Watch: Uvalde ISD Police Chief Breaks Silence

BY TYLER DURDEN

WEDNESDAY, JUN 01, 2022 - 10:56 AM

Update (1650ET): Uvalde Consolidated Independent School District Police Chief Pete Arredondo, who was the on-site commander for the mass shooting last week that left 21 people dead, has broken his silence over reports that he isn't communicating with state investigators.

'Just so everybody knows, we've been in contact with DPS every day,' Arredondo told CNN. "I've been in the hospital with them every day."

Arredondo, who was also in charge of the police response, told Arredondo said: "We're going to be respectful to the family," adding "We're going to do that everybody. Whenever this is done and the families get closed, then we'll do that obviously."

Uvalde chief of police Pedro "Pete" Arredondo has stopped responding to investigators - AFP

Arredondo's comments during last week's mass shooting that left 19 fourth-graders and two teachers dead, and has received harsh criticism for ordering officers not to breach the classroom and neutralize the 18-year-old gunman Salvador Ramos for over an hour because Arredondo "believed that it had transitioned from an active shooter to a barricaded subject" and that children were not at risk.

The Texas Tribune reports that Texas Rangers have attempted to continue talking to Arredondo, chief of police for the Uvalde Consolidated Independent School District, however he hasn't answered a request made three days ago for a follow-up interview, according to two spokespeople for DPS.

> The Uvalde Consolidated Independent School District's police department chief, Pete Arredondo, has stopped cooperating with the Texas Department of Public Safety Texas Rangers, DPS spokesperson Travis Considine said.
> Amid the turmoil, Texas' largest police union — the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas, or CLEAT — urged its members Tuesday in a statement to "cooperate fully" with investigations into the police response to the Uvalde massacre — though they didn't name Arredondo. - Texas Tribune

The news comes as Arredondo, 50, was quietly sworn in as a city council member Tuesday night after being elected earlier this month before the shooting.

AP/Dan C. Hulsey

"Out of respect for the families who buried their children today, and who are planning to bury their children in the next few days, no ceremony was held," said Uvalde Mayor Don McLaughlin in a statement obtained by ABC News Austin affiliate KVUE.

Tony Plohetski @tplohetski
BREAKING: Uvalde ISD Chief Pete Arredondo was officially sworn in as a city council member today. Mayor Don McLaughlin confirms in a statement. This comes hours after DPS said he is not responding to a request for a followup interview.
Statement from the Office of Uvalde Mayor Don McLaughlin on the Council Swearing-in and Dr. Arredondo Not Present
"I asked City Council members and council-member-elect Pete Arredondo to be present for the swearing-in ceremony today, but with all due respect to my friend, Pete Arredondo, he is not present.
His current decision to protect and not have the Texas Department of Public Safety Texas Rangers talk to him about the events of May 24th is his decision and his decision alone. I respect it. I respect my friend's decision to invoke his constitutional protections, and I support his right to do so.
We have all decided this same time last weekend (today), We appreciate the concern that Pete has for the citizens of Uvalde and for the safety of our community. I did not want to cause the citizens of Uvalde any more stress, and that begins with me. I am the mayor of Uvalde.
I love this city and I love its people."

"Our parents deserve answers and I trust the Texas Department of Public Safety/Texas Rangers will leave no stone unturned," the statement continues. "Our emotions are raw, our hearts are broken, and words are sometimes exchanged because of those emotions."

Meanwhile,

DPS has walked back a Friday statement that a teacher had propped open a door that's normally locked, allowing the shooter to gain entry to the campus. Now, according to The Associated Press, a spokesperson for the Texas Department of Public Safety, the teacher "removed the rock" used to prop the door open after hearing gunshots outside of the school. The teacher closed the door but it did not lock, according to the Associated Press.

> The reversal came hours after a lawyer representing the teacher told the San Antonio Express-News that the teacher closed the door before the shooter entered the building.
> "She remembers pushing the door closed while telling 911 that he was shooting," Don Feeney, the teacher's lawyer, told the Express-News. "She thought the door would lock because that door is always supposed to be locked."

"We did not rely on the closed the door. The door did not lock. We know that much and now investigators are looking into why it did not lock," said Considine after inaccurately viewed additional video footage released since Friday's claim.

"She came back out while on her phone, she heard someone yell, 'He has a gun!', she saw him jump the fence and that he had a gun, so she ran back inside," and removed the rock when she did, he added.

