18 Reasons I Won't Be Getting a COVID Vaccine

A few friends have asked my thoughts on the COVID jab(s) so I thought it was time to write an article on the topic.

Knowing how contentious this issue is, part of me would rather just write about something else. But I believe the discussion/news is so one-sided that I should speak up.

As I always strive to do, I promise to do my best to be level-headed and non-hysterical.

I'm not here to pick a fight with anyone, just to walk you through some of what I've read, my lingering questions and explain why I can't make sense of these COVID vaccines.

Three ground rules for discussion:

If you care to engage on this topic with me, excellent. Here are the rules. I am more than happy to correspond with you if:

- You are respectful and treat me the way you would want to be treated.
- You ask genuinely thoughtful questions about what makes sense to you.
- You make your points using sound logic and don't hide behind links or the word "science."

If you do respond, and you break any of those rules, your comments will be ignored/deleted.

With that out of the way, let me say this: I don't know everything, but so far no one has been able to answer the objections below. So here are the reasons I'm opting out of the COVID vaccine:

1. Vaccine makers are immune from liability

The only industry in the world that bears no liability for injuries or deaths resulting from their products are vaccine makers.

As first established in 1986 with the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act, and reinforced by the Public Readiness and Emergency Preparedness \(PREP\) Act, vaccine makers cannot be

The COVID vaccine makers are allowed to create a one-size-fits-all product, with no testing on sub-populations (i.e. people with specific health conditions), and yet they are unwilling to accept any responsibility for any adverse events or deaths their products cause.

If a company is not willing to stand behind its product as safe, especially one rushed to market, I am not willing to take a chance on that product.

No liability. No trust. Here's why ...

2. The checkered past of vaccine companies

The four major companies who are making COVID vaccines are/have either:

- Never brought a vaccine to market before COVID (Moderna and Johnson & Johnson).
- Are serial felons (Pfizer, and AstraZeneca).
- Are both (Johnson & Johnson).

Moderna had been trying to “Modernize our RNA” (thus the company name) for years, but had never successfully brought any product to market. How nice for the company to get a major cash infusion from the government to keep trying.

In fact, all major vaccine makers (save Moderna) have paid out tens of billions of dollars in damages for other products they brought to market when they knew those products would cause injuries and death — see Vioxx, Bextra, Celebrex, Thalidomide and opioids as a few examples.

If drug companies willfully choose to put harmful products in the market — when they can be sued — why would we trust any product where they have no liability?

Three of the four COVID vaccine makers have been sued for products they brought to market even though they knew injuries and deaths would result.

- Pfizer has the distinction of the biggest criminal payout in history. The company lost so many lawsuits it's hard to count. You can check out its rap sheet here. Maybe that's why Pfizer is demanding that countries where they don't have liability protection put up collateral to cover vaccine-injury lawsuits.
- AstraZeneca has similarly lost so many lawsuits it's hard to count. Here's one. Here's another...you get the point. And in case you missed it, the company had its COVID vaccine suspended in at least 18 countries over concerns of blood clots, and it completely botched its meeting with the FDA with numbers from their study that didn't match.
- Oh, and apparently Johnson & Johnson (whose vaccine was granted Emergency Use Authorization in the U.S.) and AstraZenca (whose vaccine is not approved in the U.S.), had a little mix up in their ingredients ... in 15 million doses. Oops.

Given the free pass from liability, and the checkered past of these companies, why would we assume that all their vaccines are safe and made completely above board?

Where else in life would we trust someone with that kind of reputation?

To me that makes as much sense as expecting a remorseless, abusive unfaithful lover to become a different person because a judge said deep down they are a good person.

No. I don't trust them. No liability. No trust. Here's another reason why I don't trust them ...

3. Ugly history of attempts to make coronavirus vaccines

There have been many attempts to make viral vaccines in the past that ended in utter failure — which is why we did not have a coronavirus vaccine in 2020.

In the 1960s, scientists attempted to make an RSV (respiratory syncytial virus) vaccine for infants. In that study, they skipped animal trials because the trials weren't required then.

In the end, the vaccinated infants got much sicker than the unvaccinated infants when exposed to the virus in nature, with 80% of the vaccinated infants requiring hospitalization. Two of them died.

After 2000, scientists made many attempts to create coronavirus vaccines. For the past 20 years, all ended in failure because the animals in the clinical trials got very sick and many died, just like the children in the 1960s.

You can read a summary of this history/science here. Or if you want to read the individual studies you can check out these links:

- In 2004, attempted vaccine produced hepatitis in ferrets.
- In 2005, mice and civets became sick and more susceptible to coronaviruses after being vaccinated.
- In 2012, the ferrets became sick and died. And in this study, mice and ferrets developed lung disease.
- In 2016, this study also produced lung disease in mice.

The typical pattern in the studies referenced above is that the children and the animals produced beautiful antibody responses after being vaccinated. The manufacturers thought they hit the jackpot.

The problem came when the children and animals were exposed to the wild version of the virus.

When that happened, an unexplained phenomenon called antibody dependent enhancement, also known as vaccine enhanced disease, occurred where the immune system produced a "cytokine storm" (i.e. overwhelmingly attacked the body) and the children/animals died.

Here's the lingering issue: The vaccine makers have no data to suggest their rushed vaccines have overcome that problem.

In other words, never before has any attempt to make a coronavirus vaccine been successful, nor has the gene-therapy technology in mRNA "vaccines" been safely brought to market.

We might assume that because the companies received billions of dollars in government funding, they must have figured out that problem.

Except they don't know if they have ...

4. The 'data gaps' submitted to FDA by vaccine makers

When vaccine makers submitted their papers to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for the Emergency Use Authorization (which is not the same as a full FDA approval), among the many "data gaps" they reported was that they have nothing in their trials to suggest they overcame that pesky problem of vaccine enhanced disease.

They simply don't know if the vaccines they've made will also produce the same cytokine storm (and deaths) as previous attempts at such products.

As Dr. Joseph Mercola points out ...

"Previous attempts to develop an mRNA-based drug using lipid nanoparticles failed and had to be abandoned because when the dose was too low, the drug had no effect, and when dosed too high, the drug became too toxic. An obvious question is: What has changed that now makes this technology safe enough for mass use?"

If that's not alarming enough, here are other gaps in the data — in other words, there is no data to suggest safety or efficacy regarding:

- Anyone younger than age 18 or older than age 55.
- Pregnant or lactating mothers.
- Autoimmune conditions.

- Immunocompromised individuals.
- No data on transmission of COVID.
- No data on preventing mortality from COVID.
- No data on duration of protection from COVID.

In case you think I'm making this up, or want to see the actual documents sent to the FDA by Pfizer and Moderna for their Emergency Use Authorization, you can check out this, or this respectively. The data gaps can be found starting with page 46 and 48 respectively.

For now let's turn our eyes to the raw data the vaccine makers used to submit for emergency use authorization ...

5. No access to raw data from trials

Would you like to see the raw data that produced the "90% and 95% effective" claims touted in the news?

Me too. But the companies won't let us see that data.

As pointed out in the BMJ, something about the Pfizer and Moderna efficacy claims smells really funny. There were "3,410 total cases of suspected, but unconfirmed COVID-19 in the overall study population, 1,594 occurred in the vaccine group vs. 1,816 in the placebo group."

Wait ... what? Did they fail to do science in their scientific study by not verifying a major variable?

Could they not test those "suspected but unconfirmed" cases to find out if they had COVID? Why not test all 3,410 participants for the sake of accuracy?

Can we only guess they didn't test because it would mess up their "90-95% effective" claims?

Would it not be prudent for the FDA to expect (demand) the vaccine makers test people who have "COVID-like symptoms," and release their raw data so independent third parties could examine how the manufacturers justified the numbers?

It's only every citizen of the world we're trying to get to take these experimental products — why did the FDA not require that? Isn't that the entire purpose of the FDA anyway?

Good question. Foxes guarding the hen house? No liability. No trust.

6. No long-term safety testing

With products that have been on the market only a few months, we have no long-term safety data.

In other words, we have no idea what this product will do in the body months or years from now — for any population.

Given all the risks above (risks that all pharmaceutical products have), would it not be prudent to wait to see if the worst-case scenarios have indeed been avoided?

Would it not make sense to want to fill those pesky “data gaps” before we try to give this to every man, woman and child on the planet?

That would make sense. But to have that data, they need to test it on people, which leads me to my next point ...

7. No informed consent

What most who are taking the vaccine don't know is that because these products are still in clinical trials, anyone who gets the shot is now part of the clinical trial — part of the experiment.

Those (like me) who do not take it, are part of the control group. Time will tell how this experiment works out.

But, you may be asking, if the vaccines are causing harm, wouldn't we be seeing that all over the news? Surely the FDA would step in and pause the distribution? (Editor's note: federal health officials on Tuesday paused the Johnsons & Johnson vaccine over concerns related to blood clots).

If the Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System (VAERS) — the government-run system for reporting deaths and injuries after vaccines — worked, maybe things would be different, but ...

