This quote of yours is everything ... "talking to people with whom I don't agree, is one of the main ways I have ever learned anything, or, I believe, that anyone has ever learned anything" So very true. So very sad that's being erased.

That comment also caught my eye. That is also the sincere approach to decision-making used by our 45th president, Donald Trump, and was the basis for many of his personnel appointments and selections as advisors, several of whom did not stay with him for his entire term. ...the term some of the departing personnel complained that he did not accept their views as his mainstream policies. Thank heavens.

One of the most memorable "square pegs" he invited to his "round hole" advisory team was war hawk John Bolton, a seemingly contradictory choice for a president who was finding more success in creating peaceful foreign relations than any president before him in recent times. But PDJT staunchly defended his choice, noting that Bolton presented the hawkish views that Pres. Trump needed to make a truly informed decision in many situations.

Obviously, President Trump, like Mr. Carlson and Dr. Wolf, also refuses to forget the once-great American tradition of bringing differing viewpoints together to eventually build effective solutions.

Naomi, One of your best, most heartfelt pieces. The America I know was filled with leaning left and leaning right good people who believed in the country despite its inevitable warts. Ideologues on both sides were quickly sidelined. And things continued to get better. Until they didn't.

The cancer has arisen primarily from the left -- a shock to me since that represents my roots. There must be many others like us. Where are we? What do we do? You are a deep thinker -- I cannot imagine that you do not have ideas germinating there somewhere.

In any case, thanks for writing this. It is spot on. We need everyone to read this and to think about what it is telling us.

Me too. I am politically marooned. What do I do? When it really hit me what the left had become I was so shocked I could barely sleep for a time then I put together that Satan had recruited his army of deceit, injury and death along with child sacrifice, directly from the Left, I had to make some decisions. I chose God.

As someone in her 60's who was very much on the left at one time, I started gravitating away when it felt like the feminism I fought for (respect and opportunity for women) became a denigration of men and of women who cherished being mothers. I happen to like plenty of men. My brother, dad, grandfather all supported me in any pursuit. For me, being a mother was life-changing. It's like jazz. If you don't understand I can't explain it to you. So I too felt adrift and bullied when I didn't wholeheartedly support "the current thing." It's the bullying that has shut down discourse and I found most of that comes from the left.

God bless you! Note that, as you and Mr Carlson become more open about your growing faith (his last public speech before the show ended was on recognizing spiritual evil), you are more and more attached. That's a good sign - you're over the target!

Along those lines, I think y'all will like my latest, about the spiritual battle in your doctor's office, and the need to vet your child's doctor before it's too late:

Naomi you are beginning to realize out the reality that we so called deplorable's face everyday. We are lied about and demonize everyday and yet we get up and go to work and make it possible for people to make a living by just writing or talking because we do the mundane task's of making sure the food is produced and delivered. The lights come on when you flick the switch etc. Welcome to reality where common sense rules. Where men are men. Women are women and the children are all above average. Tucker is a national treasure just as you are. He is (be patient with me) the replacement for Rush Limbaugh the mayor of realville I know very few of your circle ever listen to Rush but he was just as cleared eye and humble and funny as Mr Carlson. The left can never win based upon the merits of their policies so they always resort to demonizing the person. See what you wrote about your friends reaction to your talking with Tucker. They had never actually taken time to actually listen to him just as they never listen to Rush. We welcome you with open minds. We need your help to save this country.

I think the hardest hurdle we ALL face is to learn how to forgive. It is said that time is the great healer, but these gashes of the last three years are wide and double deep: Feelings of unconscionable betrayal all round. Deep suspicions. Our adversaries hoping that everything will just be smoothed over by some "normalcy," whatever that is now in a society dangling on puppet fear-strings.

Some think we may never heal this massive division, especially since it is fertilized daily by the mainstream media, a media Dr. Steve Turley believes was co-opted 50 years ago. But, forgive we must. It's okay that we do not forget, but if we ever hope to move forward and grow stronger, thus reaching a new maturity ... we must forgive.

Many will say they just cannot forgive. And, yes, that may be true on a human level, but not on a supernatural level. We may not be able to forgive ... but God can do it within us. He's God! It commences with a simple daily (out loud) prayer: I forgive _____ . Lord, heal my unforgiving heart. Amen (So be it). Saying it out loud - and hearing it - commences the process.

Couple this with knowing that we have ALL been played can lead to a softening of hearts and that necessary wound healing.

I don't foresee a day when I will forgive Fauci, Collins, Walensky, Pfizer, FDA, Klaus Schwab, George Soros or the entire Biden regime for the deaths and damage they have caused. I will continue to pray that all of them are brought to justice and given the proper punishments for their crimes against humanity. I'll leave their forgiveness to God.

Understood, Martin. Perhaps I should have been clearer. In the context of Dr. Wolf's essay, I was referring specifically to a broken populace of North America - and the healing of the hearts of the citizens of our nations.

My last sentence spoke of how ALL were played - by precisely those you listed. I merely pray for their hearts to be changed, and for them to repent and to make reparations. And I leave the rest to God - and hopefully to proper justice while on earth.

Not unusual to hear a caller on Rush admit their epiphany after listening to him for themselves rather than hating him bc of out of context soundbites that misrepresented him. I loved those calls. Unfortunately I blame that on fascistbook! It's what started people reading a title, commenting, & reposting without actually reading! It also cultivated an entire society in all age groups that believe and repost a pic of a tweet with no link! People, left and right, aren't questioning or seeking out the truth. It also cultivated a society that reads very little and responds by cussing out and being belligerent to strangers! We are thrown so much information day in and day out we can't POSSIBLY read all the 16 page articles or watch all the hour plus videos every day! I know these people doing this feel they are doing us a service, but it's actually keeping alot from even caring. You can't work 8 hrs, do regular life, kids, spouse, pay bills, fix car etc, and possibly keep up! I don't work and can't keep up! It's the bury my head in the sand group that's just hoping it'll all work out! I said year two of the scandemic I wished I'd kept a spiral of everything thrown at us so I could go back and follow up. So many things very important that the next day they'd already moved on to a new topic if DIRE importance! I didn't expect the scandemic to last this long. NOT because I didn't believe the corrupt government wouldn't force it as long as possible, but because I honestly thought as Americans we'd stand up together. (Heck I was the moron who said to my husband the day Trump said we could possibly shut down..."NO way will Americans go for this let alone Texans!" Yeah joke was on me!!!) Oh there's been little victories, but not enough. There's been many fighting for our freedoms, but because we LET them hold us back for so long things like the convoys were shut down. That's the 2nd reason for J6. 1st was to make President Trump look bad. 2nd was to make sure us peasants knew our place! A person can get on fascistbook and raise $300,000 for a homeless guy, but givesendgo has only raised about $188,000 for J6 legal fees. At this point, even with the overabundance of information, I don't feel sorry for the people that aren't even trying to hear a-z to then make an common sense decision. Which is what Dr Naomi is explaining in this article. Even her peers who believe exactly like her just read a few comments Tucker made in headlines, but never actually took the time to research. They have worked tirelessly at dividing us so that instead of us ALL standing up together next Scandemic they succeed! I urge writers and video makers to PLEASE consider length when sharing information! Alot of what is written is so far above people's heads it's hurting not helping!

Yes, indeed! I first recall reading something Tucker had written about his interview with Presidential Candidate, George W. Bush, and in it he revealed that for as much as Bush referred to himself as a Christian, he often "let fly with the F- word." As a classic Liberal, then Dem, myself, I changed my mind about Tucker Carlson, and viewed him as a real journalist, unafraid to report the truth on fellow conservatives.

In reading how you've been ostracized by your old friends, family., the thing that really pisses me off about my experience of the same treatment- is that if they once truly respected me and my intelligence, which they often said that they did, then WHY weren't they curious about my change of opinion, my reasoning? Why didn't they even asked me why I had changed my mind- for example, say about Trump? I changed my mind because I researched his history prior to his becoming a candidate for President. There i found a decent guy: When he opened Mar-A-Lago years ago, Trump invited Jews, Blacks and Gays to join- much to the horror of other posh clubs in southern FL. Stuff like that. A big dinner honoring him by Rainbow Coalition and Jesse Jackson, some years back. I read an old article of Trump kicking Epstein out of Mar-A-Lago for sexually harassing a 16 yr old employee there. Stuff like that.

Anyhow, I "feel ya", and I am SO happy that you are who you are- an honest person with integrity and a truth-teller, and as I heard you say recently, "A Seeker," - all wrapped in a package of exceptional eloquence and ability to express these things, orally or in writing.

And when I watched your conversation with RFK, Jr. on childrenshealthdefense.com over year or so ago, I had tears in my eyes with both of you talking about the lost friends from the Left, alienation from certain family members, and that the Constitution and our freedoms are everything. I didn't cry from sadness but from relief, to hear I wasn't alone.

Thank you!

Over the week about telling truth, has made me courageous enough to start speaking the truth now, as my meager speaking abilities can take me. But God promises "the words" if we open our mouths first. Time to believe and practice. Never would I have believed that Tucker Carlson would help me with that. Though since their ousting of Tucker, Fox news is now experiencing a HUGE decline in viewers, I'm doubting it's going to make an equally HUGE difference in the usual blah blah blabbing of the "so called media" or of my neighbors here in Palm Springs or even of the majority (99%) of my family members. However, like Bobby Kennedy Jr.'s campaign for President, the very ousting of Carlson should wake up a huge bunch of the brainwashed by its very existence. Bobby's campaign will deliver his message to millions more as will Tucker's fall from Grace. This should show us that the enemies of Humanity itself, be it the devil, the devil's hybrids, simply the so-called Elite, some jealous of our planet extraterrestrials, a bunch of insanely greedy merely humans, the Pharmaceutical Industry, a sentient AI, (wow on that one but apparently the belief of ALL of Central American Inhabitants), or the Communist Party of China, might not be able to overcome, finally, the Creations of our Creator. Could be my age, 84, and its proximity to death, but this Spring, spilling out Her bounty of miraculously transformed canyons and hillsides and even little plots of grass here and there, has made me re experience a revelation that once came upon me that we were born to praise God for having created the most gorgeous Planet imaginable for our Home. So I have hope that the good is going to prevail over the evil because who could argue that being hooked up to a computer in a sanitized Planet is preferable to walking through the flowering Brittlebush??

There is no more Left and Right. There are no more Liberals and Conservatives. There are only Truth lovers and Truth avoiders, Science lovers, and Science distorters, anti-globalists, globalists, and those who don't even know about globalism; there are the pro-corporate, the anti-corporate and those who don't even get what the fuss is about. There are the informed, the uninformed and the misinformed. There are the gullible conformists and the skeptical non-conformists. We must come together and unite around truth, love, honesty, decency and toleration. We must oppose fake virtues such as those espoused by Blackrock, WEF, and the globalists, greenwashers, liars, and deceivers. The truth, love, and morality welcomes people from all sides of the political spectrum. The only ones who will find it uncomfortable are the globalists.

Or choosing a 'side', red/blue.

How about 'no side' other than those seeking the truth and what is best for the majority of Americans? Sorry, even the word, 'woke' is now weaponized.

Yes. For the same reason we say "man" instead of "person who produces sperm." This is a value of language -- condensing wordy concepts into short terms. Gutfeld explained precisely this a few days back.

"Red pill" says exactly what I want to say, in a way that everybody else understands, without conflating political colors, the ad hominem of who created the term, or anything else.

A lot of us took that pill. A lot of us made that journey. This NRA-certified firearms instructor used to be a regular donor to Handgun Control and a Dukakis voter. Respect my lived experience.

Much of the discord I see is from uninformed liberal types who fell for the premise that they were smarter, more moral, and more educated than non-liberals. Ordinary productive people for many decades have chafed under this misapprehension and endured the condescension from liberals who were narcissistic, uneducated, impractical, arrogant, and morally unsteady. Most come from privileged families, and go to expensive pedigreed schools never realizing they are coddled adolescents with no record of personal challenge to school them in wisdom. Then of course there is the supremely ignorant hubris of their rudderless atheism and general loveless-ness. This is manifest in the political sphere since at least the New Deal airheads.

