

The political future of anti-vaxers

(This is Part-9 in a series; for Part-8, click here.)

Here are words written by Toby Rogers, in his article, The Political Economy of Autism. I print them because they're real and true:

“Unfortunately, in the debate over toxicants that increase autism risk, all roads lead back to vaccines...Dr. Paul Thomas is the most successful doctor in the world at preventing autism. Data from his practice show: If zero vaccines, autism rate = 1 in 715...”

“The pharmaceutical industry also had a choice to make: improve their products or utilize their extensive capture of media and government to protect their existing toxic products. As everyone now knows, they chose to protect their existing toxic products...”

“So here’s where things stand. The vaccine paradigm has collapsed (and no, mRNA, DNA, and adenovirus vector vaccines are not going to save it). Pharma has piles of cash and extensive capture of the media, academia, and government. So they have the ability to do just about whatever they want. Fearing prosecution and seeking immense profits, Pharma has abandoned any pretense of science, consent, or health and pushed all in to set up a totalitarian state that will serve their interests.”

“But Pharma has harmed so many people—first with the childhood schedule and now with coronavirus vaccines—that there are now millions of people who have seen vaccine injury first-hand and are now fighting back with everything they’ve got. Various referred to as the medical freedom movement, the health choice movement, and/or the personal sovereignty movement, these brave citizens are taking on the most powerful industry in the world and fighting to save our country from Pharma totalitarianism. The fighting is so fierce because the stakes are enormous. We are fighting to preserve human life as we know it from the most predatory and corrupt industry in the world.”

—Millions of people out there know the truth about vaccines. The deadly truth.

Is there a political figure who can mobilize them and decimate the liars and the cover-up artists and change the landscape?

Someone who will bring ALL these millions of people and their determination to a white-hot focus?

Someone who will force a change?

Someone relentless enough?

Perhaps a Presidential candidate who will make vaccines THE ISSUE?

When you have a paradigm that is so corrupt it is destroying a country, you need someone who will go to the wall. Without compromise of any kind. Without maneuvering. Without concern for the usual niceties.

No candidate during the 2024 Presidential race has come close.

Don’t even try to talk to me about Kennedy.

We need someone new. With a new kind of language. With a presence that breaks through all the barriers and all conventional “styles of presentation.”

Because even though those “millions of people” know the deadly truth about vaccines, when it comes to politics many of them still cling to old habits.

They seem to want friendly and nice. They recoil from a public display of the very emotions they feel.

Some of them think we can actually UNIFY the nation around ..what?

With the entire mainstream media complex captured by Pharma, imagine the storms that networks would throw at any candidate who spoke the whole truth about vaccines and inspired huge numbers of people to support him.

That candidate would have to double down and triple down every day. To say things would get contentious is a vast understatement.

“If I can choose to vaccinate or not vaccinate my child, that’s enough for me”—this attitude would have to go out the window. It would be like saying, “I don’t mind war as long as the house that’s bombed is my neighbor’s and not mine.”

We need a Teddy Roosevelt who will gallop on to the scene and ride his horse to hell and back to win.

And we need those millions of people to throw off any traces of political correctness and woke bullshit and match this candidate’s passion with their own.

No pretense. No excuses. No nice-nice. No claim that going to all-out war against Pharma will “alienate the public.”

Of COURSE people will be alienated, and insulted and angered. We’re not talking about a fantasy bubble in Rainbow City.

Destroying children and adults with vaccines is mass murder and desecration. Raw evil. Do you think you fight that with the tempered voice of PBS?

Do you think you can support big government and fight a war against Pharma?

Do you think you can be a liberal or a RINO or a stuffed shirt conservative and fight a war against vaccines?

Do you think you can walk out on to the battlefield with a lollipop?

Do you think you can knock on the door to a room where there is blood on the floor and politely ask whether you can come in?

Do you think some massive middle-class gentle wave is going to sweep us to victory?

I haven't had any vaccines in over 50 years. I do not take big pharma drugs. I am over 74 and try to avoid the modern stone age medical mafia like the plague it is. Does this make me an anti-vaxer? I don't know and don't care except that I never want to put big pharma drugs into my body. They are all poisons to some extent.

All big pharma drugs interfere with your body's natural ability to cure itself and maintain your good health. I will never support any politician or political party or global entity to make my decisions for me. I reserved that right as a sovereign individual. My health is mine, not theirs to destroy.

Therein lies the problem. Your government supported by the politicians want us dead and gone. Otherwise the entire rat infested DC Swamp would have stood up and said NO to WHO and the UN as well as poison mRNA injections. Did they? Hardly. If you expect Trump or RFK to save you, your trust may be well misplaced I fear.

So it might come down to being forced into being injected with poison mRNA substances or not being able to live as you have. No injections = no way to live. You can die on their hill or fight back to your death on your hill. That is the problem...you end up dead either way and that is exactly what gates and the anti-human terrorists want.

It is more than just Pharma; it is Big Ag as well. The devastation a gazillion twinkies have brought to health which then feeds more Pharma multiplies the reality of the suck. There is a reason raw milk is so dangerous, and cow farts will kill us, and bird flu requires a chicken wipe out, and and and. Ag might even be worse than Pharma; it sets the subject that Pharma predicates. The ONLY way to fix all this is grass roots denial of service to both. If it can work for website haters, it can work for health and welfare lovers.

We have to spread the word every chance we get. It is the humanity-focused good news, the humanity-gospel. We could even stand up churches and get 501c3 status to support the effort. In fact, maybe churches that already pretend to care for their flocks could actually do so if they could be convinced at the pastoral level. That would require a Renaissance of religious thought; as is that even possible, or just oxymoron? People like Kirsch and others have looked at this problem as one that can be brute force beaten. Nope. It takes a Soros-minded plan and some time to overwhelm the entrenched Ag-Pharma mafia.