8. Under-reporting of adverse reactions and deaths

According to a Harvard study (commissioned by our own government), less than 1% of all adverse reactions to vaccines are actually submitted to VAERS.

While the problems with VAERS have not been fixed (as you can read about in this letter to the CDC), at the time of this writing, VAERS reports over 2,200 deaths from the current COVID vaccines, as well as close to 60,000 adverse reactions.

If those numbers represent only 1% of the total adverse reactions (or .8% to 2% of what this study published recently in the JAMA found), you can do the math — but that equates to somewhere around 110,000 to 220,000 deaths from the vaccines to date, and a ridiculous number of adverse reactions.

Bet you didn't see that on the news.

That death number would currently still be lower than the 424,000 deaths from medical errors that happen every year (which you probably also don't hear about), but we are not even six months into the rollout of these vaccines yet.

If you want a deeper dive into the problems with the VAERS reporting system, you can check out this or this.

But then there's my next point, which could be argued makes these COVID vaccines seem pointless ...

9. The vaccines don't stop transmission or infection

Aren't these vaccines supposed to be what we've been waiting for to "go back to normal"? Nope.

Why do you think we're getting all these conflicting messages about needing to practice social distancing and wear masks after we get a vaccine? The reason is because these vaccines were never designed to stop transmission or infection.

If you don't believe me, I refer you again to the papers submitted to the FDA I linked to above which show that the primary endpoint (what the vaccines are meant to accomplish) is to lower your symptoms.

Sounds like just about every other drug on the market right? That's it ... lowering your symptoms is the big payoff we've been waiting for. Does that seem completely pointless to anyone but me?

- It can't stop us from spreading the virus.
- It can't stop the virus from infecting us once we have it.
- To get the vaccine is to accept all the risk of these experimental products and the best it might do is lower symptoms?

There are plenty of other things I can do to lower my symptoms that don't involve taking what appears to be a really risky product.

Now for the next logical question: If we're worried about asymptomatic spreaders, would the vaccine not make it more likely that we are creating asymptomatic spread?

If it indeed reduces symptoms, anyone who gets it might not even know they are sick and thus they are more likely to spread the virus, right?

For what it's worth, I've heard many people say the side effects of the vaccine (especially the second dose) are worse than catching COVID.

I can't make sense of that either.

Take the risk. Get no protection. Suffer through the vaccine side effects. Keep wearing your mask and social distancing ... and continue to be able to spread the virus.

It gets worse ...

10. People are catching COVID after being fully vaccinated

Talk about a bummer. You get vaccinated and you still catch COVID.

- It's happening in Washington State.
- It's happening in New York.
- It's happening in Michigan.
- It's happening in Hawaii.
- It's happening in several other states too.
- It happened to 80% of 35 nuns who got the vaccine in Kentucky. Two of them died by the way.

In reality, this phenomenon is probably happening everywhere, but those are the ones making the news now.

Given the reasons above (and what's below), maybe this doesn't surprise you, but bummer if you thought the vaccine was a shield to keep you safe.

It's not. That was never the point.

If 66% of healthcare workers in L.A. are going to delay or skip the vaccine ... maybe they aren't wowed by the rushed science either.

Maybe they are watching the shady way deaths and cases are being reported ...

11. Overall death rate from COVID

According to the CDC's own numbers, COVID has a 99.74% survival rate.

Why would I take a risk on a product, that doesn't stop infection or transmission, to help me overcome a cold that has a .26% chance of killing me — which actually in my age range is has about a .1% chance of killing me (and .01% chance of killing my kids).

With a bar (death rate) that low, we will be in lockdown every year ... i.e., forever.

But wait, what about the 500,000-plus deaths, that's alarming right? I'm glad you asked ...

12. Bloated COVID death numbers

Something smells really funny about this one. Never before in the history of death certificates has our own government changed how deaths are reported.

Why now, are we reporting everyone who dies with COVID in their body, as having died of COVID, rather than the co-morbidities that actually took their life?

Until COVID, all coronaviruses (common colds) were never listed as the primary cause of death when someone died of heart disease, cancer, diabetes, auto-immune conditions or any other major comorbidity.

The disease was listed as the cause of death, and a confounding factor like flu or pneumonia was listed on a separate line.

To bloat the number even more, the World Health Organization and the CDC changed their guidelines such that those who are suspected or probable (but were never confirmed) of having died of COVID, are also included in the death numbers.

If we are going to do that then should we not go back and change the numbers of all past cold and flu seasons so we can compare apples to apples when it comes to death rates?

According to the CDCs own numbers, (scroll down to the section "comorbidities and other conditions"), only 6% of the deaths being attributed to COVID are instances where COVID seems to be the only issue at hand.

In other words, reduce the death numbers you see on the news by 94% and you have what is likely the real numbers of deaths from just COVID.

Even if the former CDC director is correct and COVID-19 was a lab-enhanced virus (see Reason #14 below), a .26% death rate is still in line with the viral death rate that circles the planet every year.

Then there's this Fauci guy. I'd really love to trust him, but besides the fact that he hasn't treated one COVID patient, you should probably know ...

13. Fauci and others at NIAID own patents on the Moderna vaccine

Thanks to the Bayh-Dole Act, government workers are allowed to file patents on any research they do using taxpayer funding.

Tony Fauci owns more than 1,000 patents (see this video for more details), including patents being used on the Moderna vaccine ... for which he approved government funding.

In fact, the National Institutes of Health (NIH) — which oversees the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), of which Fauci is the director — claims joint ownership of Moderna's vaccine.

Does anyone else see this as a major conflict of interest, or criminal even?

I say criminal because there's also this pesky problem that makes me even more distrustful of Fauci, NIAD, and the NIH in general ...

14. Fauci is on the hot seat for illegal gain-of-function research

What is "gain-of-function" research? It's where scientists attempt to make viruses gain functions — i.e. make them more transmissible and deadlier.

Sounds at least a touch unethical, right? How could that possibly be helpful?

Our government agreed, and 2014, banned the practice.

So what did the Fauci-led NIAID do? They pivoted and outsourced the gain-of-function research (in coronaviruses no less) to China — to the tune of a $600K grant.

Mr. Fauci, you have some explaining to do ... and I hope the cameras are recording when you have to defend your actions.

For now, let's turn our attention back to the virus ...

15. The virus continues to mutate

Not only does the virus (like all viruses) continue to mutate, but according to world-renowned vaccine developer Geert Vanden

Bossche (whom you'll meet below if you don't know him) it's mutating about every 10 hours.

How in the world are we going to keep creating vaccines to keep up with that level of mutation? We're not.

Might that also explain why fully vaccinated people are continuing to catch COVID?

Why, given that natural immunity has never ultimately failed humanity, do we suddenly not trust it?

Why, if I ask questions like the above, or post links like what you find above, will my thoughts be deleted from all major social media platforms?

That brings me to the next troubling problem I have with these vaccines ...

16. Censorship and the complete absence of scientific debate

I can't help but get snarky here, so humor me.

How did you enjoy all those nationally and globally televised, robust debates put on by public health officials, and broadcast simultaneously on every major news station?

Wasn't it great hearing from the best minds in medicine, virology, epidemiology, economics and vaccinology, from all over the world. as they vigorously and respectfully debated things like:

- Lockdowns
- Mask wearing
- Social-distancing
- Vaccine efficacy and safety trials
- How to screen for susceptibility to vaccine injury
- Therapeutics, (i.e. non-vaccine treatment options)

Wasn't it great seeing public health officials (who never treated anyone with COVID) have their "science" questioned?

Wasn't it great seeing the FDA panel publicly grill the vaccine makers in prime time as they stood in the hot-seat of tough questions about products of which they have no liability?

Oh, wait ... you didn't see those debates? No, you didn't. Because they never happened.

What happened instead was heavy-handed censorship of all but one narrative.

Mark Zuckerberg can question vaccine safety, but I can't? When did the First Amendment become a suggestion?

It's the FIRST Amendment, Mark — the one our founders thought was most important.

With so much at stake, why are we fed only one narrative. Shouldn't many perspectives be heard and professionally debated?

What has happened to science?

What has happened to the scientific method of always challenging our assumptions?

What happened to lively debate in this country, or at least in Western society?

Why did anyone who disagrees with WHO, or the CDC get censored so heavily?

Is the science of public health a religion now — or is science supposed to be about debate?

If someone says "the science is settled" that's how I know I'm dealing with someone who is closed minded. By definition science (especially biological science) is never settled.

If it was, it would be dogma, not science.

I want to be a good citizen. I really do.

If lockdowns work, I want to do my part and stay home.

If masks work, I want to wear them.

If social distancing is effective, I want to comply.

But, if there is evidence they don't (masks for example), I want to hear that evidence, too.

If highly credentialed scientists have different opinions, I want to know what they think. I want a chance to hear their arguments and make up my own mind.

I don't think I'm the smartest person in the world, but I think I can think. Maybe I'm weird, but if someone is censored, then I really want to hear what they think. Don't you?

To all my friends who don't have a problem with censorship, will you have the same opinion when what you think is censored?

