This ain't rocket science. Vaccines are only given protected status as emergency treatment if there is no effective other treatment.

I wasn't alive when they killed Kennedy. Once I was old enough to understand it, I thought that was bad enough. Then, I didn't think I'd live to see a greater crime than 9/11. But it took only a decade for the next big one. On a log scale, we're in for another in about a year.

From the FDA: "An Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) is a mechanism to facilitate the availability and use of medical countermeasures, including vaccines, during public health emergencies, such as the current COVID-19 pandemic. Under an EUA, FDA may allow the use of unapproved medical products, or unapproved uses of approved medical products in an emergency to diagnose, treat, or prevent serious or life-threatening diseases or conditions when certain statutory criteria have been met, including that there are no adequate, approved, and available alternatives.

truth or go home 6 days ago (Edited)

If you think the medical community is about preventing death or even treating patients, you are clearly wrong. It is about feeling good about themselves while making money.

They cannot make money on the vaccines if Ivermectin cures the disease. They also would not have any patients if Ivermectin cures the disease. Therefore they do not want it. Simple as that.

The propagandists know this - that's why they concocted this ridiculous "heroes work here" campaign - while the hospitals were literally killing patients with ventilators rather than saving them with Hydroxychloroquine, Ivermectine or just plain old Vitamin C.

truth or go home 6 days ago

Certainly possible - I don't have enough evidence to prove that or the opposite. I think most of the medical community does not share the belief that there is no disease however.

I haven't seen it firsthand, but I do know many people who swear they had something, and since it is so close to a cold or flu, even if that's what it is, people were still sick.

Regardless of whether there is a disease or not - the fear of it is certainly 100% real, The propaganda has been real and the actions due to the fear of it are real. And of course the ridiculous "vaccines" are real too.

▲ 20 ▼ 1 Reply **▲

bigjim 6 days ago

I've had it, it's real, it's a bit like a bad flu but - unlike every other flu and cold I've had - was very dry. And almost put me in hospital.

The NHS helpline refused to let me get HCQ or IVM, and for three days & nights I struggled for breath and my SpO2 was hovering around 92. Just as I thought I couldn't handle it any more - my ribcage and diaphragm were getting exhausted - my immune system FINALLY did its job and symptoms started easing.

So, yes, it's real. It's just not The Black Death, and doesn't justify lockdowns, mask mandates, experimental "vaccines", passports, or any of the other Great Reset byllsh!t our betters are using it as a pretext for.

I'm happy to hear that you pulled through! But you could've gotten Ivermectin at Tractor Supply or your local farm store, human dosages available online. Exact same thing.

bigjim 6 days ago

@Stinkbug

Thanks. Problem is, when you're that ill, you're in no condition to go out to the nearest Agricultural supply store (I live in the suburbs) and then sit down and do the calculations necessary to work out how much you should be taking (and back then I'd only just heard of IVM and was mainly focused on HCQ).

I've got hold of some pharmaceutical grade IVM now (go to FLCCC's website for a list of physicians who will dispense it). It's extremely unlikely I'll get Covid again, but I may try it with other colds/flus to see if it has any effect. And if any friends fall ill with COVID I can give it to them.

I strongly urge people: get hold of some now and work out dosages BEFORE you fall ill. And before governments clamp down on it, for "our own safety".

Mind you... I'll bet Fauci, Daszac, Batwoman & Co are even now feverishly splicing together an IVM-resistant "mutation".

With that information they can deduce the level of opposition to their conquest of the world.

Most conspiracy theorists think of these things as intentional, coordinated plans by the powers that be.

It's almost never that. This particular case is about the "experts" and media desperately trying to save face. They've been wrong from the get go. And now, as LetThemEatRand accurately points out, the emergency vaccine authorization depends on there being no alternative treatment. An alternative simply can't be allowed or all the experts and lefty media shills are exposed. It's not a conspiracy, just ruling class acting in their best interests to preserve their status.

This is what I say to people who won't believe that there's a conspiracy going on. There's so much consistency in the narrative across different sectors politicians, the media, academics and even celebrities - that it can't possibly be anything other than a conspiracy.

Even the apparent deviations from the message just seem to be designed to give the appearance of dissent, while the underlying narrative carries on as before. For example: "That Astra Zeneca jab has nasty side effects and has killed a few people," followed by, "Grab a jab at your local vaccination centre!" (the implication being that AZ might have caused problems, but all the other jabs are safe).

