The government colluding with the private sector to coerce workers to be injected with an experimental gene therapy or be fired is nothing less than fascism.

The longer this goes on, the more variants come out, the less effective the “vaccines” prove to be, the more aggressive the government, big business, and liberal hellholes get in pushing vaccination...the more certain I become in my decision to not get this killer shot.

I don't pretend to know the end game. I am certain I will die at some point, however, for the time being...this is the best course of action.

Time for community organization, minutemen if you will. Governors must ally with the like minded. The majority, even those who have taken the mark, are on the side of freedom. A war against the fascist oligarchy is inevitable if we wish to retain any semblance of our rights.

Actually, if you pay attention, the shadow government fears the grassroots campaigns to challenge the 2020 election results which we all know were tampered with. Our illegitimate government, especially non elected individuals behind the scenes, knows that if they can't keep getting their people into power, into the right senate seats and right committees of oversight, this whole charade could crash down on them.

Your various premises should have led to a better conclusion.

This is going on so long, with so many bad outcomes, because ignorance leads people who have no valid reason to object to the vaccine to object anyway.

Get the vaccine unless you really can't and get on with life.

The gov't colluding/ordering the "private sector" to delete & ban people from public platforms for information they don't like, whether true or not, is fascism, as well.

As for the BS in this article, there is only one lawful & legitimate constitutional path forward, "my body, my choice". The gov't/private corporations HAVE no authority what goes into my person. Unless I am no longer master of my own person.

Exactly, but you have no lawful authority to tell me to undergo an experimental medical treatment.

Can you tell a pregnant woman she must get an abortion?

Can you tell a person diagnosed with cancer to take chemo?

Can you demand that all employees "take preventative antibiotics"?

Can you demand that all employees be sterilized, as a condition of employment?

Can you demand that all employees be single, never married, no children?

NO!

This is no different.

AZN and JNJ vaxes were grown on cells derived from an aborted baby in Holland, in the late '60s. The mRNAs are synthetic, but may have been tested on those cells. And that testing may not have been material in their development. It's a less solid objection.

Just print out a vax card and fill it in yourself. What can they do, fire you? Would have happened anyway, so nothing to lose. Keep your mouth shut and they'll never know.

When faced with evil, you need to get plumb mean. Otherwise you are bringing a wet noodle to a gun fight.

Or you can just refuse to discuss it. Don't argue and try to reason with HR. Just say your medical history is personal. You'll be glad to discuss your work performance though. Never quit. Force them to fire you. Never get into discussions with co-workers even if you think they are your friends. Pro tip, they are not.

To the down voters.

Two Hawaii tourists arrested for falsifying vaccination cards

Two tourists who traveled to Hawaii over the weekend have been arrested after authorities said they violated the state's coronavirus restrictions by falsifying vaccine cards.

The Hawaii attorney general's office told The Hill on Friday that two men, identified by USA Today as Norbert Chung, 57, and Trevor Chung, 19, both from the U.S. mainland, were detained at Honolulu's Daniel K. Inouye Airport on Sunday after receiving a tip from a community member prior to their arrival.

Gary Yamashiroya, a spokesperson for state Attorney General Clare Connors (D), said that the two tourists were arraigned Thursday morning and face up to one year in prison, as well as a maximum of $5,000 in fines.

The two men were found to be in violation of Hawaii's Safe Travels program, which requires all travelers from any part of the U.S. and its territories to provide proof of vaccination to avoid a mandatory 10-day quarantine upon arrival.

Yamashiroya said that the attorney general's office "will investigate and prosecute those who cheat the Safe Travels program, which was established to keep our islands safe."

Hawaii Gov. David Ige (D) addressed the arrests in his Tuesday news conference on the state of COVID-19, saying that authorities will prosecute the men "to the fullest extent of the law."

However, the governor noted that "our police departments in every county are short staffed, and unable to fully police, try and respond to every single violation that is seen."

"But I do believe collectively that we're going to make an effort to enforce," he added. "It is important that these restrictions be implemented in order to slow the spread of the virus."

Authorities and health experts across the country are warning of individuals seeking to provide fake vaccine cards as more businesses and local governments impose mandates requiring proof of vaccination to enter some businesses and participate in certain activities.