Is censorship not the technique of dictators, tyrants and greedy, power-hungry people?

Is it not a sign that those who are doing the censoring know it's the only way they can win?

What if a man who spent his entire life developing vaccines was willing to put his entire reputation on the line and call on all global leaders to immediately stop the COVID vaccines because of problems with the science?

What if he pleaded for an open-scientific debate on a global stage?

Would you want to hear what he has to say? Would you want to see the debate he's asking for?

17. World's leading vaccinologist is sounding the alarm

Here is what may be the biggest reason this COVID vaccine doesn't make sense to me.

When someone who is very pro-vaccine, who has spent his entire professional career overseeing the development of vaccines, is shouting from the mountaintops that we have a major problem, I think the man should be heard.

In case you missed it, and in case you care to watch it, here is Geert Vanden Bossche, explaining:

- Why the COVID vaccine may be putting so much pressure on the virus that we are accelerating its ability to mutate and become more deadly.

- Why the COVID vaccines may be creating vaccine-resistant viruses (similar to antibiotic resistant bacteria).
- Why, because of previous problems with antibody dependent enhancement, we may be looking at a mass casualty event in the next few months/years.

Mass Vaccination in a Pandemic - Benefits versu...

If you want to see/read about a second, and longer, interview with Vanden Bossche, where he was asked some tough questions, you can check this out.

If half of what he says comes true, these vaccines could be the worst invention of all time.

If you don't like his science, take it up with him.

I'm just the messenger.

But I can also speak to COVID personally ...

18. I already had COVID

I didn't enjoy it. It was a nasty cold for two days:

- Unrelenting butt/low-back aches
- Very low energy
- Low-grade fever

It was weird not being able to smell anything for a couple days. A week later, coffee still tasted a little “off.”

But I survived.

Now it appears (as it always has) that I have beautiful, natural, life-long immunity — not something likely to wear off in a few months if I get the vaccine. In my body, and my household, COVID is over.

In fact, now that I've had it, there is evidence the COVID vaccine might actually be more dangerous for me.

That is not a risk I'm willing to take.

In summary

The above are just my reasons for not wanting the vaccine. Maybe my reasons make sense to you, maybe they don't.

Whatever does makes sense to you, hopefully we can still be friends.

I for one think there's a lot more that we have in common than what separates us.

- We all want to live in a world of freedom.
- We all want to do our part to help others and to live well.
- We all want the right to express our opinions without fearing we'll be censored or viciously attacked.
- We all deserve to have access to all the facts so we can make informed decisions.

Agree or disagree with me, I'll treat you no differently.

You're a human just as worthy of love and respect as anyone else. For that I salute you, and I truly wish you all the best.

I hope you found this helpful. If so, feel free to share.

If not, feel free to (kindly) let me know, in the comments below, what didn't make sense to you.

Thanks for summarizing much of what I've come to understand since I cancelled my vaccine appointment in February and began doing my own research after hearing how sick some people got after the vaccine. I'm in the covid high risk group for a few reasons but I'm more frightened by the politics of all this than anything else. The censorship is deplorable and does not bode well for our future here. My son is in his 20's, young and very fit, but was quite sick for a month after a covid outbreak at his job. So I don't take this virus lightly, but I trust my own immune system more than the vaccines. I especially liked what you said regarding the control group. Now if I'm asked if I got the vaccine my answer will be "I'm in the control group"!

My body, my choice. Due diligence: Zinc, Vitamins D3, & C. Olive Leaf 2X daily. Try to exercise daily and get plenty of rest.

Look at Vitamin K2. It is important to take this along with D3. Taking Vitamin D3 with Vitamin K2 helps to ensure the calcium transported by the Vitamin D is absorbed by your bones where it's needed, rather than accumulating in deposits in your arteries. I am high risk also. Please educate yourself on Ivermectin. I have taken it once because I thought I was coming down with something very bad.

I also was able to get Ivermectin. If the FDA was honest, they would be pushing this instead of hiding it.

I probably did not have COVID or another infection at the time. I do take Vitamins C & D. Hydroxychloroquine has been used for at least 50 years and in 2020 or so, suddenly it is fatal. Wonder what giving 4000 mg+ might do in terms of fatality?

Also, take a look at vitamin D. If you have your vitamin D levels at the 60ng/ml level your chances of getting/succumbing to covid are almost nil. Dr. Mercola's site has an excellent article on vitamin D. You want to have your levels at a minimum above 30ng/ml.

Take a look at adding Vitamin K2. Taking Vitamin D3 with Vitamin K2 helps to ensure the calcium transported by the Vitamin D is absorbed by your bones where it is needed, rather than accumulating in deposits in your arteries.

They do, however, carry product liability insurance like every other manufacturer that hasn't been specifically exempted by Congress in 1986. The vaccine manufacturers HAD to be exempted in order to remain in business because the liability insurance premiums were unaffordable because of all the payouts for damages and deaths caused to HEALTHY people who were injected with their products.

If you do some real research you'll discover several "studies" as well as many doctors reporting the success of treatment with either HCQ or Ivermectin plus zinc and D. India has significantly reduced its latest incidence by making Ivermectin universally available to its population. Apparently here in the good ol' USofA you have to "follow the money" and discover that's why they're not allowing these two very inexpensive yet effective drugs to be universally available here. There's more money in the "shots" than there is in two very inexpensive drugs.

Most people don't question anything about any vaccine...this is the result of decades of BRILLIANT marketing by Big Pharma and pushed by Big Government. How many times do you hear people say, "yeah, but look how vaccines cured small pox or polio." Never do they consider that both these diseases were on a downward trend resulting from better diet, hygiene and sanitation even before the vaccines were created. Anyone who dares to question a vaccine is labelled as a "crazy anti-vaxxer".

It's nice to meet another "difficult" person. Like you, I question everything. Isn't that what we were taught as children? Question everything. Think critically. Not like today, where they're taught to accept, believe and obey everything the government and other institutions tell them. My observation is that the non-questioners are TV-watchers, mesmerized by the programming...did they ever wonder why it's called "television programming"? They actually believe the government cares about them...naive fools. One group that seriously boggles my mind are the pregnant women who foolishly take the untested, experimental poisons. These are the same women who won't touch alcohol, coffee, eat soft cheeses, raw oysters, cured meats because they're told these could have a deleterious effect on their babies...but, they don't give a second thought to injecting the "vaccines".

I understand everyone's concerns about the vaccine, but Why is everyone more afraid of a vaccine that is made in a way considering safety than they are of a virus that was made in a way to devastate the human body.

We all know covid19 is a manipulated bat Covina virus leaked from Wuhan lab during gain of function research. Man created this virus to devastate humans (for greater good in research but nevertheless it caused massive harm since it leaked from the lab.)

This makes me more afraid of the virus than the vax. If they screwed up the vax and put out something dangerous nobody will ever take another vaccine or trust big pharma. Meanwhile covid19 was not created considering safety, just the opposite. Why more fear of vax than covid19? My friends who had covid are not better 6-9 months later, they have weird debilitating symptoms... this virus is worse than the vax I think... I don't want either but wondering why people not more scared of man made covid19 than the man made vax ?

As a bioagent, COVID-19 isn't particularly scary. The mortality rate is somewhere below 1% which is nowhere near the point where the entirety of human existence should be terrified of extermination.

This is a normal novel coronavirus that humanity has been dealing with since the beginning of life on Earth. There have been much scarier and far more deadly diseases in the last 100 years than COVID-19.

Well said Chris. We have the same problem in Ireland. We have been in total lockdown (Everything but food stores closed) since Christmas 2020 and we cannot travel further than 5km from home and cannot go to church. We cannot see our family or friends. The media is totally one sided pro vaccine and its non stop every day on every TV/Radio Channel and news paper headlines, the daily death toll and how we ALL MUST TAKE THE VACCINE. The media is gaslighting the public and pumping out the FEAR to everyone. Everybody is wearing masks and avoids contact. You are not allowed in any premises without a mask. No protests are allowed. They are breaking peoples spirit and telling them it can only go back to normal if they take the vaccine. The government is bringing in Vaccine Passports and saying that government is bringing in vaccine passports and saying that people should not be allowed back to work unless they get a vaccine. The government is going to make living impossible for those who do not take the vaccine. Its a nightmare, the people are like zombies, we are losing all our rights and freedoms. We also hear terms like "The New Normal", "Build Back Better" or "The Great Reset", something is terribly wrong with the world, this is more than just a pandemic, something really bad is happening and people better wake up real soon.

"Covid" is a "pandemic" of FEAR; and that's it. The "Great Reset" is the new name for "The New World Order". What's going on here, is merely a mass distraction (and eugenics; as well as the redistribution of wealth), to keep the masses from seeing the real problems facing our existence. This is not: and never was, about a virus. This is about tearing down this civilization and rebuilding it in the name of A.I., IoTs, Robotics, 5G and Transhumanism, This has been in the plans for decades and now they have their best chance of implementing "The Great Reset", in which - as Klaus Schwab states - "You will own NOTHING; you will SHARE EVERYTHING; and you will be HAPPY"! His definition of "happy", is the opposite of mine!

