Youth Blood Harvesting: Another 'Conspiracy Theory' Vindicated as Fact

TDS BY TDS
TUESDAY, JAN 07, 2021 - 6:15

by Ben Bartee via The Daily Bell

Heavens to Betsy! The "far right" conspiracy theorist prophets are vindicated again.

No longer "conspiracy theory," youth blood-sucking is official "fact" because the gatekeeping corporate media now acknowledges it.

Biomedical entrepreneurs, in fact, are already cashing in:

> "In 2016, a US start-up called Ambrosia that was offering teenage blood transfusions for $8,000 a pop shut down after the FDA said it was illegal."

Gates, the quintessential robber baron monopolist that is a non-threatening Mr. Rogers (what), knows nothing more than cornering the market on a valuable new biomedical commodity.

Why is corporate media mainstreaming anti-aging blood transfusions now?

Previously, news of the elite-funded research into blood transfusions as the Fountain of Youth was relegated to the less easily-dismissed fringes of journalism, "Newsletter" outlets, in their own antiseptems, wouldn't touch it.

Now the game is out of the bottle. Corporate media like the Telegraph have made the editorial decision that it makes sense to mainstream the ideas that were once, although not altogether hidden, definitely outside of the purview of the public consciousness.

Exposing such research to public inquiry and debate before the time was right might have raised serious political obstacles and threatened its development.

Remember back in the George W Bush days when stem cells were an issue of ethical contention? Look how far the contested ground has shifted.

This is called "moving the Overton Window" – shifting the bounds of consensus-driven discourse to allow for the acceptance of ideas that were previously unthinkable outside the pithy of stirring enough alarm bells to cause the herd pet peeps. Perfect it introduces these concepts on a controlled timeline.

The Telegraph piece gives away this rhetorical game in the last paragraph:

> "It may only be a few years before 'youth transplants' move finally from the pages of gothic horror novels into the clinic. Whether patients will feel squeamish about vampire procedures remains to be seen."

Now that hiding this type of research from public inquiry won't be logistically feasible much longer as it's installed at larger scale, the job becomes to get people used to it.

The same corporate media now reporting on the blood harvesting phenomenon has long painted it as "conspiracy theory."

And not just "conspiracy theory," but the worst of all: "anti-[semitic]-conspiracy theory," which they likened to the historical blood libel.

The bottom-line takeaway here is that "conspiracy theories," once again — as was the case with lab-engineered coronaviruses to instantiate a global biomedical technocracy – weren't wrong; they were ahead of their time.

Find the corporate media dogma screens reporting inconvenient stories they're not ready to publicly digest. Then wait for they sunlight deny them and label journalists who discuss them "conspiracy theorists."

Then, when they can't deny anymore, they obfuscate to conceal the true agenda by positing other, purer, philanthropic motives.

In this case, the philanthropic motive offered to justify blood harvesting of the global poor for elite benefit is preventing chronic diseases like Parkinson's:

> "In the future, I hope we'll find more ways to harness substances in our blood to reduce inflammation and promote healing... [But] we will eventually allow us to do a better job of attacking the proteins that have been implicated in Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and other neurodegenerative diseases."
> -Will Gates Notes

That promise might prove true. It further, if the elite get their way, you're never going to benefit from such research. You'll always belong to the donor class, the experimentation upon – never the beneficiary.

Transhumanism is an antihumanity tiny proportion of the population transcending its humanity by merging with tech while experimenting on the useless eaters and, when they're done harvesting the remainder, it is the future the likes of Klaus Schwab envisions. Forum envisions.

We, the non-elites, are the unwitting clinical trial participants (which, without proper informed consent, is a Nuremberg human rights crime). Lab rats on a prison planet.

Time will corroborate what the truth. And more "conspiracy theorists" will be vindicated in the interim.

While in London, England promoting his latest role in Daddy's Home 2, Gibson described entertainment industry elites as an "enemy to mankind" who "feast on the blood of innocent children."He said key players in the movie business "get their kicks from destroying the sanctuary of children" as they "thrive on breaking every God-given taboo known to man."

