After I finished this article, I finally figured out what the massive financial incentive hospitals push remdesivir and block Ivermectin. The article has been updated to include that.

Thanks AMD and to add that when I visited my pal in a UK hospital who was on a "co this pal reported that the staff put above his bed the name of his physician (bearing in mind my friend was declining the snake oil...so a covid denier lol 😂) the name of his doctor on his bed was Dr C. Straite! I kid you not! 😂 I said they're taking the Michael with you covid denier mate! He's lived to tell his tale. I took his ivermectin, zinc, iodine and vit c meds hidden in the bottom of a box of Quality Street choccies haha ...he took himself care up in his little private toilet cubicle each time, so to avoid the stasi nurses from finding he was on illegal treatment lol 😂 fyi he wasn't on any medication there at all, just blood pressure monitoring 🙄 I said "don't let them stick an IV line in your arm, else you'll be minutes from the Midazolam medication lol!" 😂 he listened ❤️

Tragically that was not the case for MANY! There needs to be a book, or even a 'coffee table' like book with the MANY stories of the HORRIFIC hospital experiences! Like CHD's VAX bus and continuing to cover stories on their daily CHD TV videos.

My question that has never been answered is who perpetrated the Plandemic and what mechanism they used to get so many "authorities" to quietly fall in line (eg government hospitals, Federation of State Medical Boards, etc). Some in authority must have known it was wrong.

Why is it so hard to trace this back to the source.

Excellent article, thank you, AMD. I have written about my experience with hospital malfeasance during the COVID debacle several times, but not on this substack so I'll write about it here. In early 2020, shortly after I reopened my dental office after closing it down for seven weeks due to COVID rules, lockdowns, and fear driven insanity, a patient who worked in the area of a local large hospital that records cause of death on death certificates, came in for an appointment. She was very distraught and when I asked her how she was doing, completely unloaded on me the horrible details of the unethical fraudulent behavior that she was witnessing and participating in at the hospital. She and her co workers had brought it to management's attention that they were being told to mark cause of death as Covid on death certificates when the patient medical records indicated otherwise. She talked about a motorcycle crash victim, a gang related gunshot victim, and a long term cancer patient who had all died recently and when they were swabbed and PCR tested, their swabs came back positive for Covid, and even though they were asymptomatic as far as COVID medical records indicated (the motorcycle accident victim and gunshot victim were at the hospital on arrival), their death certificates were labeled as cause of death COVID, so that the hospital could get the money. I was shocked by this as I hadn't heard of this before. She and her coworkers had been told by management after bringing up the unethical nature of this policy, that they could either keep their mouths shut or quit their jobs. She had just received this news that morning before her appointment and was visibly shaken by it.

I had been following Dr. Malone, Bret Weinstein, Dr. Kory and others by this time, so I had some idea of what was going on already, but that real world account was my first experience with a direct account of this type.

We probably coordinate better in groups because of that.

"Go Down Gardening" is the short tale of how I was sneak fired for vaccine. October 2021 on a day off, but when I was planting the fall-winter veggies & a tree in the garden I kept for the clinic at my own expense and effort, as I was there when I got the call. Everybody saw.

<https://www.johndayblog.com/2021/10/go-down-gardening.html>

I had been the only early-treating Physician at the clinic since March 2020, became politically awkward for the clinic, so after 18 years, I suddenly became political liability.

I blogged through the whole thing at that original Google blog above. The A Board of Family Medicine read it, and revoked my Board Certification after 3 for "advising patients against COVID-19 vaccination".

All of this was done across the country to anybody who insisted upon doing things openly for their patients.

You're over analyzing this.

It's not a ruling class; it is degradation of law in pursuit of gain, and all strip types pursue that path. There is no guiding hand, per se. It is the corrupt so radar for other corrupt souls who seeks gain and cuts deals in shady come mutual gain.

It is how the legal community evolves into a democrat tribe, and judges, ele attorneys, become connected networks who conspire. Prosecutors--the or aren't blackballed--gain no traction in those courts, so preferred lawbreakin order of the day.

Police forces are well paid and pensioned beyond desire, so law enforceme reliably obedient to orders to bite or stand down while the preferred citizen non-preferred. It is why police will bludgeon the non-masked beach stroller order by the mayor.