In order to maintain this foolish complacency, the elite psychopaths that run Washington, pandered to the hubris, the desperate need for social status, and the sexual immorality of these spoiled children. Liberals were told never to listen to Rush Limbaugh for example, because he was...wait for it...their favorite all purpose epithet: "racist!!!" Well, now aren't we all, and x-y-z-phobic, insurrectionists, and other forms of un-persons. Political correctness was a creation of the privileged who did not want to surrender their privilege to the fact that it was undeserved, unearned, and having nothing to do with merit.

I'm a Conservative female with an older Liberal family member who used to call me and, after saying hi, launch into things like he just read a study that found Liberals are more intelligent than Conservatives. I never took the bait and remained silent.

It was exhausting to endure, though. Other family members had to tell him they'd not engage in political discussions with him because he always turned it into some variation of the theme he used with me. I still don't get it after all these years. I'm sure it can go both ways, but I don't recall any Conservative I've known putting someone down as being less INTELLIGENT by simply being Liberal. Disliking or even despising their ideas, yes, but not insulting them as being inferior beings.

On a brighter note, I think we've inadvertently already formed a third, hybrid, Constitutional based, Freedom demanding party in the meantime. Now to find our Leaders and our Candidates.

Hey, at least our party's the one where we're all labeled conspiratorial idiots across the board.

Well reasoned. Well worth reading. I, like the author, was a staunch liberal Democrat believing in the ideals of social justice to which the party adhered. Then during the rabid hatred rhetoric thrown against Trump, I began to see the insanity of blind adherence to the party when I tried to share a video from Tucker Carlson. My "liberal" friends dismissed it outright due to its source. I subscribed to Epoch Times to make myself aware of different perspectives. Again, my friends rejected any discussion in which I used this as a reference. I, too, found myself quickly marooned from former colleagues. The Democrat party left me more than I left it. I am thankful for whatever spark of truth flamed me into deeper understanding of indoctrination and prejudice. I think that's what is known as "growing up".

Call it a coup, an insurrection, and more to the point, an act of treachery against our country. Many in Washington DC, in our justice department, in our unelected institutions, and beyond, are outright traitors. And they are being aided by those outside our (former) borders who are our enemies.

Once again you have stepped up to bat and eloquently and elegantly knocked it out of the park. Actually, I found myself in tears as I finished the read.

Like you, I grew up in CA and the west coast in the 70's. From a long line of democrats we often had the kitchen table discussion or debate about who we were voting for and why. There was often the joke of realizing we were canceling out each others votes when we disagreed.

Oddly, every member of my family, each for different reasons all left our democrat heritage about the same time. I went away to school to a prestigious university in the South. Oddly, there I was the only democrat in a sea of republicans and they made no sense to me. More oddly, I was far more conservative on some issues than these supposedly conservative peers. It is then I realized that real meaning to party affiliation was a myth.

I am in truth a Libertarian though that party does not represent my belief that a baby in the womb is always a valuable human. The sad reality of being registered in a party so I can play all election rounds makes me only a reluctant republican...a conservative RINO I guess for those who like labels.

My tears here are for the loss of discourse we once had. The iron sharpening iron that makes us all better.

I have often not liked Tucker Carlson. I found him to be a mix of important points and kind of nasty and fear pushing at times. However, in the last year I have found him growing on me. He seems to have lost some of that edge. In the end I have found him courageous, honest, truthful and open minded. Just as I have found you to be.

As journalists who are truth tellers, who ground their lives and stories in real facts, who welcome opposing views - may your numbers multiply. And may the liars and propaganda

A very eloquent and telling column of the sad state of affairs America has come to. I wasn't going to respond, but felt the need.

I remember when you first came on the Warroom (I didn't get cable anymore at this point, and didn't feel Fox was worth watching even though I did like Tucker and a couple on the Business side they got rid of soon after Covid), and I recall all the negative comments about you below on Rumble (I close the chats), and couldn't understand why. What you said sounded very reasonable and was against the Government propaganda that was being force fed us by the MSM, and was very aware of the cancellations on Social media (why I closed all of my accounts), and actually posted in your favor that anyone who was against humanities enemies was my friend in this battle. I got lot's of dislikes. Then the battle with the documents by the FDA trying to protect the release of for first 55 and then 75 years came into play with the Judge ultimately siding against Big Pharma in the people's favor (I still can hardly believe), and the forming of the alliance between all sides behind your efforts to sort through and release all newfound information and the creation of Daily Clout to be used as the platform. People (not all) started to see the Truth about what you, Bannon, and Tucker (and many others) were saying and calling for in an alliance against TPTB who were on neither of our sides of he aisle they were pitting against each other to bring us down and into their totalitarian/fascist control of a Global dictat, and we could debate the details of societal policy after or if we could stop their assault on our Republic.

Maybe it has something to do with age as you say being able to see things in a different light before the partisan divide became absolute and discussions and hope/belief we could make the country a better place for everyone. One would hope what we witnessed throughout the past 3+ years would open some eyes and minds to what's going on, but sadly for so many the blinders are still attached and maybe always will be. I want to believe otherwise.

Wow. This is a stunning analysis. I've experienced similar in my world - just mentioned once Ron DeSantis was doing good things to protect kids, and I was shrieked at, at an outdoor patio, causing everyone to turn and stare.

This is perhaps the most profound statement I found in this piece:

"Above all it horrified me because the Left thus had departed from the post-Enlightenment metric of "is it true?" to return to a pre-rational metric of "is this within our tribe and according to our rituals and our cult?"

Bravo!

As a former "liberal" SJW who evolved through life experience into an independent conservative, I struggle to understand the ethos that defines the so-called contemporary "left".

They are no longer anti-establishment. The common denominator is that they have become statist, authoritarians, and praetorian guards for the oligarchs and the elite. They are anti-constitution, anti-faith, and pro-war yet they see themselves as morally superior.

Was it Trump Derangement Syndrome that brought them to this point or did the evolution start with the introduction of the surveillance state in the wake of 9/11? Were two decades of social engineering and propagandizing that effective?

What do they stand for and why is it that the mere mention of Ron DeSantis or Tucker Carlson results in the visceral shrieking that you described? It's cult behavior.

The always brilliant gato malo offers an explanation:

I think it falls in between Trump and 9/11. It was Barack Hussein who broke the left from their last connections with reality. The dreamy speeches littered with "Hope and Change" and the willingness to weaponize the government (IRS and more) against conservatives was the new model for the leftists looking for endless power. Since they "are" morally superior, anything goes to further the cause. The ends justify the means. Truly dangerous territory. ---- As an aside, "Safe and Effective" always reminded me of "Hope and Change." (both meaningless)

Great comment. I struggle with it as the days following 9/11 are fresh in my mind and the tactics used to drum up support for the neocon 'Global War on Terror' mirror the current 5th Generation Warfare tactics being used by the authoritarians and their statist supporters in the contemporary left.

Naomi Wolf talked about it in her 2007 book, The Fall of America. COVID and the Russia Threat, replaced the GWOT, the left became the establishment, but the tactics remained the same.

I think you are spot on as to the significance of Obama. The Obama campaign were the ones who first recognized the power of social media to drive public opinion as we witnessed the marshaling Facebook to rally support from Obama in the 2008 Election.

From that time forward, the major social media players were firmly in the DNC camp and, as always, the GOP/conservatives were miles behind. Social media has been the principle means by which contemporary leftist thought is socially engineered and propagated.

Great article! Thanks for standing up for values and opinions shared by many of us.

The debate has moved from political parties versus political parties, to state-sponsored fascism versus freedom; this was proven conclusively with the twitter files, and the government censorship of anyone telling the truth, from liberals such as yourself, to conservatives like Tucker, to foreign journalists like Assange. Once you see and hear the truth, you can't ever un-see it.

Thank you for this post. I am 76, but grew up in the America you describe. I was introduced to you by Steve Bannon on Warroom. I had already had covid and everybody knows that once you had something, you got natural immunity and did not need a vaccine.

When my doctor had covid (serious bad case) as soon as she got better, she had the vaccine, had covid again, and even sicker the second time. She had to be vaxxed or she would be fired. Is it medical school or obedience training?

I got "othered" at my job at an academic library in November 2015. I came to work in a cheerful mood, not hysterical grief, when Hillary lost. I hung on till 2019 because we needed the money, then retired in disgust.

My best friend of 30 years dumped me because of Trump. Two years later I sent her a copy of The Bodies of Others, in the hope she might read it because you were known as a liberal once upon a time.

My husband and I never got the vax, neither did our granddaughter. But both my daughters did, required by their jobs. My greatest regret is there will be no more grandchildren for us.

Very nice long commentary. It also paints an insightful picture of what elite D.C. was like in the 1990s--a social milieu completely alien to me and most people I know. And yet, as you say, there was a shared agreement that people "can disagree without being disagreeable," allowing that communication and cross-pollination of ideas vital for a thriving country.

I saw the media problems start when I was in college during the early 1970s, first with the trend toward "New Journalism" (using fiction writing techniques in journalistic stories)--which seemed innocent enough at the time. But then the grizzled, fiercely independent newspaper veterans who were the first wave of TV journalists (Cronkite, Safer, Huntley and Brinkley, and others) were replaced by younger, more photogenic Happy Faces who had no journalistic background. So they didn't bring with them any sense of traditional journalistic values and ethics.

Later, when I was in J-school in the late 1970s, we were still expected to be objective and accurate. We had to put aside our biases and report stories as objectively as possible. But that seemed to vanish as New Journalism was replaced by Advocacy Journalism--which completely abandoned any pretense of embracing objectivity.

Looking back, I think it was a sign of the coming decline of both public discourse and politics as a whole.

Thanks for shining a light on that. We desperately need to give new life to those old, traditional values.

They worked.

I was cancelled by the woke-sters in 2017 and it showed me that I no longer shared basic values with people I had once considered "chosen family". But my values are baked into how I walk, talk and AM in the world. And I was willing to take the blows for them. Their approach was so mean and hysterical, whereas my spiritual training (yoga and western esoteric traditions) had taught me that we get what we give in the world. And my Christian grandmother taught me unconditional love and to treat others how I want to be treated. ALWAYS. Not sometimes or when they agree with me.

That was so satisfying to read. So much honesty in a time when honesty is increasingly rare.

Wasn't it Orwell who coined the phrase "wrong think"? The media and political groups have successfully tricked people into willingly closing off all communications with people who have diverse opinions and perspectives by painting voices of reason/concern /opposition as "wrong thinkers". You're not even allowed to listen to wrong thinkers, or you become tainted. This is essentially the brainwashing that allowed the medical field to keep on following the NIH and CDC recommendations, despite how illogical everything they recommend was. I would wager that those doctors don't want to know more than what their hospital administrators roll out for standard care and treatments. They were most likely conditioned this way during medical school?

You could see this culture of avoiding wrong think building against the "anti-vaxxers" for several years prior to Covid. Vaccinate your children = being a good person. Not vaccinating your children = bad, selfish, ignorant. It's been a powerful psy-op. And a lucrative one. And it set us up for the pandemic response catastrophe. I do not think money was/is the main objective but it certainly played a roll.

It seems to me that the flourishing of social media has allowed this avoidance of listening to wrong-thinkers to really become much stronger than it could possibly have been without the constant moral one-upping that, apparently, humans are naturally inclined to do. It must be our innate longing for, and need of, community support systems and to be included. We want everyone to think we are good and we are desperate for that approval. With the social 24/7 monitoring of people's "goodness", AI has been able to easily manipulate the public into whatever it wants. I scroll through the Facebook news feed just to see what and how they want me to think. It's entertaining. The message that 'you are good (educated/intelligent/sofisticated/caring etc) if you support this' and 'you are bad if you say or support that', has driven people into an irrational madness. I was literally not able to talk people into seeing how defunding the police was a bad idea. On what planet would it make sense to stop paying law enforcement a living wage? I still have a friend wearing masks and carrying around a portable air filter.