Earlier this month, two airline passengers traveling from the U.S. to Canada were fined nearly \$16,000 each when authorities said they discovered that the individuals presented fraudulent COVID-19 vaccination credentials.

All states have your immunization records online, they have now for almost a decade.

The "vaccine" cards are just cards, but if they check you in the system (which what do you think it takes for them to do?)

▲ ▼ 1 Reply ↩

At least where I work, my company does not have access to my medical records. I suppose they could request them...but then again one could say you got the shot just about anywhere...it wouldn't have to be done at one's primary care facility.

It would be worth it to to attempt to make a card if termination is the end result either way.

All your medical records are computerized, easily accessed by any doctor around the country. The HIPAA laws have become more lax for any doctor to access your records over the last few years, though few have noticed. (My surgeon could see that I got a second opinion in a different part of the state, in a different medical system entirely!) I am sure there is also a government list of who has received the vaccine with the serial number of the vaccine. I would not use a fake vax card in any official capacity. Much more effective to take your money, employable skills, and business somewhere else.

▲ 1 ▼ Reply ↩

A license like that means little, until you actually have one, then it is everything you have and you would never do anything to jeopardize it or break any rules or laws. It is your ticket to being set for life at a comfortable place, and your entire name / reputation rides on it. Losing it would be an unimaginable loss and embarrassment. People take their professional licenses very seriously, you would have a hard time finding someone willing to break the law by falsifying medical records, definitely not for a couple hundred bucks. They would be skeptical, and even for thousands of dollars it wouldnt be worth the liability. If I ever had ethical concerns that bad, I would resign from my profession and voluntarily give up my license instead of doing something to risk having it revoked.

FEDERAL GOVT GUIDELINES FOR EMPLOYEES AFTER BIDEN ANNOUNCEMENT.

1. Nobody is going to get forced to take an experimental vaccine, Biden got on stage and shot his mouth off and now the federal government has to deal with it in a way that makes it look like he's in charge.
2. They listed no less than four ways to get around this "mandate" including a religious exemption, "attesting" to having taken the vaccine without providing proof, refusing to discuss the matter altogether, or by submitting to regular testing and harassment at the government's time and expense.
3. Their approach was confused, lacked direction and didn't seem at all like previous mandates that have been successfully implemented. To discipline or terminate employees the policy would need to be codified into the official HR policy and would require OPM and probably a whole host of other government nomenclatura to implement. At that point it would be ready to take to the unions for negotiation. This is going to be implemented without any official process, but with enough "escape clauses" to keep from starting a real problem with sizable portion of employees who are averse to taking part in a medical experiment.
4. This will be treated like an Executive Memo, it will be quasi-policy but never codified into official HR policy. It will be held up by the media as a great accomplishment, but in reality will only frighten a few unresolute employees into getting vaccinated against their better judgement.

However I do think that the private larger Corporations are much more organized. My company(Edit: company I work for) for example, has access to the state database and can and does verify your job status. In fact there is an enterprise wide e-mail that goes out on a daily basis updating us on the percentage of students and staff who are now "compliant" with vaccination status. Companies are always better run than .Gov, and therefore, will not be as easily circumvented.

Yes, I agree, that this would appear to violate HIPAA but the legal eagles/Compliance officers (they are both Attorneys and Information Privacy Security analysts) at my workplace have said that because this is a Pandemic, HIPAA dispensed with many of the regulatory requirements that had been in place previously. I have not been jabbed, so I hit up one of them who I have been friendly with over the years and got that information in reply. Refusing to conform will come at a heavy price, I fear. But I have found that many times the right decision is the one that is the hardest to adhere to, but the easiest to live with, in the end.

Does the Virus Exist? SARS-CoV-2 Has Not Been Isolated? “Biggest Fraud in Medical History”

Hell is Empty and the Devils are All Here, William Shakespeare, The Tempest, 1610-1611

Has the “Killer Virus” been Identified. Has SARS-CoV-2 been Isolated?