Blasphemer Extraordinaire 6 days ago (Edited) if you read the veterinary version of a manufacturer safety data sheet, like ivermax, the only proprietary ingredients are the emulsifier they used to turn it into a paste and the apple flavor itself.

it's got a convenient injector that makes it easy to break it down into several 200 or 250 pound doses, so you could easily administer the therapeutic dose or the prophylactic dosage every few days or every two weeks very easily and safely.

Everybody seems to be concerned about dosages but if you're still dosing by bodyweight, regardless of if you're a horse or a human, it's 200 µg per kilogram of body weight.

How convenient.

frankly the first thing I did before trying anything like this was Google for any known fatalities from ivermectin overdoses.

couldn't find any... Maybe I didn't look hard enough?

what I did find was an interesting study done on Africans with river blindness where they use dosages as high as 2000 μ g per kilogram, 10 times higher than the dose needed for treatment of Covid either preventatively or in the hospital, with no side effects or neurological effects noted in the study.

i've heard anecdotally that it could make vision blurry, but I have not experienced that myself, but I am following the FLCCC protocol for prophylactic use and so far so good. that range of dosage is pretty straightforward, 200 µg per kilogram of body weight, but the interval varies based on if you think you've been exposed, or just want to prevent getting sick going around in about your business.

anyway, if your doctor is brainwashed by the Covid Savior Fauci, just head down to your local feed store and pick some up.

and with that kind of dosage safety, it's kind of hard to screw up.

furthermore, if anybody reacts badly to the drug, it's out of your system in about three days, can't really say the same for the vaccines which will be stuck with you until they either wear off or well maybe you're stuck with them foreveror over producing spike proteins until it finally takes it's toll and gives you some fatal form of cardiovascular disease and eventually kills you.

The alternative is either veterinary or pharmaceutical grade ivermectin, there's not much difference in dosage but maybe the form of delivery, and that's about it.

probably not a bad idea to give yourself a broad-based anti-parasitic every few months anyway, (especially if some of your horn dogs around here tend to enjoy your single life too much and just so happen to pick up a scorching case of scabies) because if anything low level is chewing on you and impacting your immunity, this is a very simple way to offload your immune system to prepare for some nasty Fauci designed Covid mutant coming around the corner making you more able to survive it.

It will also kill head lice that your kids or grandkids bring home from Open borders public school.

and, the stuff in the feed store is dirt cheap... We're talking about five bucks for as many doses for an average 200 pound mammal, you're not gonna get it anywhere cheaper.

so if the liberals out there or the people who think they're the smartest kids in the room because they graduated from med school won't give you a very simple and safe drug to use to get ahead of this so-called pandemic, you can run down to your Health store, buy some quercetin vitamin D and zinc, and grab some of this at the local feed store and you're better off than most of the hospitals in the United States in the safety of your own home to take care of yourself and your family.

and just remember before Covid what was the third leading cause of death in the United States that was unpublished on any of the public websites: medical mistakes and errors.

now it's even worse, because healthcare has moved beyond science and has been politicized.

some doctors are now unfortunately the enemy.

So to sum up, everybody should have this on their shelf at home, it really doesn't matter what form you take as long as you dose by body weight, and the rest of the medical community can simply jump off a cliff for all I care because all they've shown during this pandemic is just how crazy stupid they can be watching people die in intensive care and in rest homes when they should've known better.

they did know better but were too chickenshit to speak up about it which makes them grossly negligent and responsible for up to half the deaths during this pandemic which ravaged our elders predominantly in those same restrooms and elderly care facilities.

That's unlikely to change fortunately. Any physician has a legal right to prescribe any drug for a patient if he believes it will help the patient, even if the indication is "off-label". What got Pfizer, and others, into trouble and large fines was promoting various drugs "off-label". It was the promotion of something that had not been approved that caused the problem. Only a physician can make that call based on his/her/itx professional experience.

Those were not the bad things Trump did. He was actually the best POTUS on foreign wars and intervention of my lifetime. Embassy to Jerusalem was a good thing that took political balls to get done. One of the only things he did that showed the balls all his supporters believed he actually had.