In fact, I've been healthy and fit for some time now. I know that all viruses are acidic. and the simplest way of getting rid of a virus is through using an alkaloid substance such as baking soda, which doesn't cost a lot of money at all. Just a pinch in an 8 ounce glass of water daily does the trick.

I'm certain the "vaccine" makers won't like that since using an alkaloid substance such as baking soda in a glass of water. They'll mock anybody who even tries this method.

I agree that it's great to have all this valuable information in one place in an easily understood format, prepared by a non-expert, someone like us who has applied common sense and critical thinking to the drivel we're being fed by Fauci and company. With the compliment out of the way, I'll now proceed to the criticism. Reasons 6 & 7 regarding safety testing and informed consent do not mention a fact that if brought to the attention of the vaccine enthusiasts would likely squelch their enthusiasm. People do not know, because no vaccine proponent would tell them, that in the rush to produce a vaccine, no animal trials were done to test the safety of the vaccines. Luckily for the animals, due to the "emergency" they're all safe and sound in their cages in the labs. But safety trials are taking place, and will continue until Jan 2023, because everyone who gets the shot is taking the place of the animals. But no rational person would agree to be a substitute for a ferret! In 22 months we will know if the vaccines are safe – or not. We'll know by counting the severely injured and dead by counting the severely injured and dead.

Gold Coast → Judy T • 4 months ago • edited

Also no rational person would think a vaccine approved as safe because of testing it on different animals would make it safe for humans. There are many examples of drugs approved after animal testing that were actually hazardous for humans and later removed from the market. There needs to be studies done on humans, be it human trials, stem cells or other human-based lab work that does not involve a very different species. It's misleading and dangerous to base vaccine or drug approval for humans on other animals...we have the technology now to do it on humans and yet are still stuck in the last millennium with dangerous ( and cruel) animal testing... forcing animals that you have control over to live their whole lives in a metal cage indoors in constant fear of being pulled out for torture everyday is pretty sick when you think about it especially considering there are better alternatives... Covid19 and this pandemic was caused either by animal testing in gain of function research or by animal cruelty at wet markets so anyway you look at it it was created by humans abusing animals with complete disregard for their suffering.

If I was religious I would say God does not like us doing that to his animals ....

Yes, it's cruel to test drugs and vaccines on animals, and it's crueller still to test drugs and vaccines on humans, even if the humans are fully informed of the risks and want to participate in the goal of advancing science and making the world safe from diseases. But cruelest of all is the medical world's hoax in claiming that germs and viruses are the cause of disease and that the only solution to eradicate disease is drugs and vaccines when the only sure way to prevent disease is with a strong and healthy immune system. And when the immune system is overwhelmed with pathogenic viruses and bacteria, there are treatments that have been proven to work and restore health. The history of vaccines proves that no vaccine has ever prevented or cured any disease. Vaccines are a hoax and creating and pushing them on a populace ignorant of their inefficacy and harm is cruel.

All ideologies are dangerous. It is frightening to know people 'love' vaccines. I inserted last week on this site, excerpts from Dr. Chris Exley's new book 'imagine you are an aluminum atom'. His studies of brain tissue shows unequivocally the high burden of aluminum in the brains of autistic adolescents. The aluminum adjuvant in most vaccines contributes greatly to this burden. This is the crime of last century and this century, it is a crime against children.

In some of the trials, animal and human trials were run concurrently instead of sequentially, but I don't have data on which vaccines followed these timelines and which skipped animal trials altogether. This article describes 100% the way I feel about this "rushed-on market" vaccine.

Indeed, we do have our natural immunity, or at least some of us still do. I see so much similarity how "medical experts" handled penicillin as a form of antibiotic, they handle vaccination the same way. In the past, penicillin was given for every ill as a solution; today it is a vaccine for everything. Just like penicillin stopped working, as bacteria mutated and learned how to become resistant to antibiotic, now we see that that the covid virus is also learning, it keeps mutating into a newer and newer form, trying to find a way to survive (to resist the vaccine). Antibiotics no longer given lightly, the doctor only prescribes it when there is no other way as a treatment. Vaccines should be handled the same way, (any vaccine, not just covid-vaccine), prescribe it when the natural immune system isn't enough to fight the illness, and there is no other medication available as a solution.

What? in the USA now 24 or how many vaccines are given to children?! and those are just the mandatory vaccines as I heard?!!! did the medical professionals go insane in that country?

Then I heard there are other vaccines that are "suggested" to be taken.

From where I came from, as a child I was given 4 vaccines for life time, and children today still get only 4 vaccines there.

The United States (and many other western society as well) turned into a "Vaccine-Nation", yet it has the sickest population on the face of the earth! Maybe, it it more than overdue to make some changes in this area.

You didn't mention the risk of prion disease from the mRNA vaccines, it appears to be a real risk.

Why might mRNA vaccines trigger prion disease, while the natural covid infection does not?

It has to do with the extremely clever engineering that goes into mRNA vaccines. Normal RNA uses a uricil nucleotide as part of its coding, but our immune systems recognize uricil-containing foreign RNA and just destroy it. The vaccines hack this by replacing uricil with 1-methyl-3'-pseudouridylyl, denoted by  $\Psi$ . This replacement  $\Psi$  calms our immune system, and is accepted as a normal U by relevant parts of the cell when the RNA is used to make proteins. Problem solved! Brilliant!

The problem is that the fake uricil can turn into a prion. Prions are self-replicating and just need enough "ammunition" in their environment to continue to grow. The vaccines can give you mad cow disease.

Excellent article! Sadly too few are taking the time to become informed on this issue. Hopefully some will read this, who are on the fence, and open their minds to something other than what the mainstream press is foisting upon us. Why is it that science can't see that the incredible immune system is doing it's job 24/7 admirably and just let it alone? The natural immune response has been doing the job of battling viruses since the dawn of time. But instead, some want to tinker and tinker, thinking that they are wiser than the infinite wisdom that created our bodies in the first place. Keep up the good work!!

Exactly, Michael. The MSM and so-called "health officials" have done a great job of making (almost) everyone forget they have this miraculous immune system already built in, so that rather than giving us tips on how to keep it healthy, they try to convince us that the vax is the only thing that will "save" us. I saw this testimony and saw additional testimony before the Senate committee. For those who wonder why the US morbidity numbers are so much higher than in many other countries, this will be an eye-opener (a sad eye-opener if you happen to be American, I suspect). Treatment of people who were diagnosed with COVID, treatment which should have kept them out of the hospital in the first place, was sacrificed on the altar of politics.

Yes, the point needs to be made that there are safe, effective alternatives to the vaccines, which (a) help in preventing acquisition of the infection, and (b) significantly mitigate the symptoms of the infection, if acquired. The Front Line COVID-19 Critical Care Alliance (flccc.net) has an "I-MASK Prophylaxis & Early Outpatient Treatment Protocol for COVID-19". The Association of American Physicians and Surgeons (aapsonline.org) has "A Guide to Home-Based COVID Treatment". Dr. Joseph Mercola (mercola.com) has a wealth of articles on all aspects of the COVID-19 pandemic, including at-home early treatment of the infection.

Early treatment should be begun during the first 5 days of the infection, and much can be done earlier to help prevent its acquisition. In the video above Dr. McCullough makes it very clear that in the U.S. there is an almost complete lack of information on early treatment, which is truly shocking. The censorship of such information, coordinated with the push to get everyone on the planet inoculated ASAP with a vaccine, is unconscionable.

Great thanks to Christian for his excellent piece, including all the links to the supporting material.

This causes a terrible ethical conundrum. To me, this means the needed paradigm shift will only occur if the vaccines do so much damage, that the fall-out can no longer be censored and ignored by those in power. The warp speed COVID vaccine program has major downsides. One is that less frequently occurring adverse vaccine events, which would usually be caught with larger study groups and years of vaccine trial data, tend to escape detection. This is why we don't want to see the words 'rushed' and 'science' in the same sentence.

Even so, the list of adverse events the FDA is watching for, taken from a presenter's slide at the Vaccines and Related Biological Products Advisory Committee meeting October 22, 2020, the list included several items directly related to blood

Thank you so much for such a well-written piece. Thank you too for providing so many links and evidence for your excellent points. I would just like to say one thing about having covid... my husband and I had it in December 2020. We live in South Africa and had the mutated version. We got really, really ill and there were moments where I honestly thought we were both going to die. Many people in South Africa did die. Thankfully, my husband is a medical doctor and he was able to treat us at home (using the FLCCC protocol). I am a type 1 diabetic so it was a really stressful time. We were horribly sick in bed for 20 days. And then we were still carrying the effects of fatigue, brain fog, etc for a good month to six weeks afterwards. So my point is that when engaging with the debate, we should rather not minimize the seriousness of getting covid, especially the mutated version. For many of us it was not just a two-day 'cold' but, in fact, a very traumatic and difficult, extended experience. But I'm sure glad I have natural immunity now!