The CDC Acknowledges that SARS-CoV-2 has not been Isolated.

https://wwwnc.cdc.gov/eid/article/26/6/20-0516_article

Since no quantified virus isolates of the 2019-nCoV were available for CDC use at the time the test was developed [January 2020] and this study conducted, assays designed for detection of the 2019-nCoV RNA were tested with characterized stocks of in vitro transcribed full length RNA (N gene; GenBank accession: MN908947.2) of known titer (RNA copies/μL) spiked into a diluent consisting of a suspension of human A549 cells and viral transport medium (VTM) to mimic clinical specimen. (emphasis added, page 40)

Compare the above statement to the CDC January 28th, 2020 advisory confirming the isolation of SARS-CoV-2:

Another one. Do you not understand how it works? The direction its going? Are you blind to all of this.

Let me lay out how it goes.

The vaccine is being mandated for people working (primarily) at places where most employees work ON SITE.

You get an exemption, but your employer will claim that while it recognizes your religious rights, in order to maintain the safety and security of others you will not be able to work on site, and accommodations will need to be made for you to do some kind of work remote, the kind of work you don't currently do. This new kind of work will be whatever they can find to infinitely frustrate and demoralize you. Or maybe your new boss can micromanage you remotely? Whatever, they will push you until you quit. Biden is already talking about denying people benefits who aren't vaccinated, so now you'll be unemployed, unemployable and ineligible to get benefits.

We are in a huge $#it show right now and its spiraling out of control. And at the rate we're going and how passive the resistance is (like saying never been a better time to get religious instead of actually fighting back), we will all be overrun and vaccinated happily or unhappily by the end of the year.

We are F'd, royally F'd - every last one of us not wanting this bs...

New interview with Dr. Robert Malone...

So that's point number one. They're all experimental products.

Point number two; if you're going to be administering experimental products to patients, that falls under clinical research, and medical research. And so you have to follow the guidance for medical research. I mentioned the Common Rule is codified in the Code of Federal Regulations.

The first clause, importantly, in the Common Rule, is there has to be complete disclosure of risk. Intuitively, what that means is, when you buy a bottle of aspirin, you pull out this little piece of paper. You look at that, and you go, "Holy Moly, this aspirin is going to kill me." If you read all the way through, it says it could cause heart attacks or gastric erosions. You look at that and you say, "Oh, I don't know if I want to take that aspirin."

Third key principle; you cannot coerce. You cannot entice. The patient or the subject has to freely accept the experimental medicine of their own volition. All this messaging about, "You must take the vaccine. You must take the vaccine because otherwise Aunt Mary could get infected." All of this messaging that the vaccine is safe, and all the peer pressure that's happening around the vaccine is coercion.

Where in the constitution does it say you have a right to a job?

Since when is it an "unconstitutional right" for an employer to offer literal at-will (meaning I can fire you for no reason at all) employment?

Which law trumping the constitution would employers need to appeal to? Your freedom of association is all that is necessary - which is in the Constitution.

The presumption of this article is that people are refusing the jab on religious grounds.

Whether or not they are being truthful is impossible to prove, and religious freedom and the freedom from persecution are absolutely codified in the constitution, and upheld time and again in 100s of SCOTUS cases.

In this particular instance the religious grounds have undeniable merit due to early testing and manufacture practices for the vaccine and the end result of vaccinations (gene edits) go against every religion's beliefs.

All that without bringing up that the Nuremberg code forbids the compulsory administration of experimental medicine.

^ This is a leftwing perversion of the notion of "freedom" and "rights". The American meaning of political freedom and rights are negative rights - you are free when you are left alone. Your rights are rights to your own life, and property - nobody else's.

An employer being arbitrarily selective about who they associate with is not "persecution" because the employer's baseline relation is zero obligation in the first place. If you have no right to the employer's property, time, or life, being denied it is no injustice to you. Unless the employer is taking tax-money (and no, tax credits/deductions do not count), there is no claim against their property.

Further, this idea that the constitution limits the rights of private entities is also a corruption of American law. The constitution is a document explicitly limiting the government. It is not some law defining right behavior among all legal actors.

At-will employment is a mutually free association by definition. There is no compulsion and therefore Nuremberg is irrelevant.