AI is powerful and understands human nature more than we seem to understand it ourselves. It makes us easy targets of their manipulation. I do not see how we can overcome this, as a whole, but at least many of us are seeing it for what it is. What a strange world today is. Every time has its challenges, I suppose. This is ours. And it's making the voluntary enslavement of the entire world a real, actual possibility. I'm anxious and nervous to see where we are in ten

Well said Dr. Wolf. Who could ever have predicted pre-Covid that our alliances with what we thought were shared ideologies could shift so drastically. Left leaning groups who worked tirelessly for equity and women's rights have been kidnapped by transgender nonsense and cancel culture that is destroying what it means to be a woman and what it means to have free speech. It is the right leaning values that are upholding traditional ideologies. What has happened to the West?

In regards to Tucker's presence on Fox, there was a saying in the protest movement in the 60s, "You can't use the master's tools to dismantle the master's house." This will not be allowed, and Tucker found this out the hard way.

The Cabal didn't create and fund the media juggernaut only to have its airtime taken over by upstarts like Tucker and outsiders like Dan Bongino. They are panicked by the fact that "unapproved" opinion is so popular, and will fight to the corporate death to wrest control of the narrative back into their hands. No, they really don't care if Fox loses half its viewers and income due to the loss of their most popular anchor. Heck, they would fund MSM propaganda networks at a loss if they had to.

I never thought I, a conservative, would be regularly reading you, or listening to Jimmy Dore or Glenn Greenwald or Russel Brand or Kim Iversen, but I do. I don't agree with them all of the time, but I don't DISagree with them all of the time either. So there is at least something hopeful about our present political and

I have experienced the same, though from the opposite side of the spectrum. Before all this I considered myself a far-left liberal, and I generally believed the liberal media sources I followed. Now I don't feel any label applies, and I'm far more aware of the absolute lies mainstream media concocts to smear people on both sides. Having an open mind and actually listening/connecting with others feel absolutely vital to me now; ignoring or knee-jerk hating people with whom we think we don't agree is a luxury we can no longer afford. Doubtless this was always true, but the stakes have become crazy high.

I also had to do a 'turn around' on Carlson AND Bannon - actually the only reason I watched Bannon was because you were on his show. I believe there are many of us - including Carlson (don't know about Bannon) who had had to do an about face and offer an apology up for what we believed then, and what we have come to realize is the truth now. I think it might be put under the heading 'being human'. Now I believe he is primed for more and better as a free agent - he is on a journey as are we all who has seen the starkness of the future - I am not a Trump fan, I don't believe he is the 'one' to turn things around, but with the numbers he gathers about him, the numbers you have gathered and the numbers Carlson gathers, the truth is getting wider and more noticed... with Schwab announcing an acceleration of the 2030 agenda, we know they are afraid things are slipping - we can use all the numbers we can get. Thanks much Naomi - in all ways!

What happened to liberals standing up for the First Amendment? Change just for its own sake is not real progress if it devolves into madness, collectivism, and tribalism while denying individual, inalienable rights enshrined in the Declaration of Independence: life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Sometimes I think what happened was a covert coup, so that we woke up with the pretense of 'America' but in a new, dystopian Marxist reality reminiscent of '1984' by George Orwell.

Moreover, some conservatives like Tucker Carlson and Steve Bannon are doing what comes naturally, conserving the American way of life founded upon the principles of US Constitution and the Bill of Rights. "Give me liberty, or give me death," declared Patrick Henry and was once the rallying cry of all American patriots, regardless. Thanks, Dr. Wolf, for being true to liberalism in the classical sense, openhanded and broad-minded, even with those whom you disagree at times.

Having grown up in the 60's/70's like yourself and Tucker (yet a bit older at 65), and as a "military brat" who spent enough time overseas to "come home" and really appreciate this country, I resonate in a powerful way with your conclusions:

"And he (Tucker) insists on patriotism, in a time of relentless propaganda and the bribery of elites that urges us all to drop national identities, cultures, borders and even allegiances.

"This last quality especially makes him dangerous, as our nation is led entirely now by elite-captured traitors to our country.

"All of these resonances are deeply nostalgic — but they are also what must be saved and protected as memories and as part of our core belief system, if we are ever to regain our Republic — and our decency — in the future."

Amen, sister!

It won't just be "the Left" as you put it - the Rinos on the right are just as culpable in this mess.

Many of us on the right have been awakened from our myopic slumber of nodding like bobble-heads whenever the GOP claimed we needed to fight another war, or intervene in another country's politics. Eisenhower and JFK were both right, but we weren't listening: the military industrial complex (including the CIA and FBI, etc.) is never satisfied, it always wants more of our sons and daughters, and more of our hard earned tax dollars to enrich its contractors (and the corrupt politicians themselves)...

I'm wondering if we will now listen to another Kennedy, RFK, Jr., as he cuts through so much of the political smoke and mirrors to diagnose how we got here. No, I don't agree with him on everything, but he is speaking truth "for such a time as this."

I agree.... the GOP has not done its job. During the first two years of Trump's term, when they had the House and Senate, they could have revolutionized America, by passing a slew of laws (approved!) on topics like:

- * a balanced budget
- * term limits
- * recover control of the monetary system from the Fed. Reserve
- * remove the excessive arms and munitions purchased by admin departments (e.g. Social Security)
- * replace the FBI and remove the laws making firing of Deep State employees next to impossible

- * kick wokeism out of the military and fire top brass who were woke
- * remove all public funding from woke colleges
- * eliminate the Dept of Education
- * and on and on and on.

If they won't act when they have a super-majority, when will the GOP act? SHAME ON THEM.

It is the weirdest thing, how people who used to relish debate, who used to listen to opposing voices, who ascribed, as my friend and I used to, to the old ACLU deontological formula of "you've got to let the Nazis march in Skokie" as a sort of brake on our own propensities to think we knew how things should be, no longer think at all and instead huddle in social media silos, and don't seem to even notice how their thinking (or lack of it) has transmogrified. I get total outrage and disgust and contempt for being so naive or oblivious as to have listened to a word Tucker Carlson said from someone celebrating in the FB pile on inside the silo. I was accused of having gone down a rabbit hole as there was no doubt a very sophisticated psyop put out there to psychoanalyze those that have been red pillled so the narrative holds up. I get it all the time, so and so is evil, so and so is Republican (synonymous with evil lol), as if the label or the epithet is definitional. I think of them now as Moonies, or devotees of the Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, cults that were around when California was a liberal paradise. Someone on another platform was mentioning Robert J. Lifton's "thought terminating cliché," how it defines cults, only in this cult the axiom is that everyone else is in a rabbit hole or cult and they are the rational democratic liberal ones. It is so freaking sophisticated. It reminds me, sometimes, of that old Stooges routine on Niagara Falls "slowly I turned" Thank you for this. With the center not holding, all that has been known to us flying apart (Plath's "I break apart in pieces that fly about like clubs"), "all that is solid melting into air," it is so mirroring and settling to read your work.

Part of this whole psyop, is the weaponization of words, like ~'woke'...not a fa of the 'red pill' label as someone being 'aware' or 'woke' either. No pill is better, but people see things that string them along into a form of consciousness they didn't have, and they seem to not be able to help themselves but to repeat the programming within the material that first 'woke' them up. We are so far behind, they have been at this since WWII and Operation Paperclip, or longer.

People learn some actual truth, conspiracy's that are very true/real, and then they go off on the 'flat earth' rant, proving they are clueless about Eratosthenes for instance.

A friend of mine has long observed that the fact that casual socializing in the political class seems to have gone the way of the dodo bird has a direct correlation to the demise of our national conversations. An entire generation has been taught to reflexively scream "cooties!" Which in turn stops any conversation. At this point, I think this is by design.

I have brought this up with a few people, and while it is acknowledged, they slip back into "well, it is the D/R fault," depending on what team they associate with. I have started to push back and say no; this goes further than that. This is not left/right/red/blue. Do we have our differences? Of course we do. That is human.

But we have far more in common than is acknowledged. The question we should all be asking is why the push to focus with an almost religious fervor on what divides us rather than unites us? Why the need to divide and conquer? And who specifically benefits and what are their motives?

♡ LIKE (6) 💬 REPLY (1) ...

Truth Seeker Apr 28

I'd like to think you are right about our common ground, but what concerns me is that the division seems to be due to real differences in opinions and fundamental values. When I talk with my liberal friends with whom I thought I had a lot in common, I learn that they are okay with open borders, abortion till the moment of birth, sexualizing (and even mutilation) of children, having a president with dementia (one even said it's just that he had a stutter when he was a child), a terrible economy, mask and "vaccine" mandates, and somehow it all gets back to . . . hate Trump. It's become impossible to talk with them, and frankly I don't how we get back together. The chasm between us has become too wide.

I should add that I'm not surprised by this--even back in 1970 at Berkeley, the flouting of traditional values and disdain for America was the norm. The seeds have been sown for a very long time.

have been sown for a very long time. But I think the key is to take it back to the very basics and not focus on the hot buttons - those are the distractions. I am not saying they aren't important; they aren't going away, but we need to be reminded of the foundation and build upon that - life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, for lack of a better phrase. Does that sound a little pollyannish? Maybe. But in the end, don't we all want to be happy?

The Old Left and the Old Right will never unite to face their common enemy. Both see themselves under attack. But they each fall back upon tactics and habits they are familiar with. That is how humans everywhere respond when faced with a mortal threat, they do what they know. The Old-Left responds with calls for tolerance, open-expression and questioning. That only gave Maoists a bigger beachhead from which to attack civilization. The Right responds with demands for orderliness, self-restraint and respect for authority. When those measures are implemented they give the Maoists weapons to attack civilization. The Old-Left allowed the Maoists in the door. But the Old Right created the Military-Industrial-Security Complex, wrote the Patriot Act, and established the "trust authority" ethos that enabled all the Covid mandates. The Right built those tools but Maoists weaponized them all against us all. Neither the Old-Left or the Old-Right can defeat the Maoists without abandoning their old mindsets.

While I am pleased that Ms Wolf is finally waking up to the truth that government is the problem, not the solution, I fear that, like RFK she still believes that if only really sincere, compassionate, thoughtful, well educated, deep thinkers like herself were in power, the world would soon become a far better place.

But it won't and the reason is quite simple: power is the problem. The one thing deep thinking compassionate people like Ms Wolf will never permit is liberty and free markets. They always have schemes to force "goodness" on others, never realizing that the problem is force itself. Under all their deep-feeling rhetoric is the notion that 'fairness' trumps 'freedom' - and they know what is fair and that real freedom is unfair.

For instance, these ever so good people may want to end the unnecessary wars, but it is so they can spend that loot on educating other people's children or feeding them government approved diets or giving their parents job training. They have 'programs' in mind, not freedom.

In short they want to save America but never, ever want to leave America alone. And like all the official busy-bodies, they want to continue financing their vast utopian schemes with the good old extortion racket of taxation, the counterfeiting racket of fractional-reserve banking, and the monopoly racket of IP law and licensing to benefit the donor class that supports the gang of parasites called government.

What so few of these deep thinkers ever understand is that Ron Paul was right. Until we end the IRS and the Federal Reserve, the power lusters and parasites inflicting all this evil upon us cannot be stopped. Unlimited funding results in unlimited evil.

Property rights begin with self-ownership and then extend to other property obtained by homesteading, gift, or trade. That certainly includes homes, which BlackRock and Vanguard are buying up (while Bill Gates buys up farm land). But they won't be buying it all and the real estate market bubble appears to be about to crash. Like all bubbles, it was inflated by massive injections of counterfeit money resulting in absurdly low-interest loans made available to the super wealthy.

I do not pretend to have a solution to every new calamity caused by such massive stealing. I am making the point that stopping the stealing should be our first priority.

Faith in the 'system' (talking and voting) is no match for the objective reality of massive, unlimited looting backed up by black-box voting machines, and vast censorship.

Pretty hard to disagree with you, but it reminds me of some of my smarter friends from the 70s. They were supportive of direct action at that time and dismissive of agit prop. All the direct action of that period did not accomplish much other than to kill many and set the stage for the intellectual misappropriation of the present as an alternative rebranding of 70s hard left ideology.