His exposer of the corporate media as merely an arm of the Democrat party was another good thing he did. The fake news thing has wounded them badly, which is a big reason they hated him so nakedly. don't be surprised if ivermectin is effective against influenza viruses as well, because some of the research I bumbled across on my preemptive hours of online research about the safety of the drug turned research about that up, and where it was being used in everything from river blindness to scabies to head lice to even acne vulgaris? They are even using this drug as a potential chemotherapy alternative for treating certain types of cancer... Really early stage research mind you, but with a drug this cheap and this safe, why the hell don't we just take it just for the hell of it?

taking it to protect you and your family against Covid if you are the guy that goes out the most, and used at or near the dosages recommended by the FLCCC for prophylactic treatment may have some longer term health impactsBeyon

There is definitely a mystery here. Ivermectin has been widely and successfully used in Latin America as a treatment since March 2020. You can walk into most pharmacies in Latin America and buy a 7 Day Course of Ivermectin for about $20 USD.

India was just heavily pressured not to use Ivermectin as a treatment.

I don't know what the balance of the article indicates, but this excerpt misses the most fundamental point:

If you have a therapeutic that works, you can't get an Emergency Use Authorization for the vaccines so that's motive to censor Ivermectin and any other therapeutic. And Merck should be investigated for slamming an out of patent drug (Ivermectin) at the same time they're trying to get Emergency Use Authorization for a new drug they want people to use instead.

When are people going to stop trashing an inexpensive medicine that's been around for decades calling it "unproven" - at the same time not even permitting anyone to question a vaccine with technology never before injected into a human? It's insane. Doctors have been fired for prescribing lvermectin and perhaps 600,000 Americans have been put to death because the only permitted protocol was "no treatment" until you turn blue. And that protocol was made by people with billions on the line and conflicted interests. These people need to be unearthed and prosecuted! I can't think of anyone more despicable.

This whole thing is so gruesomely hideous. A nightmare that never ends.

Thousands of flights cancelled as vaccinated pilots fall ill or die

According to flightaware.com, 120,000 cancellations per year is the average for global flights. An average day would see 329 cancellations. A 2 day average would see 658 cancellations. But between Friday and Saturday, 3,533 cancellations occurred.

That's a 580% increase in cancellations globally in the past 2 days.

According to a 2014 study published in the Journal of Thrombosis and Haemostasis, pilots suffer an increased risk of clotting issues due to frequent and prolonged air travel.

Medical News Today published a study on June 15th, 2021 that showed an increased risk of blood clotting and low platelets in AstraZeneca COVID-19 vaccine recipients.

Pilots have an increased risk of blood clots. COVID-19 vaccine recipients have an increased risk of blood clots.

Reuter's and Fact Checkers cannot hide the fact that an increased risk on top of an increased risk is potentially a disaster, but neither has any regard for human life or the truth, as evidenced by the propaganda they're currently creating by the minute.

https://thecoloradoherald.com/2021/thousands-of-flights-cancelled-as-vaccinated-pilotsfall-ill-or-die/cancellations. The passengers waited from 9 pm to 2 am in the plane. Then the flight was cancelled at 2 am. Various reasons were given and the last reason was they could not find any on call pilots that were available. She finally got a Southwest last minute reservation after being awake for 24 hours.

Over use of antibiotics is creating resistant strains of bacteria and they are running out of new drugs that will work. It is a huge problem for hospitals. If you are not aware of this you should be. It is an extreme threat. Look up MERSA infections. Letting everyone buy and take antibiotics they don't need would be a world wide calamity with the "Super Bugs" getting stronger ever faster.

▲ 8 V Reply K

The problem is that far too many people will take an antibiotic when it's not needed. The result is more antibiotic-resistant bugs out there. It's a bit of a fancy business saying when an antibiotic is needed and which one is best considering the total picture.

And antibiotic resistance is a huge and growing problem, especially in hospitals.

I've seen doctors get it wrong in both directions but they at least know the issues and in my own experience are less likely to overdo it than non-doctors.

Folks, no need to necessarily get HCQ. Hyrdoxychloroquine is quinine, basically, which can be found in quinine water, or more readily in citrus fruit, in the white pith, the bitter compound. Many online recipes on how to extract that compound, or just throw the citrus through a juicer, pith and all. Indeed, many reports are that quinine is MORE effective than HCQ.