The Thugs in Blue have a gang mentality and get aggressive with innocent bystanders and unarmed protestors while wearing their riot gear and clubs. MAYBE 5% of them are heroes and can be counted on in a situation like this school shooting ... provided they haven't been ordered to stand down.
When seconds count, the police are at the doughnut shop talking about their pensions and the people they brutalized.

It might be worth also hardening the money for the 18 year old shooter, where did he get the cash for all his gear?

Did the shooter have ANY contact with psychologists, psychiatrist or social workers and who are they?

Yes...just where did an 18 year old, un-employed whack job get over $4000.00 for two rifles and ammo? This is a question which will never be answered, because that would tell us a lot about this particular incident. Who formed him. He money would explain a whole lot.

How is a local police chief allowed to simply "stop cooperating" with state law enforcement investigators?
If you or I or any other citizen "stopped cooperating" with state police, then we get cuffed, thrown in the back of a car, taken downtown and behind bars.
Beyond absurd.
Half Tab Cat 1 week ago (edited)
Jeeeez, perhaps the 18 year old didn't buy all that stuff, stockpile weapons and body armor even guns in him from people who had an interest in grooming him to go on a mass murdering spree. Who would benefit from such a thing? Take a wild guess.
The psychological traits were clearly visible: a mentally disturbed, sexually confused kid who dressed in women's clothing and threatened people on social media.
Granted, that's considering the shooting actually happened the way it's been presented to the public. There are still a lot of unanswered questions and strange anomalies which need to be accounted for, such as the unlocked door, the police chief's lack of transparency, the changing narrative, the manifesto, etc.
Apparently Biden has offered federal funds to demolish and rebuild the school just like Sandy Hook, meaning that they're trying to cover up something by destroying evidence.

Uvalde School District's Police Chief Has Stopped Cooperating with State Investigators
Via: Texas Tribune:
The official response to the mass shooting at an Uvalde elementary school — a response already marred by shifting narratives, finger-pointing and a general lack of timely and accurate information — took a further turn toward dysfunction on Tuesday.
The Texas Department of Public Safety said Uvalde school district's police chief, Pete Arredondo, who made the decision to wait for more resources rather than confront the gunman sooner, has stopped cooperating with state investigators and had not responded to requests for information for over two days. Arredondo contests the claim.

With all the shootings in America, don't you find it rather odd that the powers that shouldn't be are never the victims? Maybe it has something to do with Americans not once standing up to tyrannical leaders (of which there's been many) and the Nobody Knows Anything attitude that's rife in their fellow citizens. Sorry if you're offended. Maybe that's why the powers that shouldn't be keep doing what they do. After all, they know no one is going to stop them so why wouldn't they...

Just for a little historical background, "Free" masons were so called because they were allowed to collect "wages" for their work at building their "lodges" structures as opposed to being recruited / bludgeoned / enslaved as serfs, etc. in order to comply with their "benefactors" desires to construct "public works" projects.

As an aside, why was "Free", ifreed, "Flintstone", (a "mason" of sorts), chosen to be the name of a hard working docile benemoth of a boulder as the beloved character so many of my generation were to be weaned on? The Border Patrol SWAT team that eventually engaged with and killed the shooter — 45 minutes to an hour after the shots were reported — was not able to break down the door to the classroom because it was locked, according to police officials. A staff member had to unlock it with a key.
According to the visiting firsthand account of a fourth grader in the room, cops told children to yell "if you need help" when one little girl did, the gunman immediately shot her.

There are too many connections for this to be a random shooting.

1. There was an unnamed 14 year old arrested four years ago, in the same district, for writing up plans for a mass shooting when he turns 18.
2. Feds flying in with a plane that never previously landed nearby, 45 minutes before.
3. US Marshals were apparently on the scene because they had notified a mother that tried to run in and save her kids. Why were they there, and why didn't they help?
4. A crowd of police sat drinking water while parents begged them to go in.
5. A heavily armored a door open, supposedly while there was shooting outside the building. Was the shooting a signal to open the door?
6. The police claim that they've all had equipment for years but cold collectors would love to buy it.
7. Did I mention he had holographic sites? Not cheap. Who helped him secure the equipment?
8. He had 350 plus rounds (4 ammo) in a time where ammo is scarce and people are fighting over getting a post tone literally's empty.
9. The off-duty border patrol officer saved the day. Was Biden unarmed the border patrol to the after shooting event.
10. Police had an opportunity to kill the shooter between.
11. Police had an opportunity to film the guy going into the building, but did not have the ability to drop him.
12. Police had opportunity to simply enter the school and even appeared to be standing guard for certain children.
13. At least one teacher had a nose broken, but was not part of the action.
14. This shooting was immediately followed by a shooting in Virginia, another pro-gun state. Fortunately a good girl with a gun stopped that one.