The courts in the US have been lost for decades. Even the so-called "conservative" ones. My comment should be a wake-up call. Have you been watching "SCOTUS" over the past few years, or even the last six months? You think these people are going to come to your defense? Wake up, Neo.

What would be the basis of their claim? What stops an employer of any business whatsoever from requiring all employees to climb Mt Everest if they want to be employed? Is it dangerous? Sure. Could someone die trying to maintain their employment? Sure. Are anyone's rights being violated? Nope.

The employer will likely go out of business for lack of labor - but that's their problem.

I made my comment not in agreement with that sentiment, but to point out to the conservatives and libertarians on here that their prior actions and decisions are going to have consequences.

The problem we have in the US is quite clear: the vaccination will not be considered an undue hardship by the courts (it's free and widely available), it is being asked of all employees equally (i.e., it's not singling out a protected class), and it can be classified as contributing to workplace safety.

Putting the employer in the right 99.9% of the time (as conservatives have done through law and custom) means in practice that the employer is right 99.9% of the time. Resisters can hope that a vaccination will fall into the .1% category under the law, but it's highly improbable that relief through the courts will arrive in time to save anyone's job, mortgage, or career.

Perhaps giving employees some rights -- instead of eroding them to the point of South African diamond-mine conditions in the name of my free market -- would've prevented this. Now it's too late.

They really aren't un-constitutional, though I can understand the sentiment. The case of Typhoid Mary comes to mind, it's a fascinating case: <https://www.ncbi.nlm.nih.gov/pmc/articles/PMC3959940/>

And it DOES relate to the Covid-19 vaccination debate

"Mary's case is a perfect example of how the Health Care system provokes social attitudes towards disease carriers, often associated with prejudice. This case highlighted the problematic nature of the subject and the need for an enhanced medical and legal-social treatment model aimed at improving the status of disease carriers and limiting their impact on society [9,10]. Probably the answer to the rhetorical question "was Mary Mallon a symbol of the threat to individual liberty or a necessary sacrifice to public health?" is a single word, "balance". After all what Mary ever wanted was to be a good plain cook [11].

How many times does an aborted fetus have to be cloned before its DNA no longer comes from an aborted fetus ?.

Was the aborted fetus consulted about being aborted before being aborted ?, and give its informed consent to be aborted ?; if not, was its human rights fully observed ?, or were its human rights violated or even taken into consideration ?.

Why has the Pope, the head of the Roman Catholic Church, an organisation that regards abortion as an affront to God, a crime against humanity and evil in the extreme, given his blessing to the use of aborted fetal cells in "vaccines" ?.

So many questions to be asked as regards the motives of the Elite, and the answer always comes back to two words; POWER, CONTROL.

Power over, and control of the people.

To my eye, from bioethics, we appear to be failing to meet the Code of Federal Regulations and Federal Law, let alone fundamental precepts that go back to the end of World War II. We're not providing full disclosure of risk. We're not doing so in a way that's readily comprehended by the public. And we are enticing, compelling, coercing, and otherwise not respecting the rights of the individual to choose what happens to their body.

Adapt this for your own uses, but I believe the basic points will help tremendously.

The objective here is to ensure they know you're NOT REFUSING (grounds for dismissal).

You're simply letting them know in a friendly way... that you require them provide you with the information you need to have informed consent (the very CORE of the Nuremberg Code, to which they are obligated to follow!)

To whom it may concern,

I write with regard to the matter of the covid vaccine being a condition of my employment and my desire to be fully informed and appraised of ALL facts before going ahead and having it administered on my body.

Obviously, there are tensions rising around the world over this being made mandatory - and frankly, they are highly unnecessary, since the principle of informed consent reigns supreme (in accordance with the Nuremberg Code, and various legislation that protects ALL people from harm). I want to start by making it crystal clear, I am not refusing the vaccine!

In preparation for this time in history, and realizing that we're all in this together - and we all need to do what we can, I have familiarized myself with the information I need to be able to give or refuse consent, and in my quest to have these questions answered since the release of the vaccines as an emergency measure, the vaccine manufacturers and the officials both in government and health have not provided this information to me.