5 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

MEL → Michelle Janse van Rensburg • 4 months ago

Michelle, very glad you and your husband recovered and it's heartening to hear the FLCCC protocol helped you get through it. I do think that young and youngish people tend to dismiss how serious this virus can be for older people or people who have comorbidities. Though I am not old-old, I'm not young either and I remain on the FLCCC prophylaxis protocol since I have decided not to take the vaccine at this time. I don't want to be a Phase 3 trial participant but I don't don't want to be a phase 0 trial participant, but I don't want to die of Covid-19 either. I think we each have to weigh our risks, do our part to not spread respiratory disease of all kinds, and respect people's choices, no matter what those choices are. If everyone were treated on Day One of illness, we would drastically cut the hospitalization and death rates. If higher risk people took the FLCCC prophylaxis protocol, that alone would prevent so much suffering. I loved Christian's article and I've shared it where I dare to. But I always keep in mind that this virus is to be respected and we need a whole different paradigm for treating it so that anyone at greater risk, doesn't have to die prematurely. We should always try and put ourselves in others' shoes. So glad you are better now.

Mad science jumped out of the sci fi books and is here in real life.

Fauci is Dr Evil. RFKJr is Austin Powers, but Fauci is just too strong. You hope there is not some mass die off event but it could happen, brace for the reality of it possibly happening. Then they'll blame the non vaccinated for causing it, it will be pure panic and there will be no room for logic or reason left.

There was a guy on Twitter that posted video of drivers of cars next to him (in a vaccine line)...

The guy 2 cars down had a seizure after vaccination;
The guy in the next car over passed out cold after vaccination...

The guy videoing was like, oh hell no I don't want this thing. I watched that video and decided I don't want one either! :)

Thank you Christian. Like you and many other people I have investigated my way through the debris to arrive at the same determinations. Like you I believe I had the virus. The symptoms were strange but I had fortified my immune system with lots of natural remedies, which contrary to main stream medicine do work, and at 70 years of age come out of it in medicine do work, and at 70 years of age I came out of it in three days, about a week less than the annual cold/flu that I experience every year. Fortunately I live in a dictatorship (Nicaragua) where the government largely stays out of our affairs and has clearly stated that when someone gets sick they will be treated for whatever it is that they genuinely have. I know that figures have been inflated but nothing like in the US. I do carry a mask in my pocket and I have used it several times since the "pandemic" began. I have found it useful when facing exhaust fumes from the busses. Like you I just want an open discussion. What we are experiencing is denial and denial is a dangerous defense system. Like many of my friends I find myself "unplugging" more and more from mainstream and waiting impatiently for truth to rise from the ashes. It will.

Thanks for the summary, a lot of good points but no mention of 1-in 10 people with covid getting disabled by long covid. No mention of long covid in the entire article. The omission makes the article seem a little disingenuous unless the author just is not educated/aware about long covid.

I'd rather risk getting covid than vax too, but I don't want to risk getting long covid... but does the vaccine even help with long COVID? We don't know yet. It helps a lot with preventing severe covid and death... so it's probably a better deal for high risk people ( obese, diabetes etc). For the average person who knows, mild cases turn into long covid so it's really a crapshoot.

I'm not saying take the vax to prevent long covid yet, I'm saying don't completely omit long covid and speak only of severe covid or death rate when assessing the threat of covid. Long covid is horrible. Covid19 is a beast as it's a vascular virus as well as respiratory so it goes everywhere, brain, heart

Points well made. I always wondered how one would create a vaccine against a manipulated virus created in a gain-of-function experiment that escaped a lab. On the issue of immunity after Covid, the only reason for a 3- or 6- or 8- month prediction by researchers is that Covid was so new at the time that there were only 3- or 6- or 8- months of time that passed in 2020 for the studies of people who had recovered so they could be researched on. There was only a few months of data. So the researchers carefully stated 3- or 6- or 8- months of immunity post-Covid can be predicted as was seen in their experiments. More time has now gone by; where are the studies that point out 12 months or more of post-Covid immunity? I guess all the research shifted to developing vaccines instead. But, guess what? That post-Covid immunity was the model upon which all the vaccine research was based. The vaccinologists hope to achieve, even if only in part, the brilliant immune response that the human body demonstrates when dealing with the naturally-acquired disease. Yes, there is long Covid, and there are people who get very sick with Covid. It seems difficult to tell who will get real sick and who will get mildly sick. Nevertheless, I stand on lifetime immunity after SARS-COV2. There was a study of those who had the first Covid disease, SARS-COV. 17 years later, they had a robust immune response and were predicted to have that for the rest of their lives. SARS-COV2 is nearly identical to that virus. We should expect a similar long-lasting immune response.

I was more concerned about being in proximity to someone who had received the vaccine than someone who hadn't. Re: if an individual has had a vaccine, then they automatically are rife with the virus, be it live or attenuated and are more apt to infect someone else. I came down with CoVid just 3 days after a dinner with a couple who had been vaccinated that week. It honestly was not the worst flu I've ever had, but now have natural immunity to it.

Excellent document. Written so that even the pro-est of the pro-vaccine enthusiasts might cancel his vax appointment. However, Christian's assumption that "We all want to live in a world of freedom" may not be true of all people or even a majority of people, as we watch the eager beavers respond to govt's message to get vaxxed. But their eagerness may be due to what they hope will return to them the freedom they had to come and go and live normally before the "pandemic." About freedom, Eric Hoffer wrote that people don't want freedom - they want security. H.L. Mencken was of the same opinion: "Most people want security in this world, not liberty." G.B. Shaw wrote: "Liberty means responsibility. That is why most men dread it." We're seeing that the Fauci fans do not take the responsibility for their health by researching viruses and vaccines in order to become Informed Consumers. Instead, they cross their fingers and dive into the shark infested waters. Most pro-vaxxers have computers and internet and, thanks to lockdowns, have the time to research if they would turn off their TVs. But nooooo.... that's WORK.

It's easier to trust what Uncle Sam says and do what 9 out of 10 people around them are doing.

I agree with everything you say, but disappointed that it is necessary to put the initial disclaimer about some would-be contributors. It is hard to understand that people these days seem so threatened and closed-up they immediately jump to unwarranted, ignorant conclusions and attack. Follow the money...

Governments have prohibited the use of hydroxychloroquine and ivermectin as a prophylaxis against covid. WHY??

In addition, governments have attempted to silence those who advocate treatments that work. WHY??

Putting covid infected individuals into nursing homes is a death sentence for the occupants already there...

No government can be trusted. The medical profession has done itself a disservice and also cannot be trusted.

Genocide and population reduction is the goal...not good.

Excellent article. The only point I would add is that the PCR tests are horribly flawed: at best 19.67% accurate for SARS-CoV-2, although some experts believe less than 5%. That is the biggest elephant in the room. Most of these "cases" are influenza A and B, which magically disappeared from the planet last year. COVID almost cured heart disease and cancer. Hell, even shark attacks.

Did you know that every day Dr. Fauci— Mr. COVID Vaccine— takes 6000 IU of vitamin D3 and 1000 mg of vitamin C?

Has this highest paid federal employee ever encouraged the American public to get their D level tested? Jennifer Garner asked him about it, so he fessed up. Meanwhile, NPR, despite getting this same information, completely overlooked vitamin D.

Dr. Roger Seheult's brilliant hour-long MedCram video (<https://www.youtube.com/wat...> on vitamin D has had over 9 million views since it was posted 4 months ago! He reviews the medical journal studies showing that vitamin D is the best protection against infection, far more effective than the vaccines (tho' Dr. Seheult advocates for vaccines).

Excellent list! I would like to add a very important component. Apart from the "Great Reset", there is a global Eugenics program in play. This fact is easy to find, if you know how to navigate your way through the internet of censorship. The talking heads have all stated it: "We need to reduce the world's population". Billy Boy Gates is undeniably the #1 proponent of eugenics, on the planet. Again; this is easily substantiated through research.

Crimes Against Humanity: Once there was a call to forbid and ban HCQ (with Zinc) The Governments Health Agencies lost ALL CREDIBILITY. (Now that Trump was removed, It is allowed and admitted HCQ IS SAFE and works with Zinc as a

...and admitted that it can be used as a treatment if taken early). However many Countries (Canada) still forbid it being used as a treatment! Doctors are threatened with losing licenses if they subscribe anything other than a vaccine! The Government policy is to “go home and self isolate”. That’s like telling a person bleeding to death to go home and only go to the hospital when all the blood runs out!

To ban and threaten Doctors from using treatments (proven successful) is a Crime Against Humanity. The Government makes it illegal to prevent a child’s demand for Gender Changing, Hormone Blocking drugs -yet forbids my own “Informed Consent” use of preventative , proven Covid Medication. That is SICK and PROVES we are dealing with EVIL ...similar to the Hitlerian madness for Eugenics. April 2021 Canada: Nurses issued a “GAG ORDER” by their government controlled agencies FORBIDDING ANY Discussion of what they are seeing and treating since vaccines have been started. Many are refusing to take mRNA injections and their discussion of this is covered in GAG ORDER.