I am not supportive of 'direct action' other than a) demanding an end to voting machines and b) demanding an end to looting. The major mistake being made now by most common sense people is to waste time on all the other issues while ignoring those two. Without honest elections and property rights, nothing else will stop the steady progress of evil, which is accelerating now because the parasites know that many people are awakening to their evil. "Lockdown" - a prison term - is exactly what they are up to now.

It is because people allowed the voting machines and continued voting for the looting - thinking they would benefit at their neighbors expense - that the mess is now upon us. Too many still see 'representative' government as a good idea being done poorly rather than an evil idea being done as a good idea being done poorly rather than an evil idea being done thoroughly. As long as common sense people waste their time drawing attention to the newly minted evils arriving almost daily rather than to the fundamentals of vote fraud and looting at its root, evil will continue to flourish.

You write clearly, but it seems to me that the only way to end the voting machines and the funding theft would be through some form of direct action or fast changes. I couldn't agree more about defending private property. My government is now proceeding with a weapon buyback which is the theft of private property.

To stop these actions and limit or end the use of voting machines would require the acquiescence of the powers that be, something I don't see happening when you see that the justice system has refused to acknowledge the existence of a problem.

My problem with fast changes remains that they often simply produce a new set of complicated problems when the human beings that take over after the fast change assert their own agendas.

I am sincerely enjoying this exchange. First time in years.

we need to take some of the mentioned weapons and put some teflon bullets in them and some silencers on them and find out where the voting machines with the proprietary software are stored and go and murder those machines. Every one of them. Hopefully in a way where they don't find out until the day of the election that it has happened. Surely the doofuses with the keys to the storage facilities where the voting machines with the proprietary software are housed can be bought off cheaply. Seems like it could be a worthwhile project. Spending unlimited money on new voting machines seems like a better use of that money than what it's being used for now.

I am not recommending fast, but rather focused. Focus on extortion, counterfeiting, monopoly and elections. They are the disease of stealing which finance all of these many symptoms of obvious evil.

Actually, thanks to those who are focusing on the voting machines, they are being outlawed in some locations with great results. That just needs to be encouraged and publicized.

Dr. Wolf, I find your writing here and throughout these past few years so inspiring.

First and foremost because you speak in "common sense" and "humility". Two characteristics that have seemingly all but vanished from much of our culture.

When we humble ourselves and use our God-given common sense, we are set on a path for true learning and understanding. I, for one, have been on this road intensely for the past 3 years.

When I read this, I see your humble heart. I see someone who, like many of us, has been beaten to a pulp by those who cling to their fear of "the others" whomever the others may be.

The common thread I see in many if not all who have risen up on the side of truth is their

The common thread I see in many, if not all who have risen up on the side of truth is their understanding of PURE EVIL in a new and profound way.

You are a seeker, and I place myself in that category as well. You seek God, seek truth, seek justice, seek answers.

I don't see politics anymore, I see those who are searching, and those who are stuck.

My belief is that God and God alone holds the truth, and to those seeking and searching with humility and common sense, he will reveal himself more and more.

May God bless you for your vulnerability to bring this sort of needed public discourse front and center.

Is it what we love & desire that opens the door?

Is it belief in G'd?

Is it having independence in our work lives?

I know close family members who voted for JFK, RFK and hung pictures and quotes of these men and even named children after them but will NOT even watch RFKJr's Presidential announcement speech in Boston.

The 80s -90s, we're a time of diversity. Look up the history of BONDS, The Fun House, Studio 54. Clubs in NYC, going strong with all walks of life and neighborhoods. All getting out together, dancing, partying. It was a great time. The politicians started speaking of "division diversity", and been full speed ahead with Obama, who is Mulatto, like many, but ramped it up. America is the diverse country.

You've come a long way, Naomi, but you still have a little way to go. You still use the phrase "people of color" in all seriousness. One day you will realize that it was made up by your former teammates to purport to bring together ethnicities that have nothing in common with each other besides being non-white, as a way to try to unite them against oppressive whitey. "Homophobia" is another made-up word that essentially denotes a thought crime. Those of us who are red-pilled would never utter or write that word with a straight face.

Your article is so appreciated, Naomi. Thank you for speaking up -- once Again! As a 2nd generation Southern Californian who grew up a generation before you, I miss the days when conversations included many view points with a genuine interest in learning, especially from differing points of view. Sadly, I am unable to share important truthful-factual information about Covid, the jab, Fauci, etc nor discuss any other topic that might involve a political difference with 50+ year friends who are either liberal or who hate anything perceived as conservative. I personally am more liberal socially and fiscally more conservative-- but I care about Truth and value others and their opinions -- from where I can learn and grow in understanding and compassion.

Yes, I listen to Tucker Carlson and although not necessarily in agreement with all of his and guest commentaries, I appreciated his genuine openness and questioning on many topics -- including your appearances on his and other shows.

Thank you for your courage to speak up and to share your thoughts, research and keen insights - including about history repeating itself right before our eyes. Thank you for standing behind others who appreciate and value truth from whatever political party it might be spoken. May your bravery, character and principles help many more eyes to open to the truths of our world. 🙏

OPEN LETTER TO TUCKER CARLSON:

MSM is having its way with RFK Jr. Whatever you are going to do, do it quickly. People tend to formulate opinions early on, at which point it is much harder to move them to reexamine and change. Your country, We The People, now call upon you to help restore democratic debate based on long time well established principles of free speech and open honest uncensored discourse. I believe you were not separated from Fox platform b/c of anything you said or did, but rather it was b/c of what you could do. Think about it. Watch how ABC lies and Pierce Morgan falsely labels Robert Kennedy in short clips grinding out a foothold in registered voters' opinion formulations. We need a strong well followed Voice of the People based on sound journalistic principles, a fair and unbiased set of short interviews from now until POTUS contest date, of the two (2) strong candidates emerging from the smoke and dust visited upon us all by MSM since 2020, and you, our Dear Tucker, can and should stand strong in that light. Kindly consider these words and ask yourself, "Who am I", and "What can I do for my country?". With respect and deep appreciation for your contributions to date,

Thank you for defining the "tribalism" we see today. It is dividing families and friendships as well as communities and countries. Indeed tribalism is dangerous. My great grandmother was a person of pert phrases about life..."let's call a spade a spade." There exists today a version of the truth which is like the three monkeys...see no evil, hear no evil etc. Thank you for collecting the data about Pfizer which would have been hidden for 55 years. We need to face the truth, deal with the truth, and see reality as it really is, not as we wish it to be. We need to charge up our BS detectors to high alert. We must find a way to keep communicating what is true. Like you, my siblings and three out of four of the Gen X kids are eye rollers if I so much as open my mouth. I strive to maintain at least some relationship with them. Fascinating article about Tucker Carlson and your perspective. My biggest take away from this is what you both presently have in common is you are both being vilified and cast out of the acceptable crowd. You are being shut down, ridiculed, and are an enemy for trying to find and expose the truth.

The irony is you both come from opposite sides of the political spectrum, and yet you both are being deliberately marginalized. Strange bedfellows indeed.

A lot of comments here are suggesting that the right is more open to dissident voices than the left. Perhaps somewhat, but you're dead on: there is a definite right-wing establishment that is just as willing to silence people. It just so happens that in this case it appears to agree with the left-wing establishment about who those voices are. The right isn't interested in de-platforming people who advocate for burning down cities, but is all too willing to join the left in de-platforming someone against the war in Ukraine and covid shots. Curious.

Some things are worth investing in wisely and with structures in place. Ignorance is nothing to rejoice about, part of the issue we have now is ignorance and somehow people unwilling to take a look into places they would rather not have to, it is easier to just believe what we are told and that the elected officials are taking care of things.

I don't at this point, believe in 'free' education, but I do believe in education, much like our forefathers did.

Application, Ability, Appreciation, and public service to repay the loan from the US taxpayers, would help us as a country. Isn't that what is important?

We don't have to compete with China in AI implementation and takeover/surveillance.

We have to prove we are the country of inclusion and freedom, our hallmarks.

And why that makes us a TRUE LEADER.

Not that we have the most bombs, most military camps, most money.

We care and we are willing to implement a truly diverse, society that excludes no one, other than their own choice to participate as they choose and are capable.

I'm not completely sure of the intent of your comment. I, too, think education is important. But not the one size fits all kind.

Tucker's Heritage foundation address reminded us that there are ALWAYS restoring forces. Constitutional governance has been in a slow descent since JFK, hitting the rocks in the 2020 election and scraping and floundering on those rocks since. But, as is the case of economic downturn, there are several hundred million people who still have to make a living. They will NOT roll over and die. Mostly.

Perhaps the most stultifying fact unique to this episode in history is this: Joe Biden has poisoned his ENTIRE electorate. This is beyond dispute, ameliorated slightly by the incompetent DOD vaccine sourcing. Fortunately some of the vials were low octane. Some were high octane. Those folks are already dead. Some of the injuries beg description. The longer term loss of lifespan has yet to play out for many. This is a POLITICAL setback as it perpetuates the state of denial that has captured so many for so long. A few are awake. How is Bobby Kennedy supposed to resuscitate the Democratic Party?

Mysterious are the ways...

My conspiracy theory. Fox lawyers in discovery obtained undisclosed information on the 2020 election fraud.

The inexplicable $675M settlement of a was a directive from the WH delivered by intelligence services to the Murdochs.

Settling the suit and getting rid of Tucker were desperate measures. Sinking the company a small price per the administration view.

The administration has exterminated more than 1M Americans by hospital protocols and shots. There is no price too high for this administration in gratifying financial and political

What a marvellous carefully detailed historic peice; thank you!

It is so needed and necessary - to look back in order to steady ourselves (individually and globally) and see how far and fast we have gone into 'crazy town'.

Wonderful insight into the early Salons of Washington and the DC back drop. Great thought and care about looking at our own prejudice as well as others. Seeing how many good decent credible logical voices are being silenced globally. How many 'friends' now knife each other in the back. How fast 'Haterism' 'cancel-Culture' and 'Feminism' are morphing in psychopathy.....

We have never needed more the solid sane background/training and rigour of those times in journalism. I was privileged to work at the Observer back when it was hot metal press, no digital and only type writers, everybody chainsmoker and were mostly drunk - real old skool Fleet Street. Most of my 'news stories' and i was only a crappy Fashion Junior Editor - were dropped as they were not good enough. I learned the best way, the hard way how to be excellent. You and Tucker lead the way - as in the end surely it is about excellence, truth, rigour, facts and having balls to speak out - rather than just take a 'Press release' and a back-hander and pretend to be legit.

You will be cheered to know in the UK the cognoscenti are gathering and we are printing our own newspapers and pamphlets much like in the time of Dickens.

Personally i think we should all take being 'shadow-banned' and deplatformed as a weird kind of compliment. As the 'stupids can only stick their fingers in their ears and have no actual debate.

NB If you have not yet listened to this i think you might enjoy this - i had already made the link(via my own diabolical satanic abusive toxic family) between 'Domestic Abuse and what the Globalist Deleats are doing to us en masse; here the Marvellous Trauma survivor and therapist Madeline Miller riffs on 'Leaving the Matrix of Abuse' link here;

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=x1o--TPzZQs>

Keep Going Spirit Warrior - we are all standing up shoulder to shoulder with you - and the 'enemy' is just staring to look naff, squalid tawdry and desperate; quality excellence and good journalism always wins. And you remain a beacon! BLESS YOU! (And bless dear old Tucker C! Neither one of you deserved a kick in the balls - both of you remain elegant.)

Tribes can be dangerous things, as you've sadly discovered . What's most terrifying is the fact that the tribal members have no perspective on their declared allegiances and no interest in actual facts. This is pre-war Germany on social media steroids.

I hope we're nearing an inflection point where these labels fall away and thoughtful, informed conversation can take their place. I find it insightful, and frightening , that political debates for the Dems are off limits. If that fact alone doesn't wake people up, I don't know what will.

