work hard
- More likely to pay taxes
- More likely to be respectful of other's beliefs
- More likely not to think the world owes them anything
- More likely to make you feel safe when you walk past them on a sidewalk
- More likely to believe in freedom of speech
- More likely to believe in freedom of religion
- More likely to believe that government should not rule your life
- More likely to believe that people believe that people deserve to have control over their own finances

- More likely to protect somebody when they are in danger
- More likely to say,
"Merry Christmas" to others
- More likely to drop money into a

I could go on and on,
but I will stop here.

0 Huh? The bottom line is the American way of life has been bastardized for the better part of fifty years, slowly. In our "democracy" the hard working middle class has been railroaded, unable to vote or have a say in anything our 'government' has been doing. Do you think the people of America WANT to have so many foreigners pouring into their neighborhoods and communities? Did we want to share our jobs with foreigners? Did we want to have our tax money go into the hands of the UNWELCOME? Did my parents want me to get beat up after school because I am white? Sorry about your Filipino friend, but I call

Young people have a lot of things to worry about.

A lot more than my generation did, fact. But the problems are so big and so unapproachable that I think they are grabbing onto the Trump thing as a surrogate for all the faceless terrors. That's just human nature; create a face for the thing you fear. It's also a way to avoid uncomfortable realities ("I will not do as well economically as my parents did") by displacing your emotions onto something that seems manageable ("this Trump guy is going to somehow make it harder for me").

I sympathize, I really do, at the same time that I wish they would just wake up to the horror approaching, know it for what it is, and get ready to survive it.

They take it out on each other and get taught to fake it, to pretend to be nice, all the while wanting everyone else dead.

Any wonder so many take up arms, against themselves or others?

0 That's true, too.
But I guess I see this as less of a child-rearing issue and more of an actual system crisis/breakdown.

Shit is coming unwired.

And they know it, you better believe they do.

Just to pick one; there is a looming generational fight now, and the kids are going to lose. They will be required to support us useless grey-beards living 30 years beyond our productive years in the process devouring the accumulated middle-class legacy as we get new knees, new breasts, new heart valves and new retirements to Florida.

The kids get $150K each in debt, no affordable housing, and no jobs. Forever. And there is nothing of any kind they can do about it

about it.

Hating on Donald Trump isn't going to solve any of that, but hating is a hell of a lot more comforting in its own sad way.

0 Totally agree....I just think that is one reason why the social fabric is so strained....and partly, it works both ways. The lack of virtue/restraint/frugality contributes to the fragility of the system, and vice versa.

Kids get that too. Just instinctively. Lack of security at many levels.

0 There is only a generational fight in those who are being suckered by the media, controversy sells truth doesn't, and those making a profit splitting the generations apart. That $150 grand in debt will never be paid back as the US will

---

the US will default on that debt. When the dollar and the US control of the financial system ends,
and the military
option no
longer works,
it's when the US
defaults and the rich and power hungry flee our shores for havens they created with the assets they stole off the backs of every American.
Unless they totally screw up
and the nukes
start flying upon which time bend over and kiss your ass goodbye.

Stay away from the big cities and housing is affordable unless your appetites are on the rich side.
Financing is downright cheap and in many cases no
money down.
Lots of jobs out there but many are working stiff jobs which hardly anyone today wants to get their hands dirty. Don't believe that garbage that in a few years all the menial and factory jobs will be done by robots as robots are not suited to do

---

many tasks

many tasks
human hands
can. Until AI is perfected a robot will not be as flexible at doing a multitude of jobs one human can do. Plus robots are extremely expensive and it will take many years of slow adaption to bring prices down and then many more decades to get the quantities
needed to fill the jobs. The idea that robots will be taking over the world in a few years is pure bunk.

This is the age of disinformation yet with the world litterally
at your fingertips so many wish to remain ignorant or too lazy to actually research how they are being played. Until some earth
shattering event
occurs anyone who claims the future is bleak
and terrible
should have the crap slapped
out of them.
They want to give up even before they get started. The future is what you make it and if you sit back

whinning and

---

winning and crying someone else will make your future for you and it won't be pretty as they prosper off your suffering.

kids, according to debt counselors, have no clue how much money they borrowed and now have to pay back. What's even more interesting is that over half those graduating college
have no debt, courtesy of the parents and grandparents and the ones who worked their way through school, and of those who do over 40% is owed by a small percentage of graduate students.
Plus much of that debt is owed by boomers
who were suckered into cosigning for their kids and grandkids. So to say the kiddies of today have more to worry about is pure bullshit.
Just like the bullshit of how all kids in college have a student debt problem when it's actually a minority. Of those that do how much was spent on parties and spring and winter break in Cancun. Or summers spent at the beach
instead of getting job.