And remember to take it with zinc, which it works with. Quinine being the gun, and zinc the bullet.

Unless they outlaw citrus fruit and meats, where quinine and zinc are not available anymore, everyone should have easy access to both.

Quercetin is too easy - onions, apples, even a little in tea, and the EGCG in green tea is just as good. Many years ago I tried taking quercetin supplements, and I didn't like how that went, so stopped and eventually tossed the rest.

Vitamin D is looking very good as a mitigation - keep any COVID down to a quick sniffle. Between all these simple nutritionals, it's looking more and more like, if CDC had done anything useful in the last 18 years, COVID would never have got off the ground, and that doesn't even count HCQ or Ivermectin.

Is it proven? No, but as usual, largely because NOBODY IS TRYING. Simple nutritionals have been massively underplayed in western medicine for the last century, doctors ignore it, deprecate it, but (unfortunately) I can vouch for the effectiveness of simple stuff that doctors either don't know about - or won't tell you about because it violates their schooling and practice guidelines, they might even be disciplined for it.

What total suckage.

Physicians today have no clue how to make people well. They only know how to prescribe drugs that treat the symptoms of illness. Statin drugs are a good example. Physicians would put us all on statin drugs if they could.

I take ivermectin according to body weight as a preventive. I also take zinc, Vit. D3, B12, Vit. C, one low-dose aspirin daily, eat organic while avoiding processed, i.e. poisonous, factory foods, and exercise regularly. Its important to stay healthy because those physicians and hospitals will kill you!

I wonder if Matt talks about the actual reason why there is so much pushback against Ivermectin behind his pay wall? It is not Donald Trump:

If clinical evidence exists that Ivermectin is safe and effective, the jabs would not just be unneeded, they would be illegal. EUAs would be revoked and big pharma would be out the development costs because by 2024-2025, which is best case for approval for their shots, CV19 will have mutated thousands of times. Those mutations will make it less deadly, as happens with all viruses.

That is the problem Matt, leave the stupid, inflammatory left-right crap out of this.

The controlled substance act is a monopolistic law put in to turn the AMA into rent-seeking gatekeepers of medicine.

A doctor should be a consultant in a person's healthcare, not the dictator of it. People should be free to purchase drugs as they see fit. Why can you practice law for yourself but not medicine?

Why do people have to pay for a doctor's visit every six months for maintenance medication they've been on for years and will stay on until they die?

Hopefully Taibbi saw the Joe Rogan podcast with Dr . Cory and Dr, Weinstein. Much compelling evidence out there in favor of the use of Ivermectin. Early treatment is important for those at risk for severe illness. So staying home until you can't breathe as has been the recommendations of the medical community does not work. Hence the lack of trust. Very sad day for the medical community.

While moving, we don't need anecdotes to attest to ivermectin's effectiveness. There are literally dozens of RCTs that show it. They cherry picked what I believe is 1 of only 3 studies in existence that don't show a benefit, and that makes me very suspicious about what kind of study this really was if it immediately gets plastered over the New York Times as proof positive that Ivermectin is useless. Never forget the fraud they published in the Lancet last year on hydroxychloroquine.

The way they're dismissing ivermectin is so dishonest, I see corruption as the only plausible explanation. It's truly disgusting.

I'm going to play devil's advocate and assume that "right to choose" means to choose among approved treatments, or to refuse one or more or all of those approved treatments. Patients do not have the "right" to "choose" to try ANY drug or treatment they wish (e.g., I want to try radiation therapy for my eczema, or I want to try penicillin for my depression).

Reply

Victor999 6 days ago (Edited)

The tradition has always been that the doctor and the patient agree the treatment - if either objected, then no treatment. Few doctors would ever agree to treat eczema with radiation.

And the doctor's right to prescribe. When I was growing up, no one would question a doctor's right to prescribe a certain treatment as long as the patient was in agreement. Big-Pharma-dominated medical organisations were created and grown to prevent that.

Plot the death rates in India, by state. The one holdout on Ivermectin is having cases go out of control. The others have seen cases plunge since implementing ivermectin. That's evidence, and it's not anecdotal.

▲ 5 🔻 Reply 🔨

Actually, it is anecdotal: There are well-studied cases where a geographic effect buggered up an otherwise meaningful study.

