Re: your March 4 article, "Jet contrails spur ecological fears":

I have been observing the chemtrail spray program since the end of 1999, when spraying first began in Washington state (spraying began earlier in California), where I observed chemtrail activity for six years. In 2006, I began observing chemtrail activity in Southern California. Since 2009, I have taken photos of chemtrail spray activity over Ventura County. All 166 pages (so far) of chemtrails can be viewed on my Webshots album at <http://outdoors.webshots.com/album/569521832jLreYV> .

I am far from alone in my view that these miles-long, expanding trails, which sometimes are switched off and on (just watch to see that wispy cloud effect), and which then become what we call "chemclouds," are the action of the chemtrail spray program, a global program.

Many have written to our local, state and national representatives, NOAA, ecology, weather departments, universities and military, and many who are supposed to be representing us. Our numerous inquiries have seldom been addressed.

The difference between jet aircraft with their normal short, quickly dissipating, comet-like contrails, and the chemtrail spray planes, spewing out miles-long trails can easily be observed. There are several days during the year in which the spray planes are spraying elsewhere and in which chemclouds sprayed elsewhere have not blown into an area and only normal air traffic can be seen. Anyone looking at the sky then might ask: There are absolutely no contrails in the sky today. Has all air traffic been grounded?

They might well ask: Why are there a number of days when not a single so-called contrail can be observed, and other days when the sky is absolutely jammed-packed full of these "contrails" crisscrossing in every direction, often showing giant X-marks, with aircraft at times clearly being seen making turns?

Here's to looking up!

In response to Ellyn Sutton comments posted on March 7 in regards to the article about "Jet Contrails spur ecological fears" which, by the way, I can not find archived on March 4, 2011.... I looked at your site where you posted your pictures of the Chemical aerosol spraying and I am very interested in contacting you. I do live in Simi Valley and take pictures of these sprays on a daily basis. I am very frustrated with all the mis-information being intentionally reported by uninformed people as to confuse or cover-up what is going really going on. I have not read this article as it has been removed from the VC Star achieves - but my friend told me about it and from what I have heard it is totally absurd...claiming passenger airlines are creating this poison...obviously the writer of this article did no true research...If he/she did the first fact they would have realized was the the altitude and flight patterns of these aerosol sprays are only accessed and by military aircraft...Anyway, I am interested in getting involved with local people and if you would like to also put your photo's to action in getting the truth out there...please contact me at robyn.anzo@gmail.com. Thanks for Caring Robyn

To Soulsecretsservice - Yes there are many of us concerned people - WHO SEE what is going on - and want the TRUTH. Taking pictures ( I do to) isn't cutting it - we need to get invloved in a more active way. I am taking the first step - maybe you would like to also: First Meet Up Group - Monday May 23, Unurban Cafe, 7:00pm, Santa Monica, California. Michael Irving, the Producer of "What in the World Are They Spraying Up there" will be there. If you can make it, bring as many interested friends as possible. This is the first meeting, with hopefully many to come. Bring your idea's and join people who also want to make a difference.