We sane people need an army of Naomis, people who will brave the tribal mindset in the search for facts and truth. I know being expelled from your tribe hurts (been there, done that) but there is a much brighter world on the other side.

pharma and the military industrial complex. Many of the things my father in law believed describe Tucker Carlson. He was one of the only cable hosts exposing the censorship that happened to people like you. He's one of the only hosts that platformed you and others dissidents on the left: Jimmy Dore, Max Blumenthal, Aaron Maté and RFK Jr.

And I feel like the Dems have become a type of religion with orthodoxies. When you questioned the vaccines and went on Bannon and Tucker, those were heresies and you needed to be excommunicated. Differences of opinion are not allowed on orthodoxy.

Also Keith Olbermann was so right on at times in the past that it's hard for me not to think he had a stroke or something that left him brain damaged, unable to reason clearly.

But "the View" hosts I found completely vomitable every show. CNN's Fredo, as Rush called him, and Don Lemmon were both so biased as to be utterly unnerving liars.

It appears to me that now, everyone who hates godliness and anything the Bible upholds has gravities to the unreasonable left. Luciferianism has ousted any ability to see clearly in this den of vipers. Thank you for this eye-opening personal history related to Tucker Carlson. Ironically, his dismissal from Fox is likely the best thing that ever happened to him. (I now hold a no-party voter card but, in the past, voted primarily for Democrats. I've always voted for person over party. That division has created a sickness in America.) I said it might be the best thing that ever happened to Tucker based on a recent experience with a friend, a diehard lefty. I asked him to listen to Tucker's final monologue on Fox. He had heard about the man but never watched Fox News. (I didn't either and no longer watch any mainstream news channels for obvious reasons. If I want to hear talking heads, I'll make a trip to Disney.) Ultimately, after watching the monologue, he said he agreed with everything Tucker Carlson said. He couldn't believe it. I heard him talking to a liberal friend yesterday. He mentioned that and recommended the monologue. The woman said, "Are you freakin' serious?" His response: "Yeah, you should listen to him some time."

Ms. Wolf, all I can say is Bravo, and thank you for your honesty. If those of us who love freedom can somehow stave off this horrid worldwide trajectory of what I believe to be pure evil, and, if we have actual, printed books on paper pages from which to refer, read, and hopefully learn, I believe you will be squarely secured in the middle of those paper pages as one of the brave heralds of truth and freedom of our time.

Thank you Ms Wolfe for your profound, and ALWAYS insightful commentary. Though you and I have spent our lives on opposite political isles, I have always appreciated your search for truth, and willingness to admit when you have been lead astray. Your open letter regarding Trump, and your blindness about a lot of things was admirable, at the very least. While he is certainly riddled with many many flaws, you were willing to NOT throw the baby out with the bath water and in my eyes, that lends credibility to humanity. Keep up the good work, you are SO necessary to this republic, an enlightenment to truth during a time which mimics much of what the dark ages represented...

Mav the Lord bless and keep you

May the Lord shine his face upon you and be gracious to you

May the Lord turn His face toward you

Thank you for the courtesy in replying personally. My last commentary was sent while I was tired, late last night, and with a tone, perhaps, too harshly and exceeding critically written. As so, in fairness to you, I re-read your opinions with a fresh eye today. Reassessing your past opinions.

One constant was reconfirmed, you write beautifully. A rare talent, of which, I'm still envious. It's a rare talent to behold.

With these compliments and admirations behind us, let us delve into content.

In your musings, you are recanting your personal carthartic experiences, wherein, you are displaying your personal revelations whenever truth was eventually revealed to you as if it were some profound moment to be shared as public enlightenment. Despite owning a Doctoral degree, the instant of revelation for you, whenever the light bulbs finally, and eventually clicked on, these premises were already intuitively obvious and self evident to the rest of us Midwesterners. While eloquent and truly heart felt, it was soft writing. Points made, were somewhat, equivocating. Your midwestern audience is much more sophisticated for such platitudes. Don't underestimate our intellectual capacity.

Not to be cruel, we're just happy that you've that you've finally chosen to join us. Folks with common sense of forthright right and wrong.

In closing, the recent Tucker Calson episode isn't all that complicated. Think about it, Naomi, with jaunticed eye. Mass media wanted Tucker Calson off the air. Purged from the air, and he's still under FOX contract as an employyee. Until his FOX contract expires, his political voice is effectively silenced. And we don't know about any future legal non-compete clauses.

...is effectively unethical, and he doesn't know about any future regulation. Complete disaster.
Doesn't take a brain surgeon to figure this angle out.

Dick, the Midwestern Licenced Engineer

The left have and will canceled anyone who doesn't agreed to their narrative even RFK or Dr. Malone and so on. Speaking of feminist it was created by the cia funded by the Rockefeller. They wanted to tax the other half of the population. Children go to school to be indoctrinated. Selling to women that being at home is enslaved but somehow working 40hrs for a man is freedom. not sure why you believe that this thing you call the "right" is not as brainwashed as the thing you call the left.

I guess the info above came from Aaron Russo. That's where I heard it. I too believe it.

I'm not understanding Wolf's reference to Jefferson and the press. He knew that the press was about entirely full of shit back then too:

Nothing can now be believed which is seen in a newspaper. Truth itself becomes suspicious by being put into that polluted vehicle. The real extent of this state of misinformation is known only to those who are in situations to confront facts within their knowledge with the lies of the day. I really look with commiseration over the great body of my fellow citizens, who, reading newspapers, live and die in the belief that they have known something of what has been passing in the world.

Hunter laptop and 10% Joe with ChY'na money, mandates and coercion on c19 vax. During the pandemic i read 48% of the D wants to lock up the unvaccinated. But just look the D controls education, media and Hollywood as their influencers. That right there can shift a nation. Carlson was the only person left on mainstream media calling the thug D and the rhinos out. On his off night .. he still have more viewers than cnn/msm put together. The D flocked over to watch him at 8pm. They had to censored him! The globalists have pulled the stings and want the people at a constant fear and fighting among each other bc if we come together than there are more of us than them. If you want to know who controls the world then look into the federal reserve.. nothing about it .. is federal or reserve.

perhaps our biggest problem is that they control all of the communications. We (except for me and very few others) are all carrying these cell phones around. Even if we might be able to send some messages they won't understand and be aware of, they know where we are every minute of the day, can listen to most of our conversations.

And yet we have alternatives available but are too lazy and complacent to use them.

All of these internet boxes everywhere connected to fiber optics.

We could use them for truly anonymous communications. We'd only need to cooperate on that.

A good thing to cooperate with that would be the same thing that the peasants cooperated on when they forced King John to sign the Magna Carta.

The project would be to stop them from disappearing us, now as it was then.

The people in jail since jan 6th have been kidnapped and are being held hostage.

We are seeing sincere seeming people say that Tucker's releasing the previously hidden images is a bad thing previously hidden images is a bad thing.

I have no use for such people who are suggesting that having more information rather than less is a bad thing because they say so.

I could think of some uses for them, but it would be the anger talking.

Thank you for this column. As far as I know, Tucker Carlson was the only mainstream talk show host who regularly condemns US foreign policy, which has destroyed countries like Iraq and Afghanistan and has killed, maimed, and traumatized mostly working-class American young people.

It surprises me no end that backing Hillary Clinton and Joe Biden--both of whom worked as cheerleaders for the Iraq War and the punitive 1994 crime bill that has devastated our country's African American community--marks one as a good liberal. On the other hand, not hating Trump, the first president since Carter to not start a new war--marks one as a vile deplorable.

I am disinclined to vote for Trump in 2024 for various reasons, among them his advocacy of waterboarding. At the same time, I can't regard the Democratic alternatives as any better.

LIKE (1) REPLY (2) ...

Jessica R Apr 29 · edited Apr 29

My hesitation about RFK Jr regards his book Framed about his cousin Michael Skakel's murder conviction. His defense of his cousin boils down to "A black guy did it,."

The evidence he offers is

1. The statement of a convicted criminal and known liar who refused to testify under oath in the Skakel case.
2. The fact that an African American hair was found in a blanket used to wrap the victim's body shortly after it was found. Apparently, the blanket came from the victim's house.

In those days, DNA evidence was not available. The victim, who was fifteen, had a family housekeeper who lived in a cottage behind the main house with her husband and teen son, all African American. If the housekeeper handled laundry, her hair or a hair transferred to her person from her husband or son could easily have landed on the sheet.

In addition, hair is readily transferrable.

Furthermore, no one interviewed by police at the time mentioned an African American male in the vicinity. It was Mischief Night, the night before Halloween, and lots of kids were outside engaging in minor pranks and there would have been somebody to see and remember "a black guy."

The man Kennedy named has had his life upended in a cruel way.

As he moves forward on what his goals are for this country, I will be paying close attention. What I have seen with the present administration is instead of America First, it's America last.....

The President of any country should always put their country first and if possible, help globally afterwards.

Both the late HRC and Biden were virulent pedophiles with video taped proof. And that doesn't even begin to cover their political/financial corruption. It still galls me to this day that FJB gave a confession on national TV confirming the DNC part in a fraudulent election, only respondents were crickets. Yet both have 'doubles' running around, his as President no less, and it's verboten to even point that out. And you're worried about waterboarding? Cognitive dissonance overload IMO.

Yes, there is a video of Biden working his hands under an elementary school girl's hair and pinching her nipple. Another one of his hand crawling down a girl's dress in that direction. Yet, the media ignore it, pretending that his biggest crime is hair-sniffing. I guess they can claim, "We did cover his sexual indiscretions."

I can understand wanting to protect the girls, but they could blank out their faces when airing the tapes--which were recorded by CSPAN.

I'd like to ask you something: during trumps presidency, did YOU listen to his state of the union or Davos speeches or ANY of his official speeches, before making any assessment or drawing a conclusion, or did you just read/watch the liberal mainstream media that distorted his words and called him every vile name in the book, and accepted what they said as the truth? Don't put the "or" in next time, Ann. Phrase it more like "which of A or B best describes what you did". I know it's tedious to have to do this, but you can take it that if there's no answer given it means that you can assume the answer to be the one that they don't want to admit to. Do this with politicians too, because they will almost certainly attempt to avoid your choices and tell you C in an impenetrable way, in which case you can fire back "Is C closer to A than to B, do you think?"

do you think:

Dear Naomi:

We share taproots in Northern California a place where genius, entrepreneurial spirit, capitalism and the military-industrial-intelligence community swam in a sea of opportunity nearby the real sea--Pacific Ocean where life has teemed unabated for millions of years.

I remember being educated in venues where critical thinking was encouraged and avant guardisms were more than tolerated. Some of the really impactful achievers have come from CA, either as natives or as transplants where they blossomed into greatness of one sort or another. We have and have had more than our fair share of villains.

As with you, I barely gave "Tucker Carlson" or any of the media mouths, much attention and there was a flavor-shift in the "soup du jour" coming from the houses of government. It became clear that the cumulative effect of Ronald Reagan's veto of the codification of the Fairness Doctrine, the passage by Bill Clinton of the Telecommunications Act of 1996 and the core and detritus of George Bush's Patriot Act. have dehumanized and "un-fair-zed" the flow of information and enabled the ability to fabricate nuances of truth. It took cable entertainment to produce the clashing of information to give us any fair view of the ends of fabricated polarity.

Whether it is his California vibrational harmony or his tone of voice, I have learned to use Tucker Carlson as one of my touch points to see the constellation of news points.

Unfortunately, the demand for our time in this binary/digital/pico-second age, means that "we" are programmed (naturally or by intent) to be succinct, narrow and right (not necessarily correct).