That said, it's extremely strong anecdotal evidence particularly because the drop in deaths followed by a couple of weeks the beginning of wide use of ivermectin.

Reply ĸ

SuperareDolo 6 days ago

I take anecdotal to mean isolated cases. "My patient was in rough shape, but ivermectin fixed him quickly." This is much more quantitative. What you're getting at is that it is not foolproof, and confounding factors can come into play. Another viral outbreak in one region, for instance, could affect the outcome of Covid. But it's rare for a study to be perfect (including ones used to approve drugs).

Should people on their deathbeds be allowed to try anything to save themselves? That seems like an easy question to answer. Should the entire world be allowed to practice self-care on a grand scale? That's a different issue. Some would say absolutely not, while others would say the corruption of pharmaceutical companies and the medical system unfortunately make it a necessity. The world is increasingly divided along this trust/untrust axis.

The medical industrial complex, military industrial complex, social media, Google and their enablers in .gov have no one to blame but themselves for the increasing lack of trust. Hopefully more and more people will drop the benevolent government theory, begin to understand that our medical system is predicted on sick care and turn their backs on the entire system.

Unfortunately my confidence in my fellow citizens is compromised by, basically, everything I see around me. The dumbing down of western society seems full and complete.

My wake up call was when a doctor scheduled my diabetic husband for dialysis--while his kidney function indicators were perfectly normal. The hospital had invested quite a bit of money in dialysis machines (many do this where I live) and received big subsidies for their use. They would not prescribe insulin to help him control his blood sugar. They say they don't trust patients to take it properly. My husband finally went outside the system to get a doctor (who has since fled the country) who would teach him to use insulin and get him a prescription. When we moved, he had to find another doctor to continue the prescription, and the first gave him an incredible run-around. It's bad in the States, but even worse in some other countries. Advice from a system administrator.

A system administrator is a person who is responsible for the upkeep, configuration, and reliable operation of computer systems.

You are the system administrator of your body, which was configured for reliable operation by means of all the systems that function therein. It comes with an operating system, programmed to operate according to specific code that regulates all of its systems. It is your responsibility to make sure that it does not get hacked. You must not give administrative access to anyone.

God is the designer and programmer of your body. It is the sustaining system or substratum of your existence. If it is damaged in whole or in part through DNA hacking your life will be dramatically affected or terminated.

Your body has an immune system just like a computer has a firewall to protect it. If you give anyone administrative rights to your operating system you are at the mercy of that individual. Once you give them access they can penetrate the firewall and access your operating system, change the program code and wreak havoc and destruction.

Many people are being fooled into thinking that their system is defective, that there is something wrong with the design and that the program code needs to be edited to correct a flaw. They believe the original designer and programmer made an error. But this is a grave misconception.

Once people believe this lie and grant administrative rights to the designers of this mRNA code they are destined to suffer bitter consequences. They fail to understand that trusting in man is folly and that God is not mocked. Whatsoever a man sows he will reap.

I have doubts I can get a prescription for ivermectin should I come down with this coronavirus. Frankly I have poor heath and some of the side effects of the vaccines could really be too much for me. Fortunately...

Mr Ed came ambling up my driveway and told me, "Wilbur, I know you're worried where you can obtain ivermectin. I get regular doses every few months from the feed store and reputable online supply stores for its anti-parasitic properties. You're pondering its anti-inflammatory properties. Well, if you get sick I'll share some of my ivermectin with you. But you can't take the full dose, that's too big for you. And remember that you must not take it too frequently either, it's powerful stuff.

Exactly you proved my point Mr Eds will be produced to a high standard in India and shipped to Western companies to sell. They wont sell any old crap. Whereas you go buying human meds from India you could get counterfeit meds. The drugs are so cheap they need to improve their profit margin. It is probably easier for suppliers to get counterfeit meds than the real deal.

An announcement regarding the eventual triumph over the lockdown and vexxing sham that has been perpetrated on the world:

Tonight both tea tree and clary sage aromatherapy oils were wiped onto 10 Heartfelt Energizers, which employ the same principles as Rotating Orgonite.

Tea tree is known for fighting infections. It also fights fungus.

Clary sage has a property that improves IQ and can lower blood pressure. It is also beneficial for depression which could be a common stressor right now.