This thing has a stench of a pre-planned deep state terror campaign all over it.

US Marshals should have had no jurisdiction to do anything.

Ammo is no longer scarce, at least not as of last weekend when I went to buy some. Also 350 rounds is really not a lot. That could fit in a shoe box with room for more.

I saw a flight tracker log of the federal drone the other day.

A few young kids at Parkland mentioned men in Spec Ops gear in the school. This disappeared down a memory hole. How do these young students like Sandy Hook, Parkland and Uvalde all say around 350 rounds of ammo and multiple guns? They never have one gun. Luggins around 100 rounds of ammo gets heavy and cumbersome even in 5 - 20 round mags. All of these kids were Rambo.

"We did verify she closed the door. The door did not lock. We know that much and now investigators are looking into why it did not lock," said Considine after investigators viewed additional video footage reviewed since Friday's claim.

"She came back out while on her phone, she heard someone yell, 'He has a gun!', she saw him jump the fence and that he had a gun, so she ran back inside," and removed the rock when she did, he added.

The only plausible explanation for the door not locking would be that it was swapping due to deterioration, dragging either the jamb or threshold so much that the closer couldn't completely close the door to where it would latch without someone there to pull it closed.

She saw the gunman, removed the rock to save her skin, but failed to alert the teachers in the classrooms near the end where the approaching unman because she didn't give a flying F?

Law enforcement officers are investigating whether a retired federal agent had about 50 assault rifle magazines in a white supremacist's plan to murder Black people at a Buffalo supermarket, two law enforcement officials told The Buffalo News.

Authorities believe the former agent – believed to be from Texas – was one of at least six individuals who regularly communicated with accused gunman Payton Gendron in an online chat room where racist hatred was discussed, the two official said.

The two law enforcement sources with direct knowledge of the investigation stated these individuals were invited by Gendron to read about his mass shooting plans and the target location about 30 minutes before Gendron killed 10 people at Tops Markets on Jefferson Avenue on May 14.

Federal authorities are investigating if the retired agent provided information to Gendron before he went on his shooting spree, the two law enforcement officials told The News.

In addition to law enforcement sources, two other individuals with knowledge of the mass shooting investigation have also confirmed that federal authorities are looking into the former agent's relationship to Gendron.

> ...the teacher 'removed the rock' used to prop the door open after hearing gunshots outside of the school. The teacher closed the door but it did not lock.

So, why is there a rock in the vicinity of the door at all? Because faculty routinely prop open the door to go outside for a smoke. Numerous faculty routinely prop open that door, but it's telling that the one who actually admitted to it also happens to be the only one who knew how to lock it? Well, I'm not buying this at all. If this lock didn't work it was disabled that morning or some known schmuckette to be malfunctioning for some time.

I think the shooter tried to arrive at lunchtime because his targets were to be the children changing classes/going to lunch from the four-teacher classroom buildings that were connected by sidewalks. That way he didn't need to break in. However, he failed to get there in time and had to change targets. It was dumb luck that one of the exterior doors was open, and dumb luck that the classroom doors were open.

Also, why was a military recon plane was flying over head.

This was another False Flag brought to you by a 3 letter agency.

The day of the Uvalde shooting, a US Army MC-12W recon plane left Fort Hood/Killeen at 10:15am CT. It approached the Uvalde area ~ 11:02 and flew over KUVA, entered a pattern at 11:16, & landed at 11:28. At 12:48pm, the plane took off and returned to Ft Hood.

The MC-12W is designed to intensify data collection operations through intelligence-collection capabilities in theatre, allowing real-time full-motion video and signals intelligence for battlefield decisions of military troop leaders.

Reports are that Ramos entered the school at 11:28am and was taken out at 12:50pm. Why would a military recon plane like this, that had never been to Uvalde, land and leave there within a few minutes of those same times? Did it drop someone off and/or pick someone up? Did they need to monitor or jam cell phone activity in the area, to ensure the narrative doesn't collapse under a toll with some video footage that shows a different set of facts?