It may be because they are absolutely overwhelmed with dealing with the pandemic from a much higher perspective, which is understandable; who am I to be able to get an answer in a timely fashion?

But since these health and government officials are making these recommendations to corporations, I am sure they would have forwarded you the required information that makes someone's consent informed.

In order for consent to be informed, I require:

1. The approved legal status of any vaccine and if it is experimental and/or mRNA technology or not.
2. Details and assurances that the vaccine has been fully, independently and rigorously tested against control groups and the subsequent outcomes of those tests.

3. The full list of contents of the vaccine I am to receive and if any are toxic to the body.
4. A comprehensive database of any and all reported adverse reactions associated with this vaccine since its introduction.
5. The vaccine you are advocating is NOT 'experimental and/or mRNA gene altering therapy'?
6. That I will not be under any duress from yourselves as my employers, in compliance with the Nuremberg Code?
7. Should I be unfortunate to contract SARS-CoV-2, what is the risk of fatality, and what is the likelihood of recovery?

Once I have received the above information in full and I am satisfied that there is NO threat to my health, I will be happy to accept your offer to receive the treatment, but with certain conditions - namely that:

1. You confirm that I will suffer no harm.
2. Following acceptance of this, the offer must be signed by a fully qualified doctor who will take full legal and financial responsibility for any injuries occurring to myself, and/or from any interactions by authorized personnel regarding these procedures.
3. In the event that I should have to decline the offer of vaccination, I would require confirmation that it will not compromise my position and that I will not suffer prejudice and discrimination as a result.

I look forward to getting full disclosure related to this recent change to my employment contract.

Thank you so much!

The FDA is poised to approve the shot this fall. How is that approval meaningful, though? They are basically blowing off long term testing, which has been the standard for all other vaccines. Just shoving it through and saying "approved" without any studies of long term risk is UNACCEPTABLE. And no one currently resisting it due to safety concerns is going to change their mind if the FDA rubber stamps it for their pharma pals.

Here's an enormously useful article for the Brits on here who want to stand up against the NWO tyranny, and make a nuisance of themselves against the tyranny by scuppering the Covid "passports" when they are introduced.

No vaccine passport? No problem !!.

THE Prime Minister and Cabinet ministers such as Michael Gove are taking care not to mention it, having doubtless been coached by the Scientific Pandemic Insights Group on Behaviours (SPI-B), but the exemptions to mask-wearing apply equally to vaccine pass-presenting, meaning that no unvaccinated person may be barred from any event.

Exemption can be self-declared, since no proof may be demanded by the organiser or staff supervising admission to premises. This is hardly surprising, since how could the Equalities Act 2010 not apply, when it did to masks, for example in supermarkets and on public transport?

The relevant section about the NHS Covid Pass makes clear that it is not mandatory to have either the NHS App or any documentary evidence on you. Under the heading 'Exemptions', this is part of what it says:

'There will also be a small number of exemptions for individuals who have a medical reason which means they cannot vaccinate or test. These individuals will need to self-declare their medical exemption directly with you.

‘A digital solution is being developed which will enable individuals with a medical exemption to show their Covid-19 status using the NHS Covid Pass. In the interim, please follow the advice below.

‘Please be mindful and respectful where there are potentially circumstances where a customer or individual cannot safely demonstrate their Covid-19 status by taking a vaccination or a test. This could include people:

- with learning disabilities or autistic individuals, or with a combination of impairments which result in the same distress.
- those suffering from or under medical supervision for acute or evolving serious diseases or those receiving palliative care or undergoing treatment with unpleasant side effects.

‘Event or venue organisers in England that choose to use the NHS Covid Pass as a condition of entry can decide whether to accept self-declared medical exemptions where an individual cannot vaccinate or test, ensuring they comply with the Equalities Act 2010.

PhDs most hesitant to take shot...

Interesting, but hardly surprising, especially considering that, as a whole, these individuals are among the most highly educated and intelligent people on the planet.

What's more, the paper found that in the first five months of 2021, the largest decrease in hesitancy was among the least educated – those with a high school education or less. Meanwhile, hesitancy held constant in the most educated group; by May, those with Ph.Ds were the most hesitant group.