The real crime is daring to pop out of the box, that confining paradigm where labels define identity. "I am a... Liberal, Conservative, Libertarian, father, plumber, teacher..." Meanwhile, evolutionary pressure is increasing to dissolve the artificial boundaries that characterize Homo Oppressives, between each other, with other species, with the diverse aspects of ourselves. There are layers and layers of deceit and denial to navigate, easy to get lost in those weeds but ultimately it's simple: just respect each other and listen with an open mind

Naomi, as Tucker and you, Naomi Wolf, both have a loyal following, I have to admit you have had to remake or reconstruct your career. With Tucker it has yet to be seen. I'm not concerned however of Tuckers financial future as much as I am of the average citizen as the government continues its printing of trillions of new dollars. Janet Yellen just the other day said 50 trillion in debt is not a problem. All countries that have said similar outrageous statements have gone bankrupt. If you think it can't happen here I wanted to say my father had told me he had a younger brother in the depression that he said starved to death in the depression in Mission Hill Boston. But back to cancel culture. I honestly think cancel culture is a soft nice term. Erase or eliminate is a much better descriptive term for what these authoritative tyrants want as an end result of the people they want to have disappear. Haven't we witnessed these very same policies not so long ago in Germany? They also had a free press, freedom of speech, freedom to travel, freedom to own weapons. Because of a push to erase communists at the time Hitler was granted dictator status and the killing, imprisoning, slave labor etc. began. This is very similar to these psychological type warfare we witness today in America. My rant for the day. J. Goodrich

I come from a conservative area which was culturally racist. I like many others fought to shed this by leaning hard left, until realizing that irrational positions on either side only divide and fomenting violence. Now in my old age I have learned to assume nothing regarding behavior but to seek truth which made sense to me. This means that I may learn from the most radical leftist. So I went to a "coffee" hosted by my new member of Congress, Rashida Tlieb. When I proposed the idea of auditing the Federal Reserve, she agreed. I don't think she knew this is an old idea first proposed by Ron Paul, conservative Libertarian. Another example of "keeping my enemies closer".

Adults can have diametrically opposed opinions and conversations, even heated ones and should still part friends. As an anarco capitalist- and also an adult I have made many friends that were vehemently opposed to my ideals. We would get into heated debates, they would get flustered but I keep calm and just keep putting down facts, we sooner or later go to something more benign and part friends. The amazing part is, to a person I have changed their outlook and they start questioning their belief in government and corporate America. A few have gone from left to center and a couple are now with me. Mature adults can have serious deep intellectual conversations, adult children / cultists cannot.

Interesting premise. Worthy of additional thought. I submit this premise for the concept of Patriotism. True, as you state, it is a collective believe. Of which, the concept of Patriotism, can be abused. But at it's core, the underlying premise is faith in the Constitution as our mutual social compact to guide our society. To date, one of histories most fair-minded documents ever crafted for self governance. And I believe, worthy of defending, regardless of any social labels ascribed. As a though exercise, I can't think of a better alternative for fairness principles. guiding our lives.

You're on the right path. Ask yourself this question, "When I wake up everyday and live my life and do my work, does what I do and how I live ever cause harm to others or even death to others?" If the answer is "NO", then you are on the right path in life. There are many very evil people in Washington DC who because of their desire for power and money have caused harm and death to millions of people. Mainly through wars and now through infectious diseases (the new realm of evil). Some are former and present Presidents of the United States. These are the people who are on the wrong path in life. They are evil and they will face a judgement. Maybe not in this life but judgement is assured.

Alleluia. Blessed are the "blameless" in the way Who walk in the law of the Lord. (Psalms 118:1).

It's very simple really, no one is perfect. We all have problems and faults but again, does what we do and how we live help or harm other people? The correct path is cause no harm to anyone. EVER.

The vast majority of people's everywhere in the world never hurt or harm anyone else in their entire lives. It's a goal. To reach that end and to have achieved that outcome would be the best accomplishment of life.

I too was strongly left leaning when I was younger and have been astonished at the change in tactics introduced by what can only be called far left activists into middle-of-the-road polemics. I find myself appreciating the openness of the right when it comes to free speech. Ironically, the right has taken on the banners that were the domain of the left in the 70s. It seems that becoming the entrenched power has not benefitted the left. Take our peaceful truckers protest last year. When the trade union movement did not support them I was flabbergasted. Now the traditional leftest party in Canada, the NDP, keeps a Liberal party in power that flouts its divisive and anti working class policies. And what happened to "My body my choice"?

There are basically two types of intellectuals, those who are engaged in serious intellectual work, and those who are not. Serious would mean those for whom real world consequences occur for mistakes. (The bridge that you designed either stays up, or collapses..) The non-serious intellectuals lack any such automatic correction to their ideas.

Excellent writing as always Dr Wolf. You tell it like it is. You are one of the few that can open your mind to opinions from both sides and this has been lost by so many. I think people need to let go of this absurd dedication to a political party and focus on morals and truth and the fight for what is right and what is wrong. We all need to stop being afraid of offending someone because of our beliefs. It's a tough line to tow and one must be very considerate with our speech when we convey our beliefs because we never want to belittle someone for their beliefs while explaining our own. Being accepting of one's choices with their own body and the life choices they make is imperative BUT we do not have to give up our own beliefs in doing that. As you say open discussion in a respectful calm way is the only way to reach a mutual ground where we can be able to work and live side by side. The powers that be do not want this! They want us divided as it gives them more power over us at is why they have promoted this one side fits all narrative. They attack anyone who will not bow down to their demands. It never became more clear what they are doing to this country when Covid hit. The media played a huge part in keeping all the information away from the public eye and promoting a fear like no other. I could go on and on but I think your article hear tells the whole story. What they did to you and Tucker Carlson and so many others is how they are destroying this great nation. To silence those who speak truth will bring this nation down. Keep fighting!! We will only survive because of courageous people like you and Tucker Carlson. I only wish more would have spoken out right away in 2020! I will never understand how so many journalists went along with this insanity! For a paycheck I presume. Maybe some actually believed the lies right from the start. I don't know. I for one never fell for it but Leftists may have broadened our collective minds beginning with the sexual revolution, but I do believe they are mainly responsible for the rot of our culture. This rot has allowed those elitists to take over what was left of our gov't and our institutions, etc. The Right has tried to stop the rot for decades....unsuccessfully! Now many on the right are also a part of the evilness. All we working stiffs can do now is cling to our religion and guns, I guess. 😊

Years ago I was on a gender equity commission for a local school district. It was an interesting group made up of female educators (would such a group now be deemed a hate group?) I attended an event hosted by a wealthy older woman for the group. She gleefully told how a 'civil liberties' group had successfully sued to overturn a uniform requirement in public schools in another district. At the time children were being shot for their coveted shoes and jackets. I was stunned. While I appreciate the constitutional issues of imposing uniforms in public schools, I fully appreciated that school officials and concerned parents were trying to keep their children alive. But the cackling of this woman made it clear that their desires were irrelevant. I then went to a symposium offered by a national women's group. It seemed hateful, and I was confused and saddened. Up until then, I had always affiliated with liberal causes but then was left questioning that loyalty and became independent. I absolutely appreciate that Dr. Wolf and Professor Miller acknowledge that they were wrong to demonize the other side, but my question is 'why did it take so long?'

I am no longer part of the Left tribe that that negatively labels people and evil just because I am told it is so. I am finding that being politically estranged is kind of a lonely place to inhabit, which is why I so appreciate your writing. I think it also has to do with the repugnancy of what's been presented as conservative values, which include sociopathic corporations that operate in a system that guarantees they will sell out humans, the environment, whatever for shareholder profits. When a person is negatively affected by and repulsed by the evils of one side, while being embraced by and supported by members of the other side, it can take a while to see that serious flaws exist, as well, on the side with which one has been aligned.

Dr Wolf, a scripture in the Prophets comes to mind:

Isaiah 59:

[14] Justice is turned back, and righteousness stands afar off;

for truth has fallen in the public squares, and uprightness cannot enter.

[15] Truth is lacking, and he who departs from evil makes himself a prey.

The LORD saw it, and it displeased him that there was no justice.

[16] He saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no one to intervene;

then his own arm brought him victory, and his righteousness upheld him.

The two lessons shown here is when wickedness becomes so embedded into the fabric of a city or a nation that once honored Him, 1. the righteous's voices are hunted down and crushed; 2. God is impassioned to act on behalf of His own righteous standards for government and or society that has corrupted itself. And as we know in the bible, the consequences are deadly...Sodom, the plagues on Egypt, the destruction of the temple in Jerusalem (twice) and exile of the Hebrews (twice).

Thank you for everything you do to speak truth in the public square.

Unfortunately true journalism is dead. My daughter graduated from college in 2020 (in our living room, because apparently walking across a stage, outside, would have been a death knell) with a double major in advertising and journalism. She frequently tells people that she's professionally trained to lie. Because that's how she viewed her education -- which is a very sad state for our college system.

Thank you for writing this. I read portions to my husband, who is not a Tucker fan and who went along with his liberal professor friend's snark about the firing (although he had the grace to back down when I called him on it). His friend is much like your former friends, vilifying Tucker not for what he actually says but simply for who he is.

I had to stop listening to the first clip you embedded: the host sets up the audience to hear a crazy person, then has to admit you "sound" reasonable (but for an unstated reason, are not), and then invites his sidekick to weigh in, whereupon we are treated to an incoherent jumble about slaves and people wearing the scarlet letter as, somehow, reasons why what you said wasn't worth paying attention to. There is only so much nonsense I can take.

I loved the way you described the (non)thinking of your former friends. You have a wonderful (and very amusing) way of getting to the heart of the matter.

And you're right about the (former) California mindset. I grew up there in the 50s, came of age there in the 60s, and lived there most of the subsequent years until moving to New York State in 1985. I remembered my shock when I heard University professors comment about so-and-so being a Jew (why, I thought, would you even mention that so gratuitously?) and my bemusement concerning the perceived importance of where you had gone to school. In California, such things didn't matter. You were accepted for the person you were, the person others saw and interacted with. No one made judgments about your background, or even cared about what it was, except in a friendly way. The playing field was level no matter what race you were. The people I knew were friendly and open to all. Living in that culture shaped me profoundly, and even though I have now lived on the East Coast for 38 years, I will always be a Californian.

A couple of years ago, a colleague of mine and I were talking about the change in California. (I am third generation.) He said, "Do you remember all the assholes in college who went to Wall Street afterward? They come here now." At the time, that did not make sense to me as Wall Street was synonymous with old school GOP, especially as I was looking at his comment from the perspective of a point in time (80s - 90s) But given what has happened with Big everything, it made me realize that it didn't matter which uniform they wore. Another outstanding masterpiece Naomi! It's interesting isn't it? I know of many folks, celebrities/journalists etc. who, once being wholly entrenched liberals have completely switched sides as it were. Some call it being red-pilled but that in my opinion denigrates the voyage they've taken from being staunch liberals to becoming 'conservative'. Thinking liberals like yourself have realized that actually, your liberal views have not changed. But your liberal views are no longer being expressed by those still on that side (Bill Maher has talked about this). In fact most of the ideals you hold to be important are being expressed by conservatives. Many of these conservative views relate to such 'traditionally liberal' (not really traditional actually) concepts such as freedom of speech, freedom of the press, the role of the press as being the bulwark against government overreach, as opposed to being stenographers for the government in power, medical autonomy and so on. And we see evidence everyday for this. Also we see those who oppose us coming up empty when actually challenged to provide any factual evidence as to why you are wrong, or why you should not have talked to Tucker! But you know what else I have observed, and I would eat my hat if proven wrong? I have NEVER seen a conservative minded person switch to the so called liberal side of things. Not one. Heaven bless you!!!!

Brilliant as usual, Naomi. Tucker is closer to the kind of liberal I was, as a teenager in the 1970s, volunteering with Mark Lanes' Citizens Committee of Inquiry, and proudly joining an ACLU that, at the time, was actually concerned about protecting civil liberties, than any "Woke" leftist today. He actually talked about civil liberties. And believes in free speech. And was consistently talking about how disastrous our interventionist, warmongering foreign policy is. The leading "liberals" of today, like Bernie Sanders, Elizabeth Warren, AOC, Keith Olbermann, Stephen Colbert, etc., all oppose free speech, and support war. They don't mention civil liberties, because they don't care about them. And they now love the CIA, the FBI, and our other intelligence agencies and "Woke" military industrial complex. Tucker was the only one on network television who opposed the tyranny and corruption that has all but destroyed this country. Thanks for summing things up perfectly!

Speaker McCarthy's decision to share evidence with Fox shows he is a liar---apparently. Imagine pulling this move in the Nixon era. "The decision to share the tapes of my conversations about Watergate proves the other side is lying." Such a statement would have been immediately dismissed as self-contradictory.