Why would he cooperate? There are clearly no ramifications for not doing so and it's likely self-incrimination. And he's a POC so you don't want to be considered a racist by expecting him to do his job.

mmunnsmost · 1 week ago (edited)

Not defending this guy, it seems like the locals made the wrong decision and he was in charge. Frankly, a shooting at a school deserves a "storm the beaches" approach.

Nevertheless, we've read a lot of disinformation out of Uvalde this past week. The trans thing was proved wrong. The "heroic off duty special ops" Rambo baking out the shooter was wrong. The timeline was wrong. Lots was wrong.

This is America and that Chief is under tremendous pressure from everyone including himself. How do you look yourself in the mirror knowing what happened under your watch?

He probably (definitely) should have counsel and they're recommending that he take a step back and get his story right. The city is going to get sued. The school is going to get sued. The state might get sued. He might get personally sued.

In these "enlightened" times, LEO's are going to jail for doing their job. Derek Chauvin, no matter how repulsive one may view the videos, was doing his job. He didn't murder St. George Floyd. What Chauvin did was what he was trained to do. And the two officers with him who were doing crowd control, one who was board spanking new? They're in jail too.

If I'm a LEO today and the crap goes down with me there, you bet I may just claim right up because you cannot win now, the public is coming after you. And if it's not the public then it's the special interests. And if not the special interests it's our own federal government. They are unsafe at least. Not sure why anyone wants to be a LEO.

As they say in politics, "the people get the government they deserve". Well, we're getting the law enforcement we deserve now. Most are great people, some are cowards. All are potential defendants for doing their jobs.

Yeah, like send them to war. Feed them propaganda about sexuality starting in kindergarten. Protecting an education system that doesn't prepare them for the world (and doesn't care). Like conditioning them that the state will take care of them and that they're not responsible for their own actions. Like instilling the notion that because of their skin color they are a perpetual victim of racism or, for the opposite, they are inherently racist and bad. The list goes on and on.

LeoUofM8 · 1 week ago

I have respect for old school police that actually cared about their jobs. Those guys are long gone.

Modern police are merely thugs with a badge, preying on the public to generate revenue for their departments. When called on to risk themselves for public safety, they opt out, just like this event.

mmunnsmost · 1 week ago

Agree 100%, from what I have seen and read Chauvin was doing what he was trained to do. St. George died from fentanyl, a lifetime of body abuse, COVID-, and from stupidity. Chauvin is doing life in prison for doing what he was hired to do all to keep 13% of the population from looting Nike just again.

The old rock in the door trick. This was done in 1968 at the DNC convention that caused a FARE riot. You remember the ((Chicago)) "eight". They were protesting AGAINST war back then and the right to FREEDOM!!! and SPEACH. Both objects they are against at the moment. Jerry Rubin placed a rock in the door to prevent the door from closing and locking behind protesters in the peace section. Jerry Rubin long balded pal Dershowitz worked to have the SEAL Rubin's rock was picked up by Janet Yellnfoney of the Weathering Up boom squad and tossed at Mcgovern. That's when all hell broke loose and the riot got underway. The eight all got off the charges and went on to lead successful careers in various Federal agencies and Wall Street before retirement in tat air. The rock in the door with the faulty lock? Same old CIA trick used to get the FAKE killer in the back door. Was the teacher's union in on this op?

The fact that she ever propped the door open says all we need to know about her willingness to sabotage security hardware operation.

All Brandon needs to do is be his hero here, given all public schools receive federal funds, is to issue an EO criminalizing any tampering with security system components in schools and prohibit leaving classroom doors open (all classroom doors are always locked on the corridor side) when occupied.

All the physical security components required to have kept this massacre from happening were in place last Tuesday. Unfortunately they were either not being used or were defeated by school personnel.

Why does a school district in the middle of nowhere with 10 schools need a "police chief"?

Sounds like a political grift manned by an appointee who is, as is usual, a total incompetent.

Sparkles · 6 days ago

Probably because they were so close to the border and the city police were having multiple car chases per week as illegals stole cars around town and resulting in high speed chases. The mayor related this last year on CNN and was saying then that these multiple lock downs per week was making people complacent. Having armed police in the schools didn't seem to help the kids in this situation, though. The police were there and the shooter was in the room with kids for an hr& reactioned all over the place. Rich media can be horrible at how their rifle rounds can't they? But these things are always done after the fact.