So not only are the most educated people most sceptical of taking the Covid vaccine, they are also the least likely the change their minds about it...

It's a sick society that depends on lawyers (many of whom are of the Globalist Cabal) to negotiate everything.

If I'm forced to hire uneducated DeShandez lest I be guilty of "racial discrimination", no one should be allowed to discriminate against those who refuse to take an experimental mRNA biologic that hasn't even been approved by the FDA (which is itself in the pay of the corrupt drug companies)

President Joe Biden is weighing vaccines mandates for interstate travel, according to the Associated Press (AP) on Thursday.

This is excellent news. Border patrols between states preventing travel between them will encourage balkanization and make secession much easier.

"Mandatory" experimental vaccination to test the limits of the legal system.

Voluntary consent?

Legal capacity to give consent...

Is it free choice?

Duress?

Gov overreaching?

Was it really and enlightened decision to accept?

What are the results of participation?

They won't give you an exemption? Tell them you'll sue.

The threats need to be made or else they will take every single right you have.

We need a way to fight this. So far nothing concrete has emerged. I think it likely many more companies will demand compliance - it doesn't leave a lot of options.

The concrete way to fight it is your Constitutional right for a Religious exemption, one of the principal cornerstones of the founding of America.

A religious exemption covers you “forever” and you do not need any evidence or proof other than your own sincerely held religious beliefs (or ethical/moral beliefs).

Federal law states that you have to express your sincerely-held religious belief. You do not have to prove that you attend church (or mosque or temple). You need to clearly explain why the vaccine (and mask and testing if you are claiming it) violates your sincerely-held religious belief.

That is a good idea. I live in CA, where religious and philosophical exemptions do not exist.

I'd like to see something like "go fund me" but specifically aimed at collecting donations to fund never ending lawsuits against employers with each lawsuit pursuing a different legal theory. Over time the successful theories will rise to the top. We can use evolutionary principles to fight for liberties.

Measles vaccine, (from the image, in the article). I did my wife's family history going back to only grandparents on both sides. Two child deaths from measles. Both back in the 1960's (Asia).

I advise measles, tetanus and shingles vaccines. Covid-19, I got vaccinated and I'm good with that, but I'll respect that it should be a personal choice and not mandated.

I told my older brother, "get a shingles vac," he didn't. Years later, one day, he commented, "I wish I had listened." Tetanus is freaky. Imagine a muscle spasm that bends your back so hard that your spine fractures in multiple places, that it tenanus (tetany).

Hopefully, when these employees who are being coerced to take these vaccines against their will start experiencing serious adverse events, there will be a FLOOD of civil cases brought forth. Such demands from an employer to maintain one's employment are on the precipice of "force". Just a demand one prove a preferred race, white for instance, is illegal, how can this not be?

you know the employers don't care about immunity— only vaccination. i offered to get an antibody test to prove i had natural immunity and was denied. it would be amusing to see the vax'd get antibody tests, how many would fail?

You could also make the argument that there are no A1C or Glucose passports even though heart disease and diabetes are much bigger health problems than Covid.

what would be the outcry if you had to register your AIDs test result at work?

Christian Science is the only religion that prohibits vaccines. It's kind of ironic, since TPTB keep ramming the vaxx down our throats in the name of "science".

Not true. Those of us who are Orthodox Christian, sometimes called Orthodox Catholic or Eastern Orthodox, do not believe in taking any treatments or medications that have been developed, tested and/or contain aborted fetal cells as abortion is murder & an abomination in God's eyes.

I'm shocked, I tell you, shaken to my core. How could this happen? All the precautions taken, people taking private jets, the guest list trimmed to the bare bones, everyone tested or vaxxed, everyone's temperature taken, massive social distancing (notice how far away the non-elites are from the party), the party held outdoors in a tent, and they were all democrats. But here we are, a super spreader event. It was the dog, that's my story and I'm sticking to it.

These companies are throwing up a flag to the govt. in hopes they will save them from lawsuits and I don't think it will happen. Businesses that are demanding their employees to have the vaccine are liable if they get sick and/or get long term issues like weakness or some degenerative condition let alone if they die. If the company was smart they wouldn't but some aren't.