No, it is simple corruption run amok. Executives or directors who intentiona scramble pharma lots to prevent geo/cluster tracing of reported side effect Premeditated crime for gain.

Read Stanley Milgram's experiment. His report on the experiment is on the Inter Archive and there are various descriptions online. They aren't psychopaths. On they are part of the approximate 80% of people all over the world who, as AMD weak moral fiber and defer to authorities seeing that as morality to the point the even if they think they might kill someone.

♡ LIKE (7) 💬 REPLY (1)

Halime 🌟 Oct 2

The Milgram experiment actually supports my point more than yours. It sho people can be persuaded by authority to do things they know are wrong. If a medical professional, they're not some random volunteer in a psychology experiment. They're trained to protect patients, question dangerous orders patients first. If you're repeatedly following instructions that harm or kill pat that's a personal choice, not just obedience.

That's why I used the word "psychopath." I'm not claiming I can diagnose s anything. I'm saying that when someone knowingly takes part in harming p ignores their conscience, ignores the responsibilities that come with their jo keeps doing it anyway, I see that as psychopathic behavior. Milgram might i why ordinary people can be pressured into doing things they know are wro doesn't erase personal responsibility or excuse a lack of moral courage.

If I believed I was being ordered to hurt or kill people, I'd rather lose my job my conscience. At some point, "I was just following orders" stops being an and becomes a choice.

♡ LIKE (3) 💬 REPLY (1)

I read his entire report and did not get from it what you did if you read study was about obedience to authority. Reading articles such as this I am always reminded of Stanley Milgram's experiment. 80% of the population across all countries will defer and obey authorities to the point thinking they might kill them. I find it interesting there were howls about the experiment "unethical" and, to my mind, similar ones were then banned in the future because they told too much truth. The outcome of the results should have been educating people in sound discretion and morality, but no doubt that would run counter to ensuring population conformity.

Monolaurin, while not a cure, nevertheless helps disrupt the lipid envelope of enveloped viruses thus supporting the immune system. As I recall all of them including HIV are lipid enveloped. After I had covid, I was prescribed Ivermectin, which helped enormously, but not entirely for what I might call a kind of malaise. It turns out that's post viral syndrome (now famously called long covid) which caused EBV to reactivate, which we proved with a blood test. Taking monolaurin after the Ivermectin kicked the last of it. I now take it regularly on the notion that these 5 or so viruses lurk in the body and come out when there is major stress (or in my case aging). "reminder" they are unwelcome.

I got the shot in my left arm and first felt nothing. Then within the next several hours I felt electrical shocks, muscles twitching, chest pain. I drove from the hospital i was working at 2 hrs home back to Fort Lauderdale Beach, Miami (The Flamingo) and then i literally passed out for 12 hrs of sleep. He can't care to walk anymore. He just gave up. He was cruising the halls with the wheelchair though I tried to visit him twice a day everyday and everyday I kept exposing neglect. I could go on and on but I won't. Eventually, after COVID prevented me from checking up on him, they called me in and said he was non-responsive. Come to find out they neglected him. He was non-responsive for 3 days before they decided to call me and an ambulance. His fingernails were over-grown and he had septic shock. They tried everything. I was NOT allowed to be at his bedside (the PLAN-de was he was 5 minutes away from death. They called me at 5:30am and said his blood pressure was dropping. I got there and held his hand, kissed his forehead and told him that I was sorry he suffered and that I loved him. He passed away within a minute. Nobody in that nursing home cared about him. They were a dysfunctional bunch. They were even giving him high potassium food. I told them he cannot have high potassium foods. No one cared!! I was able to get a small settlement. A nuisance settlement because if I wanted to go to trial, they would have dragged it out for years until I eventually died. Stay far away from PRUITT Healthcare!

The hospitals were the first place for "real deaths" to occur. Once they killed people, they were able to use those deaths to get more fear. Those policies killed millions — and this is all because the vaccine came.