We now understand how The majority of a nation is so easily brainwashed into accepting the Evils of the same powerful World Bankers and Corporations who funded the EVILS of Totalitarian Communism AND The National Socialist (NAZIS) ..They use CENSORSHIP, INTIMIDATION and Terrorist Methods...and use these methods to destroy any Constitutional Rights.

Admitted by Prime-minister Trudeau of Canada : “Covid is our opportunity to reorder the world with a Great Reset” = Neo serfdom....Corporate Run World Totalitarian Communism. COVID “Gain of Function” was planned and makes an excellent “weapon” of Fear and Control to this end. (NB Trudeau has announced he admires “the Communist Chinese Dictatorship most -above other Governments- for their ability to control an economy.). Thus it is likely COVID will be used for a police state, totalitarian surveillance, and the end of “individual freedom” .

An excellent article. I love all your links substantiating what you have to say.

According to my research, in 2011 the US Supreme Court said vaccines are "UNAVOIDABLY UNSAFE" so how do Fauci & all Government officials use the same sell-line that these vaccines are safe? Are they overriding a Supreme Court ruling? How can the vaccines be safe at all? How can they be claimed as safe when there has been NO testing over TIME, including into the next generation/s?

including into the next generation.

In Point 4 you could also add that there is (to my knowledge & research) NO proof that there is ANY level of protection against CoVid in the vaccinated AT ALL.

Point 14 - in my research it has been said that the funding in China went to the Wuhan Institute of Virology - WHAT? That's an odd coincidence, isn't it?

How can they make any claim of 90-95% efficacy after being vaccinated? Do they deliberately infect the vaccinated to find that out? Well no, cos if you get the wild virus after being vaccinated with an mRNA vaccine you could likely die - like the tested children & animals did - there's your scientific proof right there.

As they say - follow the money & your questions will be answered.

Absolutely bloody brilliantly written and exactly why I won't be taking it either (at this stage). I'm not anti-vaccines - I'm PRO-safety, my built-in immune system and personal choice.

Now, if these companies or the FDA would publish some valid data on the efficacy of their vaccines, reduced COVID cases as a result, reduced deaths / injuries from the vaccine ... I mean if they can prove this to us, then by all means I would be happy to take the vaccine "for the greater good" (another terrible myth and bully tactic to guilt trip the masses into taking it); but until I see that, then they can go screw themselves. It is CRIMINAL what is happening right now - all the false data, the records of the companies involved, the conflicts of interest, using humans as lab rats for untested product and ultimately, to our sacred rights of free speech and freedom to choose - this has to STOP and the only way it will, is if we stand up for ourselves and say NO.

Christian, I sincerely appreciate you taking the time to write this well written and researched article. The subject of to take or not to take the "V" has proven to be the "Great-Divide" among family and friends. You sum up my sentiments quite well! To my, admittedly and disappointment and shock, I learned just the other day, my daughter encouraged and consented to my 16-year-old grandson getting the "V." I organized my thoughts, research the topic, avoided emotions and responded to her, in writing with documented facts and my thoughts on her seriously ill-advised action. As for me, I strive every day, to boost my immune system to the optimal level. I maintain a daily regiment which benefits overall good health in general. Thus far I've been in exceedingly close contact with a number individuals, for quite a few days who unknowingly had COVID and I, thankfully, did not contract it. Again, this is a great article and thanks for taking your time to provide readers with this invaluable resource. I will definitely print it to use to support my decision not to get the "V" and archive it as well. Live Well & Be Well!

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Jennifer Wood • 2 months ago • edited

Revised and shortened previous comment that I just deleted:
 Many thanks to the writer of this article. The stamps of censorship often put on certain articles on social media claim that the vaccines are "tested carefully" and those that get them are "closely monitored." Having been injured almost to the point of death by a pharmaceutical (antibiotic) that has caused permanent damage to my body for 25 years, I would like to say this: Once a person is poisoned from a pharmaceutical drug or other medical treatment such as a vaccine, it doesn't matter how "closely" they "monitor" you - you are still in toxic torture and sometimes for life, more or less because they don't know what to do for you in many cases. I was diagnosed with toxic encephalopathy after Cipro - it damaged the P450 enzymes necessary for metabolizing chemicals, pharmaceuticals and other xenobiotics. I recently read "there is no cure for it" - all they can do is give you temporary drugs for symptoms." The problem with that is you are usually unable to tolerate any drugs at all after being made toxic - they all add horrendous, torturous toxic effects to the ones you already have permanently from the initial drug injury. (Or vac injury, whatever the case may be.) Furthermore they (doctors and hospital staff) almost NEVER "monitor you closely." There were so many times I could have easily just jumped out of a window and no one would have been there. (And believe me I thought of it but was too sick to do it competently and didn't want to end up crippled on top of toxic.) This is only one of the many reasons why I see most of the current medical system as flawed, and often, for certain people, the cause of even greater suffering than some diseases are themselves. If I break my leg I will go to a surgeon but if I get anything else my choices are now limited: I will either go to a remote place and die by myself or try to cure myself with other methods if available:
 No more toxic torture for this body. No thanks. I'd prefer to be shot at gunpoint right in the face - and quickly. People don't understand what this kind of torture is until they go through it themselves. No one in his right mind would ever take such a risk again, especially when money (theirs) is put before health (mine). No way, no how. Not if I can help it. If we are forced, that is worse than being shoveled into a gas chamber because of the long time period of internal toxic imbalances because of the long time-period of internal toxic implosion inside the body. This is not a theoretical concept for someone like me. I have lived it.)

I have told them If I were them I would find a doctor that will give them a prescription for Ivermectin and have it on hand if they come down with a fever if their doctor says it is safe because I hope stopping the virus will stop the rest of the possible reactions and possibly save them. This is the best anti-vaccine article I've seen. You make some good points I haven't seen elsewhere. There are also some disturbing inaccuracies.

You ignore the long-term or permanent disabilities that 10-30% of Covid survivors experience. That by itself is reason enough to consider vaccination.

Also your claim that you now have life-long immunity is incorrect. As we've seen in Brazil, surviving one strain of Covid DOESN'T necessarily give you protection from another strain. Vaccines (so far) give protection against all known strains.

WOW! Really liked your article. Research and common sense. You shared almost all of my thoughts and arguments. I see people who said that they would never get the shot getting it because they are starting to get special privileges. These are people who think the vaccine passport is great. I to had COVID and like all viruses it gave me an asthma attack and had to go to the ER to get a new inhaler and tested positive. I enjoyed 14 days of quarantine with my husband. With pay! We have no intention of getting the vaccine. I to believe natural immunity is the best as well as working to keep your immune system strong.

I have been following this discussion from the inception while inquiring almost all of the time, why is it that little or nothing we are being told made any sense; for all of the reasons above mentioned, and more. Early on in the time line of what now must rank among the greatest criminal assault on human liberty of all history. As stated above, what has taken place almost world wide, is senseless. If not senseless, corrupt and based on lies.

I may have missed it while reading this article that raises so much that points out failures that are unquestioned, propagandized, and worse, is that early on almost all government absolutely refused all efforts to even consider that treating the illness be attempted. What ensued was a malicious by government and its Establishment to injure and murder. Covid-19 was deliberately created and narrated to promote an agenda of tyranny. It's working.

Wow. You have articulated so powerfully what I have been observing. I noticed the censorship issue last year and had them flag my account and remove content. Kill Gates and Fauci are the lowest of beings on this earth. They have blood on their hands and they are drunk with power. My question is this - after killing so many (yes, Fauci created the HIV epidemic; I believe this is where he learned he could become a multi millionaire by allowing a virus to expand), it is just rinse and repeat with Gates' backing. Follow the money...everyone gaining millions during the pandemic is likely a part of it's events. Facebook, amazon, Fauci, Gates...all in bed together and let's not forget Biden; he is bought and paid for. But notice that none of them will get the vaccine. So even said they won't allow their children to be vaccinated. I am very afraid for every person that got this vaccine. Very afraid. Down the road, they may have very serious health issues that the hospitals certainly will not tie to the vaccine. But people are resisting - more than they anticipated because they believed the scaremongering would work on the majority; but this was a sloppy job. The media contradicted itself so much that people started to question...esp. the numbers and the "natural immunity won't work on COVID" narrative. A lot of people called bs and don't trust these narratives. But what boggles my mind is the GREED. How can you amass BILLIONS and still want more at the expense of human lives??? Can these old farts spend that much before they die? There are millions of people homeless and hungry over this pandemic but these evil bastards do not care! They have manufactured this pandemic - Bill Gates is no genius; he did not predict this; he did a simulation in 2019 of it. He is a pimple faced reject that hides behind money to feel powerful. He feels like God because he is taking control over human life; buying up all the farmland and hijacking natural farmers with his land grab at Monsanto. There will be some human health...

with his buddies at Monsanto. They all will pay a huge penalty for this and we have to fight back. Thank you for this. I will share it and hope a few souls will read it before they take it down or close my account. We need an underground communication platform that WE THE PEOPLE control; not these deranged 1%ers that are causing death and calamity for the whole world.