TEOTFW Bruh 3 · 6 days ago (edited)

"Probably because they were so close to the border and the city police were having multiple car chases per week as illegals stole cars around town and resulting in high speed chases."

Only in the egotistically compressed mind of a disgruntled politician would that argument contain even a scintilla of rationality.

Sparkles · 6 days ago

In hindsight, sure, but it's part of the picture down there. Had the door lock worked at the school this may have turned out differently - MAY - but with 2 armed guards around, somewhere, and flames shooting up the Funeral Home for 12 minutes prior this is still a story of a community's failure to protect itself.

Almost all school districts have their own police, with their own uniforms, vehicles, radios ... and weapons.

Not where I live. They have a "school resource officer" that's just another police officer or sheriff's deputy. They're not even assigned to the school full-time. It's a rural area though, where the nearness of the bigger cities hasn't reached, yet.

Bobb DeKalb · 3 days ago

Yes, that's disappearing as time goes by though. At it takes is one incident.

I live south of LV. They have a giant school district. Their cops are school cops, but they're trained by and deputized by the consolidated metropolitan pol. They are armed and keep additional weapons in their vehicles. They have a rapid response team, aka SWAT unit too.

Ramos was domiciled with two senior citizens when he should have been an inpatient at a mental health facility

Who thought that two seniors could manage a belligerent and mentally unstable teen.

This should not have been allowed even if the grandparents requested it.

This has to stop.

Late teens through adulthood who cannot take care of themselves need separate residences or mental hospitals.

And as for the usual and customary alibi that there is no money in the budget, how did the budget come up with $40 billion in a matter of weeks for a foreign war that only benefits Sweatpies

The money is there but it has to be wrested from MIC parasites and given back to the society that produced the money in the first place.

This mess is as much the fault of the bugsheers as anyone else

I remember well the 1970s and the bright idea to close every mental hospital they could and spread the mentally ill out amongst the populace thru subsidized rent, home-pill medicines to drool a lot, and in-home visits from life coaches.

Mental hospitals were considered cruel and unusual confinement to the ill.

the shooter crashed his car in a ditch and then was firing at the funeral home across the street from the school for 10 minutes and no one at the school thought to lock the door.

- It should be a self-locking door, pretty much standard for all exterior doors at schools these days.
- Why didn't the school go into lockdown on the first report of shots being fired?
- Unable can't be so big that it took cops more than 10 minutes to turn up.

There are far too many questions that are not answered. The shooter should've had a dozen red flags coming out of his arse from what little we know, yet, still could buy guns. The background check didn't flag that cops had been called to his home a few times? I am sure there's a lot more here.

https://citizenfreepress.com/breaking/map-of-uvalde-shooting-why-did-a-teacher-prop-open-a-locked-school-door-before-the-massacre/

No one is asking how he was able to buy a brand new truck out of his earnings in a fast food restaurant, indeed no one is looking at his finances at all. So far so I can tell he didn't actually purchase the ammo.

Anyone who has tried buying ammo these days is usually limited to 2 boxes at a time.

This was a ritual sacrifice by the deep state - MK-ULTRA...

Everyone knew. SSRIs drugs + Paxil and Zoloft?

Indeed, since the FBI is under the effective control of the Correa Group, who probably recruited Ramos, they would in practice be investigating themselves.

My provisional analysis is that a door was left open to allow Ramos access to the kids, that the police delayed entering the classroom in order to allow Ramos as much time as possible to kill as many kids as possible.

then some other teachers directed the shooter to a classroom.

then the teachers barricaded the school and told the police to stay out.

then the police bravely attempted to enter the school by knocking repeatedly and shouting "please let us inside — we are receiving calls from children being shot at"

for 90 minutes, the teachers held the police at bay, telling them to "go back to your station" and "leave us alone"

love to all, the police chief (now known as Biggum Square because chief + rayism)

Uh.

I don't know if some of that is sarc or not.

If not. A little different than the police were "scared". Or didn't do anything.

The whole thing is bizarre as sheet. Typical weirdness.

"Turn in your guns. Please." To be followed by. "Now!"

Next!