This was Democide and the covid protocols allowed it:

Kitty-I have 6 kids and the only one who didn't take the vax was the one with a minor at home and I had to deal with her dad who threatened to take me to court to force me to get her vaccinated. I was also so worried and sad that he rejected my appeals to wait and see. One was diagnosed with stage 3 breast cancer years ago. I never suggested to her that it could be related, but it will always be back of my mind. She is cancer free now after a double mastectomy. My sister also pled with to wait and see, was diagnosed with a very rare and very advanced blood cancer last year and is still in a fight for her life. I don't fully understand what made me say "oh hell no" when the vaccines were being pushed, except that it was in my personality to get forced into things, but I do feel blessed that myself, my husband and youngest child did not get any of them.

I'm going to ramble. With my discovery of DMSO from this site and other natural adjuncts like tea and Vit B17, I don't care what I contract. If DMSO and a few adjunct natural remedies I paste won't fix it, then I'll die from whatever it doesn't fix rather than bankrupt my family and be anyway sick and wasted. I was raised in the old school times of country doctors where if you had to crawl to the doctor, you weren't sick enough to need him. The flu lasted a week and a half with medication or ten days without it. Do the math.

Natural remedies worked prior to the Rockefellers, Carnegies and Rothschilds and their oil and garbage discovered shortly after Michael Faraday was able to produce Benzine. From then on, it was extracted into poisons and named medicine. I have little faith in medicine and I had not much to lose during the Plan-demic. At that time, I employed a 0.15% H₂O₂ + Lugol's Iodine nebulizing solution and created my own version of supplement mega-dosing for 4 weeks (adapted from Drs. Brownstein, Mercola, et.al.) as my protocol and knocked it flat in five weeks. However, the spike left me with chronic Afib and long COVID fatigue for five years before I learned of the nicotine patch. I'm mitigating the fatigue with a daily 7mg nicotine patch.

Others out there who are worried about addiction to nicotine: As a former heavy smoker and I quit over 50 years ago, I was very concerned about that. Smoking is addicting and miserable to stop. However, what I've discovered is that it's the routine of smoking itself that's addictive. In my day, it was the mindset: the Marlboro Man, Lucky Strike, Winston, the Doctors on TV and the Jackie Gleason show; being cool, the flip-top box, the cup of coffee, the lighting, the atmosphere and the acceptance.

The patch has literally given me my life back. If you suffer from long covid, it's an option - try it. leave it. Should you decide, please begin with and stay with 7mg. It's more than enough to do the job.

Like DMSO, it itches when you apply it. Coat the area with a wipe-on barrier film or spray with a nasal spray over the area and let it dry. It will reduce the itching and redness. Those side effects are caused by the different adhesives between makers so try a different brand if you have a reaction. I don't care about that because I have my energy back (to a point) and no longer sleep most of the day away so let 'er itch and turn red.

I read the holocaust poem, and it really struck a note. You and your like-minded "dissident" are opening the eyes of the world, one lid at a time. Thank you for your research and sharing. It is appreciated.

nicotine -- it's related to nicotinic acid which is vitamin B3. They deliberately rename niacin because they didn't want people to make the connection to nicotine! I believe some evidence that vitamin B3 has some efficacy in treating and preventing covid.

Here's what Brave's "Search Assist" has to say about it:

Vitamin B3 (niacin/nicotinic acid) has been studied as an adjunct therapy in COVID-19 its role in NAD+ metabolism and anti-inflammatory effects, with some research suggesting high-dose forms like niacinamide may help reduce inflammation and support recovery. A clinical trial found that targeted-release nicotinamide improved physical performance in COVID-19 patients within two weeks, particularly those with risk factors for severe disease.

Here's what Brave's "Search Assist" has to say about smokers and covid:

Smokers showed lower rates of SARS-CoV-2 infection and symptomatic COVID-19 compared to non-smokers in several studies, but findings on COVID-19 death risk are mixed and depend on smoking status and adjustments for confounders. Former smokers had a lower risk of death from COVID-19 than never smokers, while current smokers showed a small, statistically non-significant increased risk in some analyses.

That's about the best summation of the covid hospital fraud that there is. Thank you.

I remember in the early days of 2020, when I suspected democide, I was trying to get someone on social media to understand that something was wrong. Her response was, "Do you expect to believe that all those health professionals would willingly harm patients?"