"They have a blatant disregard for the proof of the people "Destroying the innocence of a child is the ultimate taboo," he said. "The younger the better the thrill."Children a just sustenance to them."They feature the pain and fear, and the younger, the better." "These people follow their own religion and use it for moral guidance."It's not the sort of religious teachings you folks would ever hear about."They perform sacred rituals that are sick and totally at odds with the moral fabric that binds most patriotic Americans,"The worst part: It's an open secret in Hollywood and everyone wants in on it."

Federal police force eager to bash skulls and enforce the leftis doctrine. Military thinned by sending all conservative-minded military men to the pacific to die with our carriers and replaced with leftist fool soldiers eager to take out extremism at home. For evil to exist there has to be a non-evil standard for comparison. Everyone can see that the universe is constructed non-evil. Evil is an invader. Jesus is the cure to evil - one person at a time. Get with Jesus or be consumed by evil. Your choice. The time is growing short.

WEF's "Plan B" has morphed into "Plan A" and that new plan is this:

1. Continue the mandated Jabs, now forced upon the Elderly, until, HIV infected, generally infected and anyone with Russian Blood.

2. After the culling is complete, herd the remaining few YOUNG WHITE MEN into Blood-letting detention centers, with two needles used for feeding, and one for blood withdrawal.

3. Cleanse that blood at the Bill Gates Institute for Corpsucle research and Decontamination final staging and then move that fluid into Sterile Transfusion bags.

The blood infusions will occur at the Jeff Epstein Rape Research center, located off shore for tax purposes.

The actual adrenochrome conspiracy theory is a lot more gruesome and macabre than this.

This theory holds that the best material for transfusing is the adrenochrome, or adrenaline-related compound, that is released into the blood of a terrified victim. The victim's lives are sacrificed in the accounts I've read, usually in ritualistic fashion.

You can bet the stuff that 'works' on rats and mice will be used on humans no matter how illegal or unethical it is.

Astounding article. Now that we now know that they want your baby's blood, think about some other things that have been happening on a regular basis lately. All the food plant burnings, all the critical product factory burnings, all the food recalls. We all know that the one and only Bill Gates has artificial meat ambitions to create his control. He has hundreds of thousands of US acreage under his control, he has the us industry under his influence. Just some food for thought. If you put a turd in a pail of water and put a hose in the pail and turn on the water tap, that turd will float to the top of the bucket. Put 2+2 together. As far as the food recalls go, what's really happening to all that food surrendered? Is it really being destroyed, or is it really being redistributed?

Oh, and btw, I hear that that artificial meat tastes like s#t. I hear a guy tried it on his day job and the dog refused to eat it. Listen to man's best friend. They are connoisseurs when it comes to meat. They are essentially predators by nature.

Well, personally, I don't trust a Dog's judgement. They're known for, we must put it delicately, recycling used food. Also, they have a fondness for sweets equal to humans. Some decomposition bacteria actually produce sugar, making the rotten meat sweet. When I have questions about the quality of meat, I ask the Cat. Cats literally loot the tastebud receptor for sugars millions of years ago.

Think it was the Jews who started the vampire wave back in the 70s - Haemic Carribean was talking blood from Nicaraguans and Haitian refugees. CIA covered for them and the Somoza's and Tio Tio Macoute leader wound up in Miami. Think the Haitian worked in a school or something. CIA Warlock division always fucking up....

Should trace who was involved back then and you might find where the Adrenochrome is coming from. Nasty shit I think you can get better effects from synthetic hallucinogens. Still don't worshipper gotta worship.....

My suggestion Miami. Trump and Epstein would leave.

Miami is Broward county, Debbie WASSERMAN-Hochuhz and her demonic network have a stranglehold there. That is where the Haitian UN ambassador? (Can't remember) who was to testify against Hillary , flew there, then amscrayed

No, Miami is Dade county. Ft Lauderdale is in Broward county, the next county north of Dade.

This reminds me of something I read about that happened many centuries ago.

What was the name of that evil Eastern European female of royal blood who liked to soak and bathe in the blood of innocent young virgin girls that she had murdered because it was great for hair and complexion ?

She ended up being placed in solitary confinement in a tower for the rest of her life for her crimes

Does anyone remember her name ?