Unless you have a crystal ball how do you know your kids will have it worse than you or horrors are approaching? We've had that crap shoved down our throats by those with an agenda
hoping to make big bucks off your hiding in the corner sucking

---

in the corner sucking
your thumb waiting for the boogie man to get you. Just like the fake or distorted bullshit about Trump people cower under their beds or worry themselves to death
rather than doing research that will show they are being played for suckers.
Just like the millenials being made to hate boomers, and post ignorant stupid rants fed to them, while studies have shown that the vast majority of the boomers and their offspring have great respect for each other. Divide and conquer and make huge profits making the intentionally ignorant fearful and afraid.

Not every millenial is a snowflake but that doesn't sell well and bring in the clicks and profits. I'm willing to bet if one expends the effort one would find there are huge numbers of millenials who went from nothing to filthy rich in a few years. Back in the old days unless one was a crook it took lots of capital borrowed from banks and decades of time to get rich. Today is much easier. Lots of well healed investors throwing millions to every kid with a decent idea and a computer. Look at all these young companies today
started and run by millenials who are now rich and their

---

now rich and their companies valued in the billions. I'll bet the people who created those companies cringe when they get lumped into the snowflake class.
Instead of celebrating successful millenials it's more profitable for those with an agenda
to ignore them and promote the losers as being the majority of the millenials.

Look: if schools want to teach whatever the fuck they want and say that Trump eats deep fried baby nuts for brunch, then what is so different from what they teach now? And that "what" is absolute shyte.

I was a history major and at the end of two years I figured that to stay in the field you'd have to somehow disregard every bit of evidence of reality contrary to what you are supposed to say. And that is not an option. It's not academic freedom. It's like the kids I went to school with in K-3. Many of them had cerebral palsy. Wheel chair kids. The kind of offspring you hide up in a bussed in enclave and since I lived three blocks away I walked there.

But now, the Steely, the Aluminuimy is that mommy and daddy pay tuition to have their children turn into teletubby twitter feeders.

This is why schools are funded by the Federal Government. And ooooh, don't you dare, ever, ever think other than we pay you to think.

So fuck school. If you cannot think for yourself, you will never, ever, think for yourself. And that choose sides.

In all schools here that is forbidden. You can teach about poltics, but not preach polticis. It is not for teachers or students to prosleytze poltical or religious views in the class

AND you have to wonder, what about those students who don't agree with teacher that Trump is comparable to Hitler, do they fail because they have a different poltical view to the teacher?!

- Those teachers in the USA would

I wonder if those students

What a significant percentage of the faculty is actively and deliberately doing on our campus is nothing short of sedition being accomplished on being accomplished on the California taxpayer's nickel. I say this without hyperbole: it is unadulterated treason.

A Bolshevik colleague across the hall has transformed her Macroeconomics class into Leninist indoctrination post-11/8. She was the ringleader in a student protest sit-in, a "down-with-whitey" occupy, if you will. Shortly thereafter there was a massive walk-out which created considerable local tension and unease as semi-literate and mindlessly angry undergrads flooded the surrounding streets and business district. Landed us in the news.

Ad Staff does less than zero about any of it.

The public employee ringleaders endorsing and promoting this dangerous and socially destructive activity should be terminated from continued employ, immediately.

They are in no way educators, in any sense of the term. They are New Age Jacobins.

Actually the proper response to a toddler that falls and cries is to give them attention, but not be feeling sorry for them and trying to pamper them (if a parent is bothered and wants to avoid their child ever getting hurt then they have their own things to work through rather than acting them out on the children). They aren't weak for crying, just as they aren't weak for sneezing, coughing, laughing, etc. They are all mechanisms for relieving various tensions in their organism. Crying is how they get through it and grow, to become fully functioning beings. Stuffing the tears is how they become broken people.

I wonder if there is a correlation between record number of women attending universities and this...

I'm sure there is, but I'd bet it's more of a symptom than a cause. Academia was cause. Academia was occupied by Marxist babyboomers avoiding Vietnam and now those same radicals are running the show. All this divisive cultural shit (race, gender, religion, sexuality, income equality, etc) is the fruit of subversive Marxist movements that have run their course. American individualism is the real public enemy to the collectivists. If they ever succeed all the SJWs will be sent off to the gulag and will finally have to work for a living.

Anyone who has ever had a toddler knows that when your little one falls down, often, they look to you before deciding whether they should cry or not.

I remember the first time I saw this for myself. I literally said to the kid, "So its true. You're doing the cry check thing." Needless to say the kid didnt cry. I was actually pretty surprised because it was somewhat of a nasty tumble. The kid just kind of confusedly wandered over to her mama as if to get confirmation on whether or not she was actually damaged.