It was a great question. I had intuited the answer, but didn't want to respond without evidence. At the time, all I could say was, "How do we know what is going on in those buildings if we are not allowed to advocate for our loved ones, when we are barred from the hospitals?"

Soon after that, I began to understand the mechanism of carrots and sticks at play in hospitals. I began to learn the details. But by that time, she had blocked me.

I assume now, today, she is one of the millions of former true COVID believers, one of the influencers with influence who helped demonize heretics, but now would just rather not think about COVID anymore.

I got the same question. How could all those people work in lock step like that? It is hard to wrap your head around just how many people had to be either stupid, or greedy.

I think in hospitals once a patient "tested positive" for covid, their care went to the infectious disease doctor, who had no problem making bank from patients dying repeatedly from the poison protocol.

I also think many hospital staff didn't take part in the covid murders since they were under the infectious disease doctor's umbrella. So not all hospital employees participated in the crime.

I believe this was written before. A lot of people were just one horrific link in the chain of democide. They just followed orders, and didn't see the end result. This allowed them to feel the guilt too much.

I agree with just about everything you're saying. But do you think health workers wards didn't realize what was happening after weeks and months?

I don't know. I don't go near hospitals, but from what I've learned, and what I know of humans, I'd say something in them allowed them to bury their principles and go along with it. I think it was several issues, and I'm still trying to name the phenomenon. It seems something to do with an almost religious faith in authority that developed—a Milgram experiment based on the almighty Protocol handed down from the God of Science.

But more than an actual belief, I think it was a cover, behind which one's lack of conscience could hide from one's conscience. But the undercurrent running through all that, the driving force, was the fear of being disciplined and fired, of losing one's livelihood. It's clear that, for most involved, the Hippocratic oath does not supersede the need to get a mortgage and stay in good social standing.

But it was the hospital administrators who drove that bus, and they were even more detached from the patients. Their goal was to reap the manna from heaven that was coming through the CARES Act, etc. And if they didn't rake in the cash, they'd have to ask for it from others. If the doctors had backed up the nurses, and the administrators the doctors, maybe we'd have had a different result.

But money is the root of all evil. There was an incentive to have COVID victims. I think the incentive and I'll show you the outcome.

But I don't want to leave out what seems to be another pervasive factor: the basic devaluation of certain lives—elderly, poor, certain racial groups. I think it was the hospitals serving the poorest people that lost the most people. There's that.

I think a Bill Gates-like Event 201 was held, specifically with regard to how hospitals handle the mechanism of carrots and sticks.

Anyway. I've talked too long.

♡ LIKE (6) 💬 REPLY (2)

Nah you didn't talk too long. If we don't talk here, then where else can we talk?
I had a recent interaction at a hospital with a staff member. She knew what was going on. She told me so. I then asked "so how do you work here?" She said "it's just a job. I am also finding among the general population that more people know. It makes them uneasy, so they push it to the back of their mind and go on hoping it won't happen to them."

Aside from friends dying from vax that I warned about, I know hospital protocols killed. No matter what I tried to tell people I was shunned, ignored, or thought of as crazy or evil.

My nephew's other grandmother in a rehab facility was kept from visitors and then was not until her daughter finally got an ambulance to take her to ER where the staff was horrified by the condition of bed sores all over her body and she died shortly after.

My friend had just moved to GA and had gone to a hospital for a test. She was on same page regarding covid and vax's so I asked her why did she need to go there for any reason. She was sick!! They had HCQ at home if she needed it, plus taking supplements. She texted me from the hospital about their questions that she was very concerned about. I told her to get out ASAP. They had told her her blood oxygen was low and thought she should stay for observation. They kept her and asked if needed did she want to be on a ventilator which she said ...NO! I kept texting her to leave asap. Unfortunately, she stayed, maybe her husband talked her into it.

It was weeks before her husband txt'd to say her health was worse and she would be there longer. I told him to please get her out asap. He didn't respond. Another few weeks and I found out from a mutual friend that her cousin online said she died. I cried a long time and was so angry. I knew they made her sick and all for $$, incentivized by every additional $ they made for vax they claimed, including that she died from Covid. No, she did not! And she wasn't sick when she went for a test.