The hope is that the EMF generating Energizers will promote the essence, or signatures, of the oils and send them far and wide thereby benefitting a lot of people. I hope you find that it helps you.

If the patient can swallow and take oral medications, there's no need for a prescription. Just go to any tractor supply, or farm and fleet type of store and get some off the shelf. It's in the horse/cattle deworming area. It tastes like shit, but if it might save your life, I don't think people will mind too much.

Now if the patient can't eat and needs it IV, you'll need a scrip. My suggestion would be to not wait until you are that bad off. In fact, why even wait until you are sick at all? Just go buy some today, it's dirt cheap.

Wrong. The ivermectin in horse treatment is too high a dose and the other ingredients are not necessarily safe for human consumption. You are playing Russian roulette if you take horse medication.

Best to buy it direct from india where most of it is made anyway.

▲ ▼3 Reply

tezza1 6 days ago (Edited)

You can google the other ingredients. I did with the one I bought and they are all safe. As for high dosage what are you talking about? the horse one is the same strength and dosage is based on body weight

As for indian meds too many fakes if the med doesnt kill you covid may. How long will that take to arrive in an emergency.

If you look at https://www.poison.org/articles/ivermectin-your-dogs-heartworm-medicine-173

you will see people who thought they were poisoned with ivr turned out to have no adverse effects. Even a guy taking large doses of horse ivr for months

🔹 Reply ĸ

Victor999 6 days ago

You have no guarantees that the horse meds are safe for human consumption. They might be, but you are still taking a chance as they are not manufactured for human consumption.

As for india, I am certain there are many crooks selling bad meds from India, as there are also crooks selling bad meds all over the internet. But the fact is that India is the world's pharmacy with most of the out-of-patent drugs, like ivermectin, being produced there (probably Mr Ed's as well). You can find legitimate sellers and producers of HCQ and Ivermectin in India if you do enough research - producers and sellers who sell across the globe.

I think what attracts the ambitious to marxism is the idea that one day they may be able to lord over others, to decide others' fates.

normal people do normal things, work, maybe have a small business, raise a family, worship the Creator, be good to others, following the word.

those who sacrifice on behalf of their love of money and power, they tend to stick together, to some nebulous plot that one day their godless existence might be justified when they can be predator to what they think of (the less blindly ambitious) as rubes.

Populism is not a medical position. It is not even a political position. It is mostly an insult these days, meaning anyone who might question a globalist, elitist presumption to rule by dictate. IOW, populism = democracy.

HCQ may be nothing without zinc, and the zinc may be more accessible via quercetin or even EGCG - onions and green tea. And it may be very effective.

Ivermectin seems more promising as both prophylactic and early treatment. A modest trial of its prophylactic properties, with frequent tests of both healthy and ill subjects, would answer a lot of questions, at 1/10 the cost of the vaccine trials.

For social media to get all worked up and consider it #fakenews is beyond deplorable, it's just so moronic one shouldn't even get worked up about it.

The science cannot abide any form of medication, therapy, or treatment that does not involve masks, vaccines, lockdowns, or ventilation. IN SHORT: if there is some sort of method which does not explicitly require the regime (public and private) to in some way administer it or control your movements then the science will not abide. Science, if it is allowed to study this medication, could very well prove that such a medication is effective, cheap, and worth whatever concomitant risks it would inevitably pose (trade offs, not solutions). But the science is determined to hoard wealth and power over the population and thus the science will ensure that such and such a drug is indeed verboten.

Not true. Anecdotal evidence is still evidence.

As a physician, my medical group would sanction me if I used ivermectin on my Covid patients. However.....if I tell a patient that their symptoms may be due to pinworms (wink, wink), and I document that they think they saw them in some stool, then I can add pinworms as one of their diagnoses and prescribe it. You can also get it at veterinarian supply stores for treating your horses.

The question not told is how Ivermectin works.. Does it work on viral infected cells? Or on the spiked protein. If it works on the spiked protein, then it may become a poison to those that are vaccinated and so will HQC. This 'experiment' will be done in 5 years.. don't take the VACs for at least 3-4 years as the outcome will be somewhat evident by then.