Notice the sensationalism, politicization... but also...

a) Donor transplants from organ donors could solve (treat) the hartwig body problems- neurology.

b) Families have closely similar DNA, oftentimes, can aid the neurologically disabled in their own tissue/lines or CSF lines if you will).

c) Cloning CSF is an industry waiting to happen.

d) I bet this would cure tinnitus, and would be proof of concept also for mental disorders, and iatrogenic neurological disabilities.

Now, why am I self banned Dianmid? What happens when one is horribly disabled neurologically in a way only careless doctors can, immobilizing the body functionally?

They start thinking... Real Hard. And look for solutions. Been looking since 1980.

This looks good.

Edit: Which yields more body fluids for transplant- three week or three month old Wasted? (In keeping with the conspiracy aspect of the article, I've sensed this vampire-like hunger for fetal delayed abortion for some years) It is ugly.

They really like treating us like we're imbeciles, don't they? Most people would do anything, ANYTHING, for the chance to live as long as possible, and any "patient" signing up for this service will have already demonstrated they don't give a wet slap about anything but themselves just by doing so.

Just from a personal perspective, I have to point out that reincarnation is a LOT more pleasant than keeping one body and all its memories for more than sixty years. There is just too much if you never get a chance to dump the redundant and trivial files and start over. One continuous lifetime is far more limiting than several shorter lives, especially if the age of majority is moved back to around 13 where it should be considering biological maturity. New lives provide new opportunities, new faces and the chance to move around without going the long way. I've had friends and family in this life who have gone on to new lives in Ireland, Prague, Scotland, Wales, and France (yes, the people of European extraction are going back to our ancestral homes), all without the bother of a plane ticket or a passport. I have also had a chance to deal with the absolute NEED to pick up everything and radically change my life about once every 20 years. I'll adult years in any location is QUITE enough!

People who want to live forever are morally and spiritually sick, unable to embrace the Unknown.

Death provides Spiritual renewal. The Spirit brings a new Vessel to enjoy new life it has, and thus, reincarnation is for the Spirit not for Vessels, they get one per customer.

Reply

Shofar 1 hour ago

The memories do indeed become burdensome and limiting with advancement age. There are some strait jackets imposed by societies, cultures, and physiological conditions that cannot be shed without shedding the body. There are also mental/emotional conditions, such as trauma and sorrow, that go right down to the marrow of the physiology. Life can only be renewed through death.

From another standpoint, life is in essence a reproductive cycle. Its completion terminates the biological usefulness of the vehicle, and probably also largely terminates its experiential usefulness. Much of the spiritual development of this plane of existence is centered on comprehending/mirroring the Creator through the experience of being a co-creator.

...Transhumanism is an infinitesimally tiny proportion of the population attempting to achieve immortality by merging with their white supremacist computer overlords and, when they're done, exterminating the remainder...

That is exactly the premise of this old 1963 sci-fi flick, except man has become inferior and that is the reason for transhumanism. It is entertaining enough to watch, but you can skip to the last five minutes which contains the plot...(Scientist Dr. Raven has developed a technique called a "metatronic reduction ray" which can shrink any object placed within it. Having deceased human into a robotic replica of that person...* As Dr. Raven describes the operation, "We draw off everything that makes a man peculiar to himself. He loses his memory; these, inter-reacting, constitute his personality, his philosophy, capability and attitude. The human brain is merely the vault in which the man is stored." With the help of Dr. Raven, the humanoids are secretly replacing humans who recently died with these replicas.)

I remember reading about this in a book a few years ago...they were having problems with not only society and the pushback, but the "tech" as well....the human body does not like things to be forced into it, especially biological things which have a different origin.

Maybe they will resolve this bio issue maybe not...maybe humanity will decide that enough is enough at some stage and this degenerate "science" should stop.

Youth does not last forever. Young people become old people.

There is nothing wrong with this if the 'youth' can earn money and are old enough decide for themselves if they want to give up a small amount of something their bodies will replace automatically via young genes. Eventually, medical science, if it were free (but isn't), will find a way to turn back on the genetic clocks within our bodies that shut down as we age. Our genes use us to reproduce themselves - not to keep us alive forever.