I got in touch with her cousin, upset like me, who told me that she had frantically phoned her husband that day to come get her out asap. But they injected her with something they claimed to calm her but by the time he arrived she had died. They murdered her so she couldn't sue them. They did to her.

I will never forget! I pray for accountability and ultimately God's justice for all who did these things.

I kept my elderly parents healthy at home, no vax's, just immune supplements and when needed the HCQ/IVM/Zinc/Z-pac protocol. My brother and some friends didn't understand. But now in the 90's they are both still with me.

If we're not part of the solution, we're part of the problem!

There's many horror stories the most horrifying is that doctors offices, urgent care facilities, drug stores, hospitals still promoting MRNA COVID-19 shots now cleverly, deceptively mislabeled as flu shots. That battle rages on.

Husband's Nephrologist (kidney specialist) at the height of covid madness exclaimed during a particular office visit, "My patients are dying. They are dying!" she wailed pacing back and forth with arms flailing about. "Stop killing them." I replied. She sat down speechless and wide-eyed at my theatrics. Hospital staff knew by that time that shunting patients, prescribing Remdesivir caused renal failure and was a death sentence. I knew too.

Patients were purposely subjected to treatments that caused death but were made to believe that covid-19 was so dangerous that deadly treatments were necessary. Patients with pneumonia who died due to medical malpractice were counted covid related deaths.

Our cousin Big Mike from NC was one case with big pneumonia. Hospital one after another tried to treat his pneumonia. Fate would have it he landed where covid allegedly began UNC at Chapel Hill. Lucky for him he was in ICU not isolation but he was threatened to allow being shuttled to another hospital prescribed Remdesivir or he would die in three days. Mike refused. Something didn't seem right and not on my watch. I pleaded with Clara. His wife made the long drive every day with a cooked meal and covertly gave him Ivermectin, Vit D and Zinc. Within three days, Big Mike was out of the hospital.

We stopped going to his yearly recheck at Mayo/Jax as they had lost the And we haven't been back since. My husband has a local nephrologist who monitors levels and kidney function. But who also took the vax and wanted my husband to tak GOD he didn't as I don't have another kidney to give. In the meantime, my primary of (whom I fired at the beginning of Covid) died 2 years ago. In 2010 none other than Ralph Baric, whose people developed the bioweapon known as SARS then SARS2 (covid), coauthored a paper stating that "Zn(2+) inhibits coronavirus and RNA polymerase activity in vitro and zinc ionophores block the replication of these viruses in culture".

<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/21079686/>

They knew in 2010 that Zinc with an ionophore like Hydroxychloroquine was a treatment for malaria and they knew in 2019 and 2020 that it was a treatment for covid! Some doctors read this and started using it to treat covid. Dr. Zelenko came up with his Zelenko protocol which was basically HCQ and zinc, and successfully treated hundreds.

Even in 2005 they knew that Chloroquine was a potential treatment for SARS corona virus.

<https://pubmed.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/16115318/>

But of course Fauci and his fellow mass murderers suppressed this and even ridiculed Trump for suggesting it. When will the mass murderers be arrested, tried, and sentenced?

I do think that the general public had been "primed" for falling for much of the COVID treatment vaccination propaganda by so much blind faith in the medical profession. For years my experience of questioning treatments or drugs or procedures has mostly been answered with annoyance or outright hostility, despite all the talk about "ask your doctor or healthcare professional." Most people unquestioningly take a range of medications while also demanding a drug for whatever ailment they think they have. There is almost unlimited demand for the latest weight loss drug, sleep and anxiety medications and so forth - we've become a society where a drug can solve your physical and mental problem and both the pharmaceutical industry and the medical profession are happy to provide them. There may be some who do but for the most part no medical professional would recommend lifestyle changes rather than drugs. When individuals came up against the stark reality of what was going on - or not - with COVID treatments, it was quite the shock. While there seems to be a lot of trust in the medical profession generally, I doubt that many have woken up and started questioning other treatments or decided they don't need what could be called "lifestyle" drugs - the pharmaceutical companies are still doing well and most folks can't imagine life without at least one drug to take for this or that.

Wow. Thank you for writing This. And bless you - you are answering at least one of the questions I had. The government paid Those who did the protocols.