These people must have some deep understanding of psychology because such blatant self-contradiction should be immediately dismissed. That he can make it sound semi-coherent proves he has some deep mastery of rhetoric that is almost otherworldly. His repetition of the word lying seems especially unnatural. Does saying it twice make it somehow more true?

Schumer, why don't you release the footage to CNN and have them produce a rebuttal to Carlson, point by point? I know why. Because there is no rebuttal to be made---and the accusations of cherry picking, in fact, describe their initial presentation of the "facts."

Great article, though I cringe at the apparent dichotomy: "the post-Enlightenment metric of "is it true?" versus "a pre-rational metric of 'is this within our tribe and according to our rituals and our cult?'" The so-called "Enlightenment" was truly a darkening of the human intellect. Most people today don't believe (or consider whether) there is such a thing as (objective) truth, something that was believed and studied and praised before the "Enlightenment" led to the bloodbath of the French Revolution.

Also, I don't understand how someone who works so hard to warn women about the dangers of the vaccine to them and the babies in the womb can still talk about "reproductive rights." Why is baby murder okay when the mommy does it, but not when Big Pharma does (unless the murder is by an abortion drug?). At least have the honesty to say you're defending the (demonic) "right" to kill one's child in the womb.

Hi Kate. Thank you for pointing this out here. Abortion is indeed murder, and needs to be called that, not healthcare. However, I still don't want anyone telling me what I can do with my body (although suicide isn't usually illegal isn't it). It's time for us all to admit that this is the ultimate gray issue that even King Solomon couldn't resolve. My suggestion to the world is to come up with rational compromises like they did in Europe. Also, the issue is so different now that 1970. Birth control is readily available and very effective. We need to find out why our society has so many 'unwanted' pregnancies and do all we can to prevent them so as not to force this moral conundrum on both women and men.,

♡ LIKE (1) 💬 REPLY (2) ...

Unfortunately unwanted pregnancies happen even w contraception. Contraception that is mostly the woman's responsibility and any deleterious side effects from that also falls on the woman. Why is it that there have been no further contraceptive controls for men??? Yes, abortion is a terrible thing. Illegal abortions even worse. I personally believe it should be legal first trimester ONLY. That's plenty of time to make your decision. None, except in rare cases after that, and NO late term or live birth abortions ever.

♡ LIKE (1) 💬 REPLY ...

We have more abortions exactly because we have birth control. That makes people think it's okay to use the reproductive system for pleasure, and when they don't thwart the natural result, abortion is the back-up plan. And the fact that the inconvenient baby is in the womb doesn't make the murder moral.

You missed the point of her article. She is nostalgic for a time in America's history when there was a real left, not the hijacked "Washington Consensus" of the past 50 years. Neoliberalism, the fascist economic policy that began in the mid-70's, but really gained steam during the Reagan/Thatcher years, killed the momentum of the left.

Neoliberalism is/was all about privatization, which lies at the core of fascism. It's destroyed our once great middle class. Workers have no benefits today thanks to corporate totalitarianism. Libertarians brought us neoliberalism because they wanted ECONOMIC unfettered liberty for capital only. Union-busting, capital flight, wage stagnation, whittling away at our basic human rights... and now they're trying to lock in privatization with CBDCs. Money is a public utility. The creditor class (private banking industry) and transnationals want to reduce the world to serfdom.

After the social revolution of the 60's, when the Real Left was ending an illegal war, winning civil, labor, food/consumer safety, women's, environmental rights, Big Business rounded their wagons and began their war on the people, calling our demand for a quality standard of living an "excess of democracy".

Wall St took over public finance. (see: How the Trilateral Commission Drove a Bankers' Coup Across America) <https://strategic-culture.org/news/2019/08/12/how-the-trilateral-commission-drove-a-bankers-coup-across-america/>

No more FDR-style fiscal policy for public purpose, a necessity in creating a healthy, prosperous society. With the public sector in shambles due to deliberate underfunding, people were forced to live on credit cards and predatory loans. See: Life in a Creditocracy <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=W0WI7Avnhos>

The Alexandr Kerensky model comes to mind: high-minded (Utopian?) revolutionaries who in good faith believe that they're going to make a better (if not perfect) world. Who later find that they were "useful idiots" inadvertently serving the ends of true (Satanic) evil -- in that case, the Bolsheviks and Communism.

I say this not to convey self-righteousness directed at Ms. Wolfe. No, plaudits that she was true to her principles and is now speaking out against evil. We all have different backgrounds and personal histories: in achieving realization I came after many others, and before some.

Whenever it occurs for each of us, we must all welcome and embrace those who come after. They can be our most effective advocates, for they've lived both sides, and those not yet awakened are more likely to listen to them (David Horowitz comes to mind).

We are truly in period of profound spiritual warfare; the manifold forms of evil that are a marchin' on so many fronts s inexplicable but-for spiritual warfare in the Biblical sense. In this, it is a binary choice we each have to make. Meanwhile, the Great Deceiver is succeeding in keeping many from seeing this. But increasingly, many are "red pilling" and slipping through his grasp, and seeking redemption. We must not be self-righteous or prideful to them because we may have gotten here sooner, but embrace them, and recognize that they may have had greater obstacles to overcome to get to the ground we now share.

Well stated. People seem to prefer hanging on to their differences, their dislikes, even their hate, versus trying to reach across the (in most cases, imagined) chasms that have separated and polarized "us" to discover our common ground and to move together to address and support the resolution of the issues of our times, which are approaching freedom/slavery, life/death, and truth/propaganda -- and brother/sisterhood versus drones who simply spew the established rhetoric to try and sound politically correct for the transient time that whatever that is is vogue (always subject to revision and to a "new truth") that emerges not from facts, history or investigation, research and confirmation, but from carefully crafted and imposed messaging from outside "us" to further confuddle and divide and disarm "us" so we are more easily disadvantaged and made prey for those who seek not our liberty, but our harm and even our demise.

Readers here ought to read Brownstone. Ms Wolf's article was featured today. It was noted that her article was originally published on the author's Substack. After clicking on the button I read many of the comments. Brownstone founder Jeffrey Tucker is providing an important format for thoughtful insight into the concerns people are expressing in the comments.

Most of the comments here suggest a recent disillusionment. History suggests that every now and again events conspire to upset the prevailing beliefs. And that all moments of substantive recognition of events are preceded by a small number of heretics whom are reviled when they first emerge.

Maybe the people first disillusioned are reviled the most. No doubt because they are thought and judged to be traitors. But they were in a position to notice contradictions and hypocrisy whereas most people were not. But do not be too quick to judge. Five hundred and fifty years ago Gutenberg used movable type to make possible writings reflecting ideas the Church did not imagine existed. Or if they did, accepted there was no way these ideas could be inflamed. But the invention and use made of movable type encourage widespread writing and reading of heretical ideas. The Church could not burn thousands at the stake.

The Church was the establishment in 1450. By 1550 the emergence of ideas about the nature of the world and possibilities formerly unimagined began to overturn belief and prefigure the eventual emergence of behaviours the church formerly condemned.

But the inherent need for certainty and foundational belief did not disappear. The Christians religions gave rise to beliefs and strictures which worked within the bounds of those religions. Europe was largely Christian. Certain beliefs though make the believers vulnerable. When those beliefs are widespread they lead to automatic presumptions. Even a sense of

Thank you again, Naomi. I certainly resonate with your recognition of Tucker Carlson' qualities, openminded attitudes, and common sense values. Recognition of who he is as a man, a person, an american. I, being a French living man from up North (Québec), can easily state that most or at least many of his offerings (the people he invited, his monologues, his questions and responses) were confirming to me and contributed in my feeling less alone with these unwelcome perspectives. The censorship, as you can imagine, is also alive and well both in Canada and the Povince of Québec. Once upon a time, Canada was a Democracy. Though imperfect in many ways as are all Democracies, obviously, the core of the democratic apple, so to speak, was healthy and strong. Now this core is rotten. Many on different fronts are working tirelessly to save what is left in the hope of healing this rotten core. It takes courage, clarity of mind and heart, discernment about who to trust, and an irrepressible love of truth. Thank you so...

So true that we learn from perspectives, a pure process of observing and proving or disproving principles (physical, metaphysical, emotional, spiritual, moral, ethical, et al) that promote survival and procreation in life-giving and liberty-friendly ways, pronouncing and implementing these. What a profound piece of writing! Read it yesterday and I am still pondering the anecdotes and observations. As a Christ follower, I attend worship with others throughout the week. Today we read and discussed the passage in the Gospel of John where Christ is being interrogated by Pilate, who asks, "What is truth?" That is the question, Dr. Naomi, that you and other likeminded individuals, regardless of political bent, have been wise enough to stop and ask with regard to the vaccine, the virus, our government's response to it, our freedoms during and now after the pandemic, and so on. And you CARE about the answers. The answers will change our lives. As in the day of the earthly ministry of Jesus, however, there are those surrounding us who are only interested in the power and the money associated with the situation, which you have quite clearly identified. I for one would greatly appreciate if you would continue to write about the truth.

Why is no one talking about this? Free speech is being attacked in Florida, Minnesota, Washington state. Maybe it's a good time to repost your article Fascist America, in 10 easy steps: <https://www.theguardian.com/world/2007/apr/24/usa.comment>

Minnesota:

"Minnesota Is Set To Pass A Bill That Will Create A Database To Track Speech Deemed "Hateful" And "Biased""

<https://winepressnews.com/2023/04/27/minnesota-is-set-to-pass-a-bill-that-will-create-a-database-to-track-speech-deemed-hateful-and-biased/>

Florida:

Anti-semitic speech is now illegal in FL. DeSantis signed the bill into law while in Israel. This opens the door to other speech crimes. ADL definition of "anti-semitism" is very broad. It includes talking about "driving out globalists"...etc.

<https://twitter.com/GovRonDeSantis/status/1652002360657424391>

<https://www.infowars.com/posts/florida-senate-passes-harshest-hate-crime-bill-in-america-to-combat-anti-semitism/>

ADL: <https://twitter.com/ADL/status/1633188817598398464>

Former President Trump also delivered remarks that were in character but still dangerous. His claims about expelling warmongers, driving out globalists, casting out communists, and throwing off those who hate our country echo classic #antisemitic rhetoric.

Washington state:

Not sure on the current status of this but it might soon be/or it already is illegal to have "extremist views". You can not question these things and if you do you are a white supremacist and domestic extremist or terrorist :

Election Fraud, Masks and Vaccines, Critical Race Theory, School Boards / Curriculum, or Gender Ideology

We can have it "both ways". It is called "critical thinking".

Which is why Tucker invited Naomi Wolf, Jimmy Dore, Glenn Greenwald, Aaron Mate, Max Blumenthal and others from "The Left" on his show. Truth tellers like Lt. Col. Douglas MacGregor to speak about what is really happening in Ukraine.

People who watched Tucker every night and since his being taken off the airwaves are boycotting FOX, are trying to figure out the real reason for his being "let go" (Megan Kelly says he was not fired and if they pay out his contract he can be censored until the end of 2024).

I don't think it was January 6th. Probably the RFK interview about Covid and vaccines, considering big Pharma holds around 70% of the advertising on FOX.

Probably him laughing at Zelensky and his grift didn't help.

Since he was censored last Monday my TV has gone dark (except for my granddaughter watching "Bluey").

The powerful ones behind the scenes are who is in charge as the guy Wolfe at the end explained. I did not however, know that Zelensky had a law background. I try to go as deep as understanding a situation but then it just becomes too depressing as this is. Why doesn't Putin just destroy them already? The other deeply disturbing part was Dupont, Monsanto and Cargill buying all the farmland. I saw a video not too long ago of AZOV Nazis torturing prisoners. Now I'm not particularly squeamish but I had to turn it off. There aren't even words anymore.