I remembered it wrong, but I thought the "18 reasons....." was a play on the Paul Simon "18 reasons to leave your lover". Well if you get vaccinated--you might end up leaving your lover or your lover might leave you. I'll be putting the 18 reasons to the Paul Simon tune. By the time history writes the score, there likely be 50 reasons not to get vaccinated.

Dear Sir,

Thank you so much for the wealth of information you're sharing with us. My name's Nancy and I live in Argentina. I've been posting a few of your articles on COVID vaccines on my facebook and every time I've had trouble. Some say they're Independent Fact Checkers who claim the article I'm posting may lead to misinformation. Facebook said the content was not true, etc. That said, i must tell you I believe you. Here in Argentina people have been vaccinated mainly with Sputnik V from Russia and one of the Chinese vaccines (the one that really works, they say) and now it's just arrived a large number of Astrazeca vaccines. I'm 64 years old, I'm healthy and I'm still doubting about what to do regarding getting vaccinated. I never liked vaccines. Never. Do you happen to have any information about the Russian and the Chinese vaccines as you have of the others? I'd be very grateful to you and your research team if you could do some research on them. Thanks for all you do!

I believe Sputnik is similar in type to AZ and J&J i.e. the protein spike spliced with an adenovirus. The Chinese vaccine, if is the same one used in Brazil has an aluminium adjuvant.

Thank you, John. Our government keeps saying "our" Chinese vaccine is better than the one Chile has. Aluminium adjuvant doesn't sound good to me but I can't tell. I'm very tired of lies. It's a moral weariness. COVID, its origin, vaccines, etc is just one of the many lies we're told around the world.

I guess I'll end up not getting my vaccine. None of them. To make things worse, many people here won't get the 2nd shot in due time because we don't have enough for everybody. Not yet...

Dr. Henry Ealy - CDC Violated Law to Inflate COVID Cases and Fatalities

April 18, 2021

Dr. Henry Ealy and his team started looking at CDC data on COVID-19 cases and fatalities in mid-March 2020, quickly realizing the agency was vastly exaggerating fatalities

So, it was basically taking this and saying, 'We're going to create exclusive rules for COVID-19 and we're going to do create exclusive rules for COVID-19 and we're going to do a 180 for this single disease ...' The big problem with that is that now you remove the ability for a medical examiner, a coroner, a physician, to interpret [the cause of death] based upon the collective health history of that patient ...

You remove their expertise, and you say, 'You have to count this as COVID-19.' That takes on an added measure when you incentivize it financially, and that's what we saw with some of the Medicare and Medicaid payouts ..."

Thanks I appreciate your response . I based my comment on the owner of a large lab operation in CA stating he had asked the CDC repeatedly for the DNA definition of the virus & they would not or could not provide it . He also stated that his lab anonymously tested 15K samples of + test blood from his various labs & could only find A&B strains of flu virus that were already known.

Being an engineer & physicist that has been analyzing the C19 situation from the beginning I can find nothing but vast holes in the statistics , information , guidance etc . The way the information & statistics are presented is deceptive & in most cases meaningless . I will also say this > In the area I live there is primarily Spectrum Health covering this portion of the state .

I have 2 associates in the main hospital who have told me for the last year that 0 being presented to the public about the ICU capacity & # of cases is true . A trickle of people come in with severe respiratory issues but both of these nurses tell me this is not uncommon . Also my physician who is the dept head of internal medicine tells me he has not treated ONE case of C19 .

I form my viewpoints based on actual direct knowledge of situations or credible people directly involved . Why am I not seeing a correlation between what the media present s & my albeit limited observations ? I value your opinion . Txs G

Many have, indeed, refused other jabs for this reason.

Also, it is likely that most that consent to the jabs have no clue about the abortion cell lines.....I didn't until a few years back, even though I have refused jabs for myself & child for more than 35 years for lots of other reasons

Well, the article discusses COVID-19 vaccines in particular. So for the above list this is in particular... so, for the above list this is reason number 19...

As far as other substances (vaccines or otherwise) is concerned, where aborted fetal cells are used in research, development or production stages, yes the same thing applies to a number of people and it is their in their right to refuse vaccination...

The human civilization should direct research to morally acceptable vaccines, where the abuse and exploitation of human beings is not tolerated or promoted, as well as vaccines that do not cause adverse effects (as is the case with MMR also)...

I agree with all of this!!! For many of these reasons I did not take the shot. I have a science background and all of a sudden since Covid, core scientific methods for doing proper research, accurate data collection and analysis have gone out the window. Thank goodness I went to school in a time before this all happened because I worry about the curriculum in other colleges and universities, how will students bbe taught about ethics in science????

What Faucci, CDC, WHO China CCP and everyone else did so far has been criminal. And with no consequences for their misconduct. No one else could have gotten away but there seems to be another standard of law for these people.

Apparently everyone is not equal in the eyes of the law.....When will there ever be justice anymore??

I will maintain my hope because this country is the land of freedom, hope and unbelievable opportunity. This is the home of the brave, we the people must remember that we all hold the power to overthrow injustice in government that threatens our freedom. Mandating masks is a direct infringement on our freedom. What's next? Taking our guns away? We must remember that our founding fathers created our constitution and bill of rights for a reason.

America is great because God made it great. All these lockdowns are attempts to weaken our economy and ruin our country. Please everyone don't take this vaccine. I believe it is to deliberately weaken we the people who are the only ones that stand a chance against any corruption in the government. Unless the voting system is completely changed our country will end up as corrupt as all other countries that immigrants run away from to come to America for Hope, freedom, liberty and that opportunity to have a better life. Just look at the border.....so many everyday trying to get in.....ask yourself why??? Because America is great. God bless America!!! And God bless you all!!!

A GREAT article that should be read by EVERYONE! This should be REQUIRED READING that you have to do BEFORE you ACCEPT the NON-vaccine! I have tried to warn people about this but they think I'm overreacting to "internet news"! I evidently had the crap in Feb '20 after returning from a trip to Disney in Florida. It was like a bad respiratory episode with an odd side affect of not being able to taste much of anything - even PEPSODENT toothpaste! At the time the symptoms were not that widespread so I just thought I had some kind of bug. I was 67 years old and in good shape - nonsmoker, light drinker, and somewhat regular exercise. I actually slept in another room so my constant coughing wouldn't disrupt my wife's sleep!

The only thing I wonder about in this article is the lifelong immunity. My husband had Covid and 4 months later had a negative antibody test. Can anyone explain?

2 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Caroline Cary Davidson → Alice • 4 months ago

it is not necessary to have measurable antibodies in order to be immune. that is an incorrect assumption. for example:

I had measles as a very young child (I am 60 yrs old now.) if you tested me for measles antibodies, its doubtful I would have any present. that doesn't mean I am not immune to measles; I certainly am. now if I was EXPOSED to measles, THEN my (very healthy) immune system would do its job, recognize the virus and produce antibodies to combat it. that's what 'IMMUNITY' actually MEANS. antibodies are not meant to stick around indefinitely; they're meant to be made when needed. another thing people are misunderstanding about antibodies is that a positive test for covid antibodies doesn't necessarily mean that person HAD a full-blown covid infection. it might mean they were merely exposed and the immune system did its job, fought it off. the MSM is doing a great job at confusing people when it comes to the facts of how our immune system works (and there's still plenty about the immune system that we DON'T yet know!)

6 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Bella_Fantasia → Caroline Cary Davidson
• 4 months ago

Very well said, Caroline Cary Davidson. Certainly vaccine makers also have done their part in confusing people about immunity. Recall that the WHO tried to redefine herd immunity as only attainable by vaccine coverage? In general vaccine makers 'prove' immunity by the presence of antibodies, and people only have lasting antibodies if they have fought off some potentially lethal toxin (like the adjuvants in vaccines). The immune system does its job most often without fanfare, leaving no trace of the battle.

Dr. Tenpenney has warned that these vaccines kill type 2 macrophages. While the type 1 frontline white blood cell macrophages go in to tackle something lethal and make a big mess, ordinarily type 2 is the clean up crew. With no clean up, all manner of puss, bleeding, damage and debris just festers in the body or in the blood. That is just one point of ten she has described as very concerning.

"Gene Drive" is another description of concern with the DARPA-developed vaccines. Gene drive deliberately seeks to override any natural or innate immune response by our bodies.

We do not carry active antibodies for every illness we've ever had. The T-cells, however, retain a "memory" of what to do when encountering the invader.

4 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

pjmauigirl → Alice • 4 months ago

There are other markers of immunity called T cells that may confer long term immunity.

4 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Tania → Alice • 4 months ago

I believe Christian was not clear about the lifelong immunity part. He referenced a study showing that covid 19 antibodies could last as long as 8 months (and perhaps longer), but we must keep in mind that coronaviruses are NOT a class of diseases to which we develop lifelong immunity. Coronaviruses are constantly mutating which is why if you have a bad cold one year, you are not immune to that cold viruses again that same year or subsequent years.