<https://aapsonline.org/bidens-bounty-on-your-life-hospitals-incentive-payments-for-covid-19>

I worked in Those agencies during a time I believe they laid The foundation That enabled the pandemic including The medical records, The CMS Innovation center, basically demolishing old practices and putting Them under large health Systems, etc. . I also worked in The area of bioethics so my radar went off very early, especially after seeing This.

<https://youtu.be/flt7D99ix-Q> from December.

There were 3 female doctors who called This very early. one of them spoke about being in several sessions by some group That was about The same topics. Wish I could remember more specifics. These women predicted pretty correctly The 5-10 year time frames for deaths from The pandemic. of Course There was Event 201 and The Johns Hopkins Covid maps (where they did not use the correct The definitions for cases _ and deaths "from Covid, with Covid") which seemed to drive The current pandemic narrative.

I am very Thankful That The good doctors (God's watchmen on The wall) Answered His call to help people with Covid and in avoiding or dealing with The effects of vaccines and treatments. We are still in The dark times and will be until The Rapture And Tribulation. Too many mechanisms are being created That align perfectly with Bible prophecy.

I loved your article! You did an outstanding job of presenting the myriad factors of autocracy that have been used ever since humans invented the first tribe, and the applying them to medical system and recent protocols.

I do have a suggestion, however. In your article, you state:

"Likewise, I've recently been thinking about the broader implications of the Ukrainian gov decision to sacrifice its population and country to keep the war going so it can continue e itself from it."

I think you would be a bit more on target with your message if you reworded that to read:

"Likewise, I've recently been thinking about the broader implications of the leaders within Ukrainian government deciding to sacrifice the population and country to keep the war go those leaders can continue enriching themselves."

Yesterday I spoke to my 82 year old mother, who is in great health, and has the best health money can buy. She mentioned that my stepfather just got a hepatitis vaccine, a flu shot, and a COVID vaccine. I asked how he was feeling, and she said he was napping because he was feeling bad. I kept my mouth shut, but none of that surprised me.

She also mentioned that she had already received her flu shot "because it is recommended for people over 65" and was going in next week to get her COVID shot. This was shocking to me, someone who never got a COVID vaccine. I kind of assumed this was all in the past, but this conversation with my mother reminded me it will never go away. I asked her how often she was getting COVID shots, and she said annually.

It reminds me of the story about the Japanese soldier in WWII who didn't know the war was over and was out in the forest believing he was still battling the enemy. To my knowledge, my mother had no side effects or vaccine injuries, but I wouldn't really know. My mother and stepfather never met a doctor they didn't love, or a vaccine they weren't willing to take.

The recent story about the "Last Ditch" lesbian bar in Massachusetts in turmoil because a week ago they decided to drop their mandatory N95 mask policy drives this home. I was shocked to see there are still people out there behaving daily as if COVID is a serious threat that requires diligence. Putting all the virus talk to the side, I really thought the limitations of a mechanical ventilator were acknowledged at this point, which is apparently incorrect. It is crazy to me that there are still people out there wearing N95 masks and worried about COVID.

My mother is very conservative, unless it comes to vaccines. Anytime it comes up in conversation it becomes clear quickly we see it differently, my best to back down and change the subject. There is no point in arguing. I know neither of us will change our opinions. And my stepfather is such a hypochondriac that I know he will take anything his doctor recommends.

When we were in the early stages of the pandemic, I am convinced some deaths in my community were based on the vaccines, and since then I (even though I can't prove anything) that some of the aggressive cancer people I know are based in vaccine uptake. But it all seems to have been "in your face" and it is hard to say.

As for whether COVID was real or not, it seems clear that there was something going around that was making people sick. But in terms of identifying the one metric I can't get past is how there was almost zero flu cases at the time. I also have a very hard time believing testing based on 40 cycles just can't believe every diagnosed case of COVID was legitimate. Just believe every cause of death marked as "from COVID."

No matter where you fall in the spectrum of opinions, I think it is safe to say most of us see the "pandemic era" as a turning point in our society. I just look back with sadness about how society has changed. I must be old.