I don't believe this report for a minute. I know one thing. If this is true, and I hope it is but completely doubt it, the Republicans in the House and Senate would be screaming all over the Dems and CDC, Fauci, etc... and keeping this issue front row center so all of America will hear it and it would put so much pressure on Biden and the CDC to research it seriously immediately. Jordan would be all over this like a rabid dog on Fauci, so would Rand Paul. But I don't see any of them doing that so I can't believe this crap. The Reps would do anything to make the Dems look bad so they would win the midterms and the next election.

There are reported clinical studies which show ivermectin is effective. This is way bigger than a simple GOP v Dems battle as both parties are in league with big pharma. Neither will go after major donors over this.

I've taken Ivermectin oral paste from the feed store - my wife and I both - back in December when we both experienced a bug that made us wonder. Whether we had "it" or not there was at least no bad side effects from taking it. We've refused to take "the jab" like all the sheeple at her office and will continue to do so as well. I know I had Covid back in March of last year due to the symptoms it produced and simply toughed it out at home but that was before Ivermechtin news was making its way around. The hospitals here in Texas were already getting squirrely about things and I wasn't about to submit myself to them. Heck, even Melatonin was being used successfully by a Texas doctor to treat Covid back then. Go figure.

If this drug, widely used now in India as well as HCQ, is beneficial WHY NOT use it? If you can get it at a local feed store then it's an OTC medication. We've got a few more syringes and a bottle of injectable put back.

Not a bad article, but I read the whole thing and there wasn't one word about the drug being right-wing... except the clickbait headline.

Hell yes, it can be "right wing".....

When it is used to draw right wingers into the "foregone conclusion" that the coronahoax was real.....it becomes a "right wing" thing.

There is no virus people. This was the flu.....nothing more.

80% of the test were false positives.

The government openly.....blatantly.....told us that they counted anyone who died after receiving a positive test as a covid19 death......even if they were on hospice with days to live......even if they were in a motorcycle accident.

For 2020 the flu was non-existent. Usually 300,000 - 650,000 die each year from complications from the flu. Fox news reported that there were 1,850 flu cases in 2020.

Take the 2.6 million supposed deaths in 16 months from the coronahoax, subtract the 80% false positives, and you get around 600,000 deaths......A NORMAL FLU YEAR!

This was an hoax....period!

All this hydroxychloroquine and ivermectin bs is just a bunch of bs to draw conservatives to the hoax......unless you are talking about their effectiveness on the flu.

I will make you a bet the both of those rightwing drugs work not only on many different strains of the flu...but on the common cold too!

Stories like these aren't proof the drug works. They don't even really rise to the level of evidence. People recover from diseases all the time, and it doesn't mean any particular treatment was responsible. Short of the gold standard of randomized controlled trials, there's no proof.

Randomized controlled trials aren't proof either. They are only considered a standard of "proof" by the government medical complex. They aren't actual proof because such a thing is impossible. You can't prove anything in medicine, ever, because it's not a deductive system. You have to start talking about things like "reasonable doubt" and confidence levels (which cannot be 100% ever) and this brings all kinds of subjectivity into what is considered reasonable. Only in mathematics can things be proven and even then only if you assume that the systems you are working in are entirely consistent, which I'm not sure can be proven. This habit of letting the government dictate reality for you is exactly the problem.

They should be given an award for being informed and caring about their patients. Ever heard of off-label prescriptions? It's done all the time. The evidence for Ivermectin's effectiveness is extraordinarily strong - much stronger than for Remdesivir. Nobody has a problem selling you that drug for 3 grand a dose based on a much lower standard.

Yes, a fake study attempting to destroy faith in hydroxychloroquine was published in a leading medical journal. The editor of the journal later called the study a "monumental fraud", but not before it was headline news around the world and permanently tarnished the drug's reputation. The media constantly smeared it by association with Trump. Health agencies screamed about how cases of people taking enormous lethal doses showed it was dangerous and should not be taken at all.

And yet, the bulk of the studies still shows it does a pretty good job at treating covid when properly administered - certainly compared to sanctioned drugs like Remdesivir. It's not as effective as Ivermectin, though.

There's no mention of why the hospitals were refusing to administer. Was it some BS about liability? A call from big government? I can't see big pharma calling up a hospital other than one doing a lot of research trials for big pharma.

Could it be because if the patient LIVED they wouldn't get the $$$ from claiming a covid-death?