I totally get what you express and are saying. We Will Win! Even if they take out 1/2 of us, We Will Win, of that I am 100% sure. imho, Putin is keeping the conflict going (yes i agree with you) b/c he chooses to Only escalate conventional warfare as absolutely necessary to prevail, AND during the process, BRICS is picking up steam to rid member states of U.S. / U.K domination - and it's working, and I support BRICS, b/c in the long run, U.S. must get our house in order and there is no point in slowing down BRICS for our selfish reasons implemented by CIA in overseas operations for our domination of sovereign countries. U.S. is <5% of world population having controlled global economies since end of WWII - (First), that cannot last; (Second) nor should it. It is time to pull in our horns, let others work out their differences and build strong economic ties to each other whilst we save our Republic. To me, it's that simple. We have plenty of domestic enemies of the Constitution to put into the frying pan - we do not need to make more enemies abroad...Not today, and hopefully, not ever again.

I hope this isn't a spoiler, but there's an audience questioner at an hour and 2 minutes in who asks "Could we say, rather worryingly, that we're living in a world where the very reasons for doubting are doubted, and there is this crusade for certitude?" to which the first word of McGilchrist's reply is "Absolutely"

I watched it on YouTube this morning, Jill, and I know I'll have to watch it again, because I kept reaching for my note pad to write down something he'd just said. Probably I should have just watched it straight through first time around, but instead I like to write down things that resonate with me as soon as I hear them - as if they're going to disappear unless I record them at the time.

Anyway, I think that the idea that an entirely Left-brained analysis can't possibly produce a Whole-brain conclusion is fascinating in that it's itself an idea that cannot be produced by a Left-brained analysis. I've previously had similar thoughts about Daniel Kahnemann's Slow/Fast Thinking, and Edward de Bono's Lateral Thinking - that sometimes the "right" answer can't possibly be reached by orthodox methods, that it isn't just that unorthodox methods are quicker or more understandable, it's that they are essential to get to the end-point at all.

This party knows what's best for the world and anybody that doesn't agree must be crushed. That was true in your utopia just as it is true now.

You wonder what changed, where has utopia gone. It's gone public, it's now openly Marxist not only in its thinking but in its actions. Why did they all come out of the closet? The question isn't why but how. DJT opened the closet door and the filth tried to recoil into the safety and darkness of a corner in the closet. DJT then turned on the light and the bats from hell came shrieking out. They attacked anyone, any thinking that was a threat to their demonic wishes.

Yes. It has been a blessing for me to talk with my sister who fell into that briefly, then climate issues that have likewise been hijacked. She quickly saw the ideological manipulation and indoctrination that was happening.

I was introduced to the importance of balancing the male/female masculine/feminine 'energies' from a young age through Jung and his students. It has informed my perception of 'things'.

It seems to me that one of the key draws to these ideologies, perhaps even all ideologies, is that they are a great escape clause from fully growing up in the individuation sense. because they encourage the lazy actions of 'blame and

If all that is unquestionably wrong, then I am unquestionably right, and in that way I am absolved from being personally responsible to see, let alone heal, my own shadow. (In some places, the feminazis have 'cancelled' me because I mention Jung or other 'male' writers.)

Now that the bloated tick of financialization is imploding (see: <https://www.ineteconomics.org/perspectives/blog/the-end-of-financialization>), might we finally get back to intelligent government again and focus on the real (productive) economy? We have 40+ years of structural neglect and eroding public purpose to rectify.

FDR's Employment and Wage Strategy Worked

"This all changed under FDR. The key to evaluating Roosevelt's performance in combating the Depression is the statistical treatment of many millions of unemployed engaged in his massive workfare programs. The government hired about 60 per cent of the unemployed in public works and conservation projects that planted a billion trees, saved the whooping crane, modernized rural America, and built such diverse projects as the Cathedral of Learning in Pittsburgh, the Montana state capitol, much of the Chicago lakefront, New York's Lincoln Tunnel and Triborough Bridge complex, the Tennessee Valley Authority and the aircraft carriers Enterprise and Yorktown.

It also built or renovated 2,500 hospitals, 45,000 schools, 13,000 parks and playgrounds, 7,800 bridges, 700,000 miles of roads, and a thousand airfields. And it employed 50,000 teachers, rebuilt the country's entire rural school system, and hired 3,000 writers, musicians, sculptors and painters, including Willem de Kooning and Jackson Pollock. So much for the notion that government jobs are not "real jobs", as we hear persistently from critics of the New Deal!"

Madam, may God bless you for the courage to speak the truth, and to hold truth above the seduction of what amounts to "peer pressure" (there's a term from the 1970s). Many people feel the need to "belong" so deeply that they will disavow readily apparent evidence, in favor of the temporary pull of "belonging" that blind adherence might provide. When you describe your being politically abandoned you actually are describing the hijacking of one sector of Western political thought, by the poison of Communism. Communism has been insinuated into our society, for the past 80 yrs. And those who injected it into our society did so with the intent of destabilizing the free West, in favor of their totalitarianism. I have some experience with this topic having exposure to Soviet defectors and multiple confrontations with Chinese Communist industrial espionage. The admissions and evidence I've seen, from each group, confirm they each plotted de-stabilization of the West, via utilization of disaffected under-classes; impressionable youth; amoral persons ripe for corruption; and other useful idiots. They have succeeded in converting what you describe as "liberals" encompassing those in academia, journalism, and other walks of life prone to statism. They also have successfully targeted amoral capitalists. We are paying a dear price for that surrender now. But, I am heartened when people like you overcome the terrible peer pressure which clouds clear-thinking in many. Keep up the good work.

Dr. Naomi,

While we would also be considered different sides of the spectrum, I have read with extreme appreciation and support your vital missives warning of the real and present dangers and harm of the experimental mRNA gene therapy for Covid (as established by the over 17,000 signatory doctors, virologists, medical scientists, etc. – including Dr. Robert Malone, inventor of the mRNA technology – in the carefully unreported and suppressed Physicians Declaration Global Covid Summit in Rome during the pandemic) – and particularly as regards women and what you were early-on warning of in terms of the very real and documented damage and harm to them reproductively

(And, I know you know why they actually even changed the definition of “vaccine”. The manifest aspects of the Great Scandal are continuing, and will, come to light.)

This essay is deeply profound in the truths you layout in the process of emphasizing that what matters above all is the Truth itself. And, in times past, was the unifying link even between different political stances. You made me think of those two great icons, Ruth Bader Ginsberg and Antonin Scalia who were very close and dear friends.

While I shook my head at the reaction to all those in your sphere and the sophomoric, immature reactions, I also realize it is within the frame of the real issue today not being any vague “threat to democracy” (mindlessly parroted and vacuous explanation when queried as to specifics) but rather is a very real and concerning National Psychosis.

But just wanted to let you know, from afar you have a new and very appreciative friend and supporter and greatly look forward to more of your distinctive voice. This national mental health issue will pass and transmute as only the Truth prevails and is eternal. And, for you and Mr. Carlson, you both are at the vanguard of the inevitable transition.

Arthur Schopenhauer nailed it.

“All truth passes through three stages. First, it is ridiculed. Second, it is violently opposed. Third, it is accepted as being self-evident.”

Blessings.

Thank you, Richard.

I regard the u s constitution as being like a condom in that it provides a sense of security to folks whilst other folks interact with them.

Lysander Spoon's essays and Gary North's essays about the u s constitution influenced me to regard it as I do.

I still appreciate your comments.

There is nothing more beautiful than the light that America - as designed by our founding fathers in our founding documents - can embody for humanity. NOW is our moment when we are uniquely positioned to answer the 'Are You Sure's' for our entire species and our future.

'Are We Sure' we are ready to drop the need to be ruled by parents, be they benevolent or tyrants, political or corporate?

'Are We Sure' we we can take the reins of responsibility that are the only insurance policy of freedom?

'Are We Sure' that, like adults, we can learn to live together in mutual cooperation and respect; bearing and sharing the weight of self governance by the people and for the people?

'Are We Sure' we have matured enough to be exceptional because of our real actions, not just our words now so easily cheapened by the deception of distance, the trickery of pixels and light rather than the eye to eye, hand to hand assessment of truth?

'Are We Sure' we are ready to move beyond the old programming of thousands of generations who have grown, fought, died and given their all to reach and stretch for the opportunity to be free from the old patterns, because they believed we have hearts and minds good enough to care for ourselves and our home?

Are We Ready to recognize the challenges of the moment, the challenges to the very foundations of our nation, as opportunity to say 'YES' We Are Sure!?

Only a blink of cosmic time has passed since the words of promise in our founding documents were birthed on a continent of great bounty and opportunity to make the words real. What incredible Divine hope is entrusted to us to fulfill. It is up to us to make good on the promise.

Lovely Naomi. We've outlived our time. Tucker is the champion of a passing era. America will be scourged. Brutally. Prophets like Farrakhan will be proven right. The sin of the greed and opportunism of the Second Wave feminists, your contemporaries, are being visited on the fourth generation, women collegiate athletes whom feminists have betrayed. Recall Joni Mitchell one of our generational icons: "We're captives on the carousel of time. We can't return, we can only look behind from where we came..." You've done yeoman service. Be proud and grieve.

Thank you so much for these views. I only regret that your fine thoughts and insights about the way especially women and babies have fared and still do with regards to the injections, were not better received. It is really horrible to take part of what you describe as a new wall and a stupid, one-minded one at that, totally unreasonable and without any logic thinking. I so recognize this from my own country Sweden and I certainly wonder how this phenomenon could emerge so all of a sudden. Before there was the seventies and feminism and flower power actually, and out of that as a backlash if ever one, came the stone walling and cancelling we all know so well. Pity! Pity I must say, and disastrous as you describe it...

As I begin reading the website, why oh why do you conflate "democracy" with "Constitutional Republic"? The Founding Fathers studied "democracy" and specifically rejected it!

Well, at least you do have the decency to admit your ignorance.

But the question does remain. Tucker is not ignorant and he is widely considered to be an all around good guy. But when the nazi , excuse me, commie tanks invade a neighboring sovereign country, he inexplicably backs the sociopath held of the KGB.

I think Tucker Carlson is a chauvinist. I think his attack of Canadian men for "not keeping their wummin in line!" as he blames women's equality for what he calls "male feminization" is ludicrous.

The Canadian men and women are wonderful. The male Canadian Truckers were neighborly, peaceful, friendly, inspiring: masculine.

Tucker mocked them saying that Canadian men now take their wife's names, and men not keeping women in their places is the cause of the WEF rising and Trudeau's tyranny.

Tucker went on and on blaming women with self-respect and equal rights for all planetary crisis.

And put the cherry on top saying women have different, inexplicable, and initially defined "crazy" brains.

So Tucker Carlson is a misogynist chauvinist PIG.

He insults both men and women with his woman and man degrading tripe.

The Canadian Trucker Movement was the most inspiring protest season and movement of a century.

Those Canadian people hold my deep respect.

But as far as appearing on the Tucker Carlson show, why not?

A person with a message speaks where given opportunity.

The left ought to be sorry they made no space for you.

The shifts in pre-coverture law overthrow; and pre-Enlightenment do not portend progress on the right or left.

Speakers like you aim to keep us from backsliding into the Dark Ages (a technocrat Dark Ages these days).

And for that, the truly enlightened should be grateful.

Thank you for all you do!

First of all, Thank you for standing in the breach and your commitment to truth.

Shamefully it seems the Biden Administration treats foreign affairs in the same manner.

But after the weaponization of the dollar and CIA operations why would anyone want to talk with the U. S.

"This world is an uncertain realm, filled with danger. Honor undermined by the pursuit of power. Freedom sacrificed, when the weak or oppressed by the evil but they are those who oppose such forces to dedicate their lives to truth, honor and freedom"

oppose such forces to dedicate their lives to truth, honor and freedom

Thank You for writing this. It continues to amaze me that the prog propaganda machine castigates SO MANY with the "kryptonite" label and they abide by it. NOBODY is taking truth to power on televised media any longer. Tucker was it, nobody else will spend more than 20 seconds castigating anyone for the copious failures of Afghanistan, Covid, the election, Hunter and the Big guy, the trans craze, and many other stories. Tucker was that canary in the coal mine. And the gasbags gaslighting got him.