"How hospitals turned on their patients during..." I think we have to be careful how we view. Many hospital systems are arguably still turning on their patients. From late-term abortion care. When I visit my kid's pediatrician and see pro-trans care posters in the room, 7 year old, for example. Where is "do no harm?" These kids aren't adults capable of making decisions. We can't ignore that medicine is no longer about care/health and well-being, it's about affirming ideology. COVID was but one example.

Hospitals during the Covid Crisis were to be totally avoided, if one wanted to live. I heard stories from people who lost loved ones. However, they were bad previously, with their m creating food, toxic air, nurses too busy doing paper work to wait on patients ...and staph observed these conditions, when visiting relatives and friends.

Medicine today has no correlation to Health Care. Health Care was hijacked in 1910, after Flexner Report was produced by the Carnegie Foundation; along with John D. Rockefeller established his patented petroleum-based drugs as the basis of medicine. JDR supported and got doctors to join by promising them Higher Income and Prestige. He got his men on college boards and changed the curriculum to promote drugs. His petroleum-based drug have failed any test; as petroleum does not belong in the human body. Nutrition was not in medical school, when 95% of health issues were in the past nutrition-related. Today, Medicine played a major part in creating health issues. Medical doctors were not taught the bloods designed to carry nutrients from natural food to NOURISH the cells, glands and organs...to energy and good health. Any other matter in the bloodstream would be carried by the blood and damage the internal workings of the human body.

That's why. They also heavily restricted their use (e.g., some places had a policy that minorities could get them). The logic they used was that they were no longer matched circulating variants, but that same logic was never applied to the vaccine. The real story was that many vaccinated injury patients (who had the original variant's spike protein) reacted to the monoclonals and then no longer could get them because they were all thrown away.

Who selects which medical technologies survive regulation, which remain economically viable which continue to be researched — and therefore which eventually become part of the "standard care"?

I have been investigating this in Europe through a group of forgotten bacterial vaccines and immunological preparations. Some existed for decades and then disappeared.

The question I started with was simple: were they scientifically disproven — or did the system simply stop carrying them forward?

What I found became an investigation I call "Biological Shield."

A centralized Government and centralized health care system are equally dangerous for the same reasons.

Just like the Founders of our Constitutional Republic insisted on a weak Federal (centralized) Government, we should also demand a decentralized health system.

The pandemic would not have been possible without vast swaths of healthcare concentrated in large systems.

Centralized healthcare with one hand provides the marketing illusion of personalized care and the other hand provides low value revenue driven protocol based healthcare.

The only thing that's modern with modern medicine are the buildings in which protocol based therapies are conducted.

I watched the whole hearing of Sen Johnson and was moved to tears several times. There's evil out there wearing white lab coats. I have always known doctors are arrogant now I know they are either pure evil or just plain stupid and evil given what they did during Covid-19. AMD Johnson mentioned you so he knows who you are. Your impact will be even greater if you come from behind the screen and let the world know you and thank you. We all need you as our

We were basically waiting for decades for someone to do what Senator Johnson was made the decision to do as much as I could to support him, but at the same time virtually everyone knows who I am and that allows me to do a lot more to help people.

I have observed so many famous figures, gurus and cult leaders throughout become deranged by their following. A large portion of people need to have to pin themselves upon and heap praise onto etc. Most people who get that get high off of it and addicted to it, and lose their ability to focus on getting message out, while with the people who follow them, the focus shifts from message to the person. My job (along with the other doctors who contribute newsletter) is to get the information that needs to be out there into the social have it last and sustain by other people copying it and claiming it as their own receive adulation from others. This newsletter is a horrendous amount of work especially to the standard we think it needs to be done, and the motivating behind that work is to make a real positive impact, so I avoid anything which disrupt it (e.g., I've turned down a few very tempting and highly lucrative offers have been sent to me). I want things here to be very clean: people like the value they can pay to subscribe to support creating more of it and nothing more.

"the majority of doctors are not willing to deviate from standardized protocols and guidelines when it is clear they will not produce an acceptable outcome for the patient (instead, in these situations, they will simply insist they did their best and there was "nothing we could do")

This is the key to mistrust.

Certainly, the incentives matter; overwhelmingly they do matter, but at the end of the day comes down to the individuals, regardless of what industry they are in.

