	Agreed about WHO Pandemic Treaty and IHRs. The problem now is how to get rid of worse laws that are baked into US Laws. Sasha Latypova and Katherine Watt have w extensively on this topic:

	Congresswoman Malliotakis asked the Evil elf again today in COVID oversight committee exorbitant royalties received by NIH/NIAID from big pharma. The elf said he received only amount himself from some monoclonal antibody patent or other. How is it that congressi can't obtain all the redacted transaction records to each and every scientist that received from big pharmaor have they?? (2). How is it that NIH/NIAID doesn't have to divulge th to Congress?? Where's that written in the law? Or, are they just refusing to release itlike audio via Hur Report??	a minimal onal oversight d royalties at information

District attorneys make choices every day about what should be prosecuted. We are all criminals then because of the books full of laws that we all break everyday but are never selected for prosecution. The choice to prosecute this was completely political. Glorifying in the legitimacy of the verdict conveniently misses the point . It would take me an hour to find laws that you break every day. Allowing this means they will come for you too one day.

A neglected area of concern is the payments to nonprofits and Catholic Charities for subsidizing illegal immigration. As a Catholic I have stopped paying the annual Catholic appeal because I suspect it subsidizes this activity, including housing, feeding, transporting, educating and treating illegal immigrants. This is an area that Open The Books should investigate.... thank you for your work  $\heartsuit$  Like  $\bigcirc$  Reply 1 Share •••

The corruption goes deeper than that - follow the money. Big Pharma spends $Ms annually to lobby Congress, money that could been invested in new product development. However, Big Pharma shareholders expect financial returns on their investment money, or the company share price would drop. All the $Ms in covid vax development funding was taxpayer money, but there's no evidence of a provision for taxpayers to get a financial return on their investment and Big Pharma isn't risking any $. In the private sector ALL investment $ availability is predicated on a reasonable expectation of return of & on investment if the product sells, and if it doesn't all that $ is lost, a pure expense on the P&L. But if risk-free product development investment $ can be obtained from taxpayers and the only expense involved is lobbying to create the pipeline and then royalties if the product sells, that's as great a financial bargain as exists. What other large private industry has such a legal financial gravy train?! Congress extended liability immunity beyond the covid vax manufacturers to persons administering it, which further reduced the financial downside risk from the product's use, thus even further sweetening the scheme's bargain.

Adding to that were myriad actions to hide and obfuscate anything which could impair the covid vax money gravy train. First, the contracts with Big Pharma were let for the first time via a secret mechanism the CIA uses to hide it's activities, so the drug development contracts using taxpayers' money remain secret to taxpayers (the investors) and industry competitors. There's zero national security justification for this! When's somebody going to sue to out these contracts?! Second, the clinical trials data was also kept secret so parties had to sue for release, which only then occured in small periodic drabs very long after the govt bought $Bs of unproven vax - with taxpayers' $, which automatically triggered and accelerated receipt of royalties. Third, every effort was made by the involved 'health' agencies to promote the vax and aggressively suppress any even expert critical review, comment, opinion or experience, and suppressed all competing alternatives to enable widespread EUA use. This included financial incentives to hospitals and others to support the gravy train's scheme. All in direct support of increased royalties. Fourth, parties has to sue for release of information about the royalty payments and even now complete information is withheld. Fifth, the vax makers used confidential agreements to move product into other countries, which hid the paper trail about the private global financial benefits of public investments - don't the taxpayers, the original at risk investors have a right to know??? All these actions had the effect of increasing the royalties, enhancing the value of the scheme and protecting it for future use.

And one thought it was bad enough that the covid vax development contracts were let to a company which was convicted of marketing fraud and another who never developed a vaccine before. The above financial assistance scheme was made in heaven for such companies. Next we ought to be asking how much money was made on the stocks of these companies by agency & Congressional insiders who knew or were part of the scheme. And how many political favors were paid back to cronies who got tipped off early???