Alice, I initially thought what you were going to say was that your husband had Covid and 4 months later contracted it again. This can also happen - not necessarily because it is a different strain of Covid, but because antibodies are only PART of the equation of immunity. Good nutritional status, sufficiently high levels of vitamin D, adequate rest, and the role of various stressors all affect your immune response. A person who recovers from Covid 19 but lives on a diet of donuts and soda will be a likely repeat Covid 19 victim even if that person has antibodies.

Keep in mind that when your body was initially challenged with covid 19 and then recovered, it demonstrated that your body was able to cope with it even though you DIDN'T HAVE ANTIBODIES to it! So since your husband recovered from his bout with Covid 19 the first time, as long as he takes care of his health, he should recover again from a subsequent challenge - regardless of his antibody status.

That said, all of these tests have flaws. So either your husband had a false positive test for covid 19 and was actually sick from something else, or he had covid and the antibody test was flawed. According to the Mayo Clinic's webpage on Covid-19 antibody testing, it is possible for the antibody test to be flawed.

3 ^ | v • Reply • Share ›

Jared Wilbur → Tania • 4 months ago

It is actually incredibly rare, and may in fact have never happened, that covid reinfection occurs. Due to the nature of PCR tests it is quite possible that one of the infections is not covid.

^ | v • Reply • Share ›

AG → Alice • 4 months ago

No one is testing for T cell immunity (except in studies), which is long term, and does not show up on the antigen tests. If you no longer have an active infection, the antibodies in the blood aren't needed and are not there. The immune system has more than one type of immunity.

Thank you for such a comprehensive and readable overview. Perhaps I could add two tidbits to the mix:

1. Vaccine clinics were chosen by the UN, the banks and Big Pharma as the infrastructure to give every Global Citizen a so-called Digital Financial Identity. This digital ID project was called ID2020, while the working title for linking this ID to vaccines was even more sinister: Entry Point. This refers to the point when an investment becomes property (think patents) but also the exact moment when programming takes over a system, all at the point of the injection needle gaining entry into the body. See a website called GlobalCitizenNews dot blogspot dot com. I can't give the link because Disqus will block it. Look up Entry Point in the archive. It was written in 2017!

2. You can make your own natural hydroxychloroquine by boiling the bark from the qina tree for 20 minutes. This can be bought from various sources online. You may have to grind it to a powder yourself to get the natural quinine out better. Mix one or two teaspoons of the cooled and strained 'tea' with tonic water (with or without gin and a slice of lemon) and take before meals.

My biggest reason for not taking the vaccine is the propaganda regarding the side effects, especially with the second dose. The narrative that the “experts” and doctors give sounds like a simplistic explanation you would give to a toddler. They all say that it's the body's immune system reacting to the mRNA and they say that's a good sign. But nobody ever mentions the lipid nanoparticles (LPN) that encapsulates the mRNA. I am a lay person, but I have been reading a lot of scientific articles regarding the pre-clinical trials that were performed on mice and primates on the effects of injecting LPNs into the body. First of all the mechanisms of the immune system are incredibly complex, and I am awed by the knowledge that the microbiologists possess. It is far from the simplistic explanations that are repeated by the doctors, who are just mouthpieces for what the medical establishment wants the general public to hear. But the toxicity of LNPs is what has always been the sticking point when it came to mRNA therapy, and what I have been able to ascertain from my readings is that it is the LNPs that are causing most, if not all, of the “vaccine” adverse side effects. Until they stop treating us as children, and state the facts rather than the propaganda, I have no reason to listen to anything they have to say!

You know every year we always heard about how many people have died from the flu! we have not heard any statistics this year since Covid came out. I am completely on board with your story and I am standing on the outskirts awaiting to see how this turns out. I am in the control group! Thank you for your letter, paper. Well researched! The good news from all this is that our world is now a little cleaner and people will stand a ways from you in the grocery store at the checkout line which is so nice! I don't have to worry about catching anything else from them.

Thank you Christian Elliot. That is the best compilation of old and new information I have yet to see! And, "I'm in the control group!" Priceless.

Great points and thank you for both putting all the information that filtered in over the last year in one summary while letting me know what the media is doing, since we have ditched our TV a dozen of years ago.

I can't make sense of the vaccines either but can't express my feelings as brilliantly as you've done here.

Johnson and has has indeed brought other vaccines to market. In fact in 2019 (before Covid) they were approved and rolled out their Ebola vaccine.

So if the article makes a false statement right out of the gate, doesn't that lead suspicion to the rest?

An outstanding article well-researched and documented. At last! Thank-you for your efforts. I see snopes a couple days ago has now put this article in its target of disinformation. You know this article has exposed too much truth when snopes is against it.

I wrote this in March 2020 --

Pathological globalists ... desire a sharp reduction in the world's population to around 500 million. An amount they deem desirable to serve their needs. The rest must be eliminated by various methods. This current pandemic fits neatly into this depopulation agenda.

Pandemics cause mass fear and mass changes of behavior and lower expectations in the expression of freedom. ...

These changes are necessary to create a world order characterized by a single central global authority to be controlled by these elites. The polity for this vision can be called a 'global pathocracy' or one world system of control by clinical psychopaths and their ideological partners and enforcers.

Most of the world's population is now in fear. Some are already feeling the effects economically. People are seeking relief—which I'm sure will be provided by the elites through the governments they control. Vaccines containing long-term adverse health implications will likely be revealed soon. Some intellectuals call this process, 'problem, reaction, solution.'

For example, create a problem like a viral pandemic—foment a global reaction of fear and sudden changes in lifestyle and public activity—then offer governmental solution with addendum programs for mass changes in behavior.

Unfortunately, most people rely on government-sponsored news and information which reflects elite propaganda at the expense of truth and accuracy.

As long as they keep the masses from the truth—they will be easily manipulated. The mass changes in behavior we really need is the rejection of official propaganda and replacing it with truth-based news and information which includes recognition of the role that clinical psychopathy plays in the understanding of the world condition. With recent initiatives in internet censorship beginning with social media, it is becoming increasingly more difficult to easily access truth media while diverting resources toward official propaganda.

The time is now for people who possess a sense of sociopolitical reality to disseminate proven sources of truth, while identifying and discouraging the traditional and propagandistic sources of news that have contributed for many decades to the false beliefs embraced by millions who are suggestible to mass manipulation.

The criminals in charge continue to encourage hate, discontent, climate hustle and pandemic hysteria as a distraction while they silence all opposition and shred the Constitution and destroy American values before everyone's eyes.

The corrupt politicians and their big business partners are changing Free Market Capitalism (private capital deployed to generate goods and services using limited government) into Crony Creditism (the government issues endless levels of debt and then picks economic winners and losers in conjunction with big corporations) in an attempt to control the US economy and herd all middle and lower income Americans into debt slavery.

Free market Capitalism was the basis our great economy and is now being systematically replaced with a dependent nanny state making the United States a much poorer country as she slides into a form of Woke Socialism and ultimately towards a Totalitarian state.

Thank you for the summary. The only changes to the list I would add would be some mention of the totally inaccurate PCR tests being used instead of proper epidemiology, and probably Dr. Michael Yeadon (former chief scientist with Pfizer) would be a little more solid than Dr. Bossche in some ways, but the issue about new variants due to vaccinations is a good point. Some of Dr. Bossche's views apparently are not that solid and somewhat unsupported from what I have read, perhaps a little bit exaggerated. Also Dr. Sucharit Bhakdi is a very good source for perspective on vaccine dangers, having published 300 papers and won awards. A third reference I find good is Dr. Sam Bailey (on YouTube) and the book she is involved with ("Vaccine Mania").

Totally agree! Covid for me was extremely mild. Worst part was feeling tired and coffee tasting like warm dishwater. That's a bummer when I buy organic, fair trade coffee beans. ;)

Call me a skeptic, or a conspiracy theorist if it makes you feel smarter. Or a denier if it makes your virtue signaling self feel morally superior. Label me as you wish, but I am not getting a COVID vaccination.

Why that should concern anyone who is getting the vaccine I don't know, unless that is an admission that the vaccine doesn't always work. But let's look at the numbers.

Covid has an overall survival rate of about 98%. If you are under 65 with no pre-existing conditions (as am I) that number goes to about 99.5%. They claim the vaccine works about 95% of the time. If 1/2 of the US gets the vaccine, then my chances of getting it are theoretically cut in half. So there is a 50-50% chance I will not get a virus with a 99.5% survival rate. Since I am masking up and social distancing, my chances of contracting it are less than 50%, more likely about 25%. But that 25% is not representative of the infection rate where I reside, which is very small, less than 1%. That means my overall rate of 25% * the number of days spent where I reside is .0025 and when I am in a higher rate environment (in my Manhattan office twice a week) = 25% * 2/7 = about .07 = (.0025 + .07) / 2 = an average of 3.75%.

Therefore, I have a 3.75% chance of getting a virus with a 99.5% survival rate. In addition, likely I have some natural immunity since COVID is the same type of virus (cold and flu) my body already has a defense against from prior exposure. Plus, I consume adequate amounts of daily supplements (and have for over twenty years) such as VIT D which most COVID victims are deficient in. Also, getting plenty of exercise in the