I am so grateful for the private-practice physician I had for decades until a predatory corporate medical/hospital group entered the locality, deliberately and cynically bankrupting private and then turning those physicians into corporate employees.

My physician hired on, but retired after just a few years. He thought that he would be able to focus on patients, rather than spending all those extra hours on managing the increasingly-burdensome aspects of a small business.

Such smart men, but so very naïve about how corporations operate in bad faith, especially to prospective employees.

That physician.... he knew ME, and what tended to work best for my individual makeup. He had absolute trust because of it. If something wasn't working, he thought outside the box and promptly tried other things.

Now, it's always a negotiation and frictional exercise in remaining ill for months or years, before getting a corporate doctor to pay attention to evidence. If bronchitis responds favorably and is denied even the standard protocol for six months, then improves a bit with a begrudging prescription for Amoxicillin, one shouldn't have to wait for another year to get Azithromycin.

If the Azithromycin helps dramatically but doesn't fully clear up what has become chronic bronchitis, one shouldn't have to wait another year and have their livelihood destroyed by absenteeism, to have an argument for another round of antibiotics.

It isn't just the corporate factor, the "public health" disregard for the welfare of the public incentives or anything to do with the Covid lies; mistrust is very much owing to the quotation in the article that appears at the top of this post.

The way things are going, it won't be illegal drugs the cartels will be smuggling in from Mexico. It will be common antibiotics that are sold over-the-counter without a physician gatekeeper, that will be even more profitable to smuggle into the US.

We saw that during Covid, as well; the open borders led to families smuggling Ivermectin into the country, because the murderous psychopaths running the medical industry are cynically and deliberately keeping people sick.

Sorry, but no; the time for charitable interpretations of that physician "paint by numbers" is long past.

Thank you for the update on this. The truth is out for those who want to know. And I just learned that Bill Gates was summoned to a Dutch court to be put on trial for "crimes against humanity". There are numerous reports on YouTube, and some go back as far as 9 months ago. Gates refused to show, but the trial went on without him. I'm in the process of finding updates. Of course, nothing is being reported on corporate-owned mainstream media, but the cat's out of the bag and can't be stopped. Thank you for all you do!

Thank you for a top notch article. What went on during Covid was a travesty it opened the eyes to how our Medical is run and controlled. It was not just hospitals nursing homes, assisted living facilities were all paid it was protocol to test until you get a positive and we all know how reliable the tests were. My mother died in an assisted living facility a year after the big scare not only did they get paid so did we. I was appalled. They tested her 5 times until they got a positive then they pulled the curtains for her. the whole thing was all about killing and money. There will be a special place in hell for some when they leave this world.

This is a difficult conversation, but an important one. Whatever our views on COVID, medicine should never punish patients for asking questions. Transparency, evidence, informed consent, and compassion have to come before politics, profit, or institutional loyalty.

"Overview of the Surgisphere HCQ Study

The Surgisphere study faced major scrutiny and led to retractions for several reasons.

Data Integrity Issues — The study's data was found to be potentially fraudulent, leading to retraction by major journals like The Lancet.

Impact on Treatment Guidelines — The initial findings influenced global treatment protocols, prompting some countries to authorize HCQ use.

Peer Review Concerns — The rapid publication and subsequent retraction highlighted flaws in the peer review process, raising calls for reform in scientific publishing.

Public Health Consequences — The controversy surrounding the study affected public trust in COVID-19 treatments and research integrity."

Thank you so much for this comprehensive report on the crime of the century. You are absolutely right that there must be accountability. They murdered my brother in the hospital and my friend is dying slowly from her mandated shot injury. There are so many of us out here with apologies and consequences. Nothing else will do. Time will not heal this wound.

My friend's father duly went to the hospital when his COVID didn't appear to resolve, not in hospitals but because he didn't want to burden his family at home.

But it DID resolve. The doctor called my friend and said they would have to release him. T BEFORE he was due to be released, the doctor, in an agitated state, called and said he had suddenly worsened out of nowhere and he had asked to be put on a ventilator (or someone permitted it...sure). Something he would never have done in a million years.

He was, as they say in the horror movie, dead by dawn.
