4 Fan Speeds

Want to control your unit manually? The 5500-2 has you covered. With 4 settings you can manually set the speed to exactly what you want. So show the particles in your air whose boss by choosing between Low, Medium, High, and Turbo.

Smart Sensors & Auto Mode

Utilizing our Smart Sensors the 5500-2 consistently monitors the air around it. The LED indicator displays the quality on a scale of good to poor (1-3). When the unit senses the quality change, it automatically adjusts the speed at which it's running to equalize the pollutants and create clean, pure, air.

LED Auto Dim Feature

With the end user in mind our engineers had a great thought; why do the LED lights remain bright even when it's dark? With that thought in mind we created the auto dim feature; which senses the amount of ambient light in the room, allowing the unit to adjust the brightness of the display.

Filter Replacement Indicator

Worried you might forget when your filter needs to be changed? Fret not. The 5500-2 will let you know when it's time. The control panel will display an LED alert until the filter is changed. On average the (CD)Carbon Pre-Filter needs to be changed every 6 months and the True HEPA Filter needs to be changed every year.

Question: Difference between 5300-2 and 5500-2?

Answer: I purchased the 5300-2 not the 5500-2. The major difference I noted was the 5500-2 having a remote. We didn't need a remote model.

Question: What's washable? the carbon filter? the hepa filter? winix's description and site are completely lacking in details.

Answer: A carbon filter can not be usefully washed. Carbon chemically bonds loosely with various (airborne) chemicals. Water will not wash off these bonded chemicals. If the carbon filter frame is 100% metal, (and not coated by some toxic plastic), theoretically the carbon could be reactivated by baking off the attached chemic... see more

Question: What is the negative ion output?

Answer: The Winix does not produce ozone. Negative ions does not automatically equate to ozone. It's simply a molecule with an extra electron. This negative charge is attracted to positively charged molecules, potentially dust and other airborne particles. Once combined, the particles are more likely to fall out of the air... see more

Question: Anyone find cheaper filter replacement yet? There are plenty for the 5500 but not the 5500-2.

Answer: Yes but the Hepa already stinks after just 3 months and the charcoal one is just some kind of fibers woven together gone through 4 of them in 3 months. I'm getting the real ones from now on.

Best Bang For Your Buck

Verified Purchase

I've been looking for a new air purifier for almost a year now, doing research here and there trying to find a unit that meets all the requirements I'm looking for. I need a unit that's for a larger room, has an auto feature, has good priced replacement filters, and looks good to match my home decor. A recent 80,000 acre fire hastened my research due to the thick blanket of smoke that blanketed the area (and still is) every morning. With all things considered, the Winix 5500-2 met all my requirements.

The unit arrived promptly and unpackaging was an ease. I literally had it set up and running in about 5 minutes. The body is a hard, matte black plastic that feels sturdy and durable. The front panel is easy to remove, and secures to the unit via a clever magnetic clasp that is secure, yet simple to remove to access your prefilter for bi weekly cleaning and hepa/carbon filter replacement. There are 3 filters in total, and they fit snugly inside the filter chamber, and are secured in with the prefilter that snaps firmly into place. The control panel at the top is intuitive and user friendly. The buttons are clearly marked and visual cues explain what each button does taking out any guesswork as to what they do. A stylish indicator light bar runs along the bottom of the control panel indicating the level of air cleanliness with a 3 color scheme...green for clean, orange

It works. Eczema cleared up, allergies cleared up...no more glitter in the air on sunny days!

We live in a wood house. Zero carpet. 7 humans, 3 dogs, 3 cats. There are no words to describe the amount of hair and dust that I battle on a daily basis. I pretty much gave up. Started researching air purifiers.... Lots to learn about them. Anyway, settled on 1 and got it. It's been 4 days and we are simply amazed. Baby hasn't had a runny nose in 2 days and he has had a runny nose since he was born. He has eczema, which is pretty much controlled by the diapers and wipes we use, but he still has a small rash that never completely goes away. It's gone. My nose hasn't been an issue in 2 days and none of us have been coughing. We all coughed, all the time

Not sure if it is removing much of the air-borne dusts in the bedroom, as I still see the dusts blown and floating in the room.
I still see the rather large fiber dust floating in the bedroom where I had put in this purifier. The 1st set (plastic mesh) of 3-step filters doesn't get enough dust caught on it. Read more

The dust.

It's gone too. Dusting twice a day still didn't help before. It's simply not there. In addition to a wood house, one end of the house is all glass....so even after I dusted there was always "glitter in the air" as my toddler called it. It's gone as well.

It might be all in my head, but I swear my mood and energy are better too. (Could be because the house smells clean, or it could be in my head, either way, I consider this a win!) If you have any issue with this kind

Great for my allergies.

As a Safety Engineer, I know how important it is to keep the air in your house clean. We breath 20.9% oxygen, 78% nitrogen and the rest is just "other stuff." That being said, a HEPA filter is the only way to go when trying to mitigate the junk we breath. This not only has a HEPA filter, but also a carbon filter, and even a third filter/screen just to keep the other filters clean from debris; meaning if something nasty is in your air, this will take it out. Once the air flows through the filters, it is redistributed cleanly through the vent on top of the unit. What I really like is that you can adjust the fan speed to four different speeds (low to high), and you even have a sleep mode to shut off the lighting and drops the db lv to almost nothing. Even with the fan on high, I don't find the noise all that loud.

The coolest feature about this purifier is the three light system. If you put this unit on automatic mode, the fans will adjust themselves automatically depending on how dirty the air is. For example, if I vacuume near this, the red light comes on indicating that there is a high concentration particulates in the air, so it will automatically turn the unit on high, but if there is a low about, it turns orange. The fan will lower to a medium rate, but if the air quality is good, it stays blue. This also happens when the dog walks and/or stirs in front of it.

The plasma wave technology can also be turned off with a push of a button. I was first concerned of ozone, but what this unit puts off is far below what the EPA recommends for this type of unit. It also comes with a remote which is very handy, and not to mention, it really looks nice.