Parents, when your children are at risk, don't wait on the police, grab that shotgun or rifle off the gun rack and go save your kids, or wait for the police and bury your kids.

these are your only two choices.

sorry dude, if my kid were there, "tried" don't cut it.

the day is coming when some parents start exercising their 2nd amendment rights in order to save their kids. And well they should.

besides fckin pussy cops have shown over and over guns scare them shitless. They will just get back in their cars and head to the donut shop.

Having said that, I do understand cops would much rather shoot me in the back, while I try to save my kids, than get in themselves and face down the 'active shooter'. It's a simple choice, they can shoot me in the back and still live to collect a pension.

However, The sheer absurdity of this entire shooting is making me consider that it's a complete hoax. Anyone consider the sheer size and weight of over 1000 rounds of ammunition the shooter supposedly had?

You're wondering why it took an hour to take down the shooter? Well, there's the guy who made THAT decision. And it doesn't seem he's all that bright.

And what's with the school district having a "chief of police"? Sure did them no good in the end, did it. R.I.P. to all those innocent souls sacrificed so Joe Biden'Em could took "tough on guns".

For me it was a planned stand down. Nothing adds up. The timeline is not credible, neither is a part time burger flipper capable of spending $5-6 on top tier rifles and 800 rounds 5.56 NATO, not to mention the over old pickup truck he crashed.

Cui bono? First in my mind is the Deep State - using a horrific shooting to fuel serious gun control. Then China and the Cartels have an interest in a disarmed America as well.

It wasn't incompetence, cowardace or fear. It was planned.

What, exactly, is the story here?

The council member does not want to speak anymore - who blames him for that aspect? He should be run out on a rail for ordering a stand down and the officers who obeyed those orders should be tried for gross negligence leading to death of minors.

More ties to cover up previous lies. Townshirk all know who the teacher is and they're trying to protect her. It's not her fault, it's the door's lock malfunctioning that one time. Oh then...why were the classroom doors opened and unlocked allowing him to stroll into the classroom(s)...and lock himself in with the kids and teachers?

Reply

Ms. Re. THOMAS 1 week ago

The door sounds like a flimsy POS with huge window. He shot thought the glass and totaled them all within four minutes. No real barricade has been substantiated whatsoever. There were also two entrances to split room.

Reply

Anonymous Sources 1 week ago

The doors opened outward to the hallway and were in steel reinforced frames. One thin wire meshed window.

Reply

Ms. Re. THOMAS 1 week ago

That does sound like it might take a minute but surely he could shoot through that glass, had plenty enough bullets. That type of door doesn't stay stand up to hammers longer but not bullets. Unless it's bullet proof glass. If he can reach from window to door hands it's probably good enough.

Reply

Nathan Stacksteel 1 week ago (Edited)

I think you just described the story.

Reply

Ms. Re. THOMAS 1 week ago

I bet his barricade was simply closing locked doors, which is not a barricade, especially when one has window knocked out.

He was probably never there at all. All we got was an ever changing narrative.

You'd think since they did a drill for an active shooter at the local Uvalde high school recently, doors would be secure?

"The school district has its own police department made up of four officers, a police chief and a detective. According to the school's website, the district has also hired a security guard.

The district's policy is to have security staff patrol door entrances, parking lots, and the perimeters of campuses at the middle and high school, according to a document listing the school district's security measures from the 2018-20 school year.

It is unclear if Uvalde CISD typically stations its police officers at the elementary school campus..."

The 2018-2020 Uvalde ISD list of preventative security measures stated the district's high school utilized a security vestibule and outside door buzz-in system. It also stated teachers are instructed to keep their classroom doors closed and locked at all times...

The TEA released a list of recommended actions it wanted Texas school districts to address before the start of the 2018-19 school year, including the option to train select school employees to be armed school marshals.

There are currently 62 school districts using trained school marshals and 208 active school marshals across the state. The number of marshals in each district is confidential, according to data provided by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement."

Well, it's pretty clear what is going on when you see the video of the 2 cops that watch the armed shooter walk straight up to the 1 door that was connected to the left open for him. Kind of incredible that he would guess a single door was open for him while the school was on lock down, right? And 2 cops just happened to be there to guard the door for him so he could get in.

Maybe it has something to do with Americans not once standing up to tyrannical leaders (of which there's been many) in their entire history. Maybe that's why the powers that shouldn't be keep doing what they do. As no one is going to stop them, why wouldn't they...

If the Police were not going in then the Sheriff and Deputies should have. The kids might not all be buried for months so the Mayor will use that excuse to with hold information. The families deserve to know NOW!
