

Why No One's Going to Jail for the COVID Vax...

TURFSEER MAR 29 18 13 7

The trials were rigged, the regulators complicit, and the laws built to protect them — and that’s exactly how they got away with it.

You’re implying that the trial designs were set up to measure irrelevant endpoints (I agree) but you imply (through omission) that there are no issues with the way they were conducted, which is wrong.

There is in fact much evidence of serious wrongdoing in relation to trial monitoring, data collection, analysis and reporting.

Whilst these are potential vulnerabilities for legal action, it seems to me that such actions are almost certainly doomed to fail.

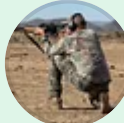

So far, the current US Administration looks like it's merely a changing of the guard in a Uniparty operation which involved approving and rolling these products out with essentially no regulatory oversight.

I'm not sure how much longer I'm prepared to give the RfK savior narrative (though he IS signaling that he's prepared to tackle some problems.)

I'm horrified that official US Gov agency guidance is still to inject babies (and others for that matter) multiply with these products.

It was a DOD op. They controlled it exactly the way they wanted. No one will prosecute our own military.

Absolutely agree — and thanks for pointing that out. You're right to flag that my focus was on the design of the trials, not the execution, which, as you note, was riddled with even deeper problems: poor monitoring, sloppy data collection, manipulated analysis, and fraudulent reporting. Brook Jackson's whistleblower case alone makes that painfully clear.

So yes — these aren’t just scientific oversights, they’re potential crimes. But as you say, the legal deck is stacked. Between the PREP Act, regulatory capture, and the revolving door between pharma and government, the courtroom isn’t just uphill — it’s booby-trapped.

As for RfK Jr., I'm with you on the cautious optimism. He’s talking the talk, but whether he’s willing (or able) to walk the walk in a system this entrenched remains to be seen. The fact that federal agencies are still pushing these shots on babies tells us everything about how little has changed.

Bottom line: The narrative may be fraying, but the machine's still running — and it’s going to take a lot more than symbolic gestures to bring it down.

I don't believe it was a planned genocide--at least among the vast majority of Covioits.

Regarding #3. "This isn’t just a defense — it's a fortress. Unless you catch them on camera saying, “Let’s run fake trials and poison the peasants,” they walk."

Several of these players have come pretty darn close to crossing this line. Bill Gates? Isn't he on record for his stance on de-populating the planet? Wasn't he was kicked out of India for admitting to using the children of India as a grand inoculation experiment - with disastrous results?

And Regarding your answer to the question: Why no prosecution?

Your answer: They don't have to.

You must add: They don't WANT to.

Laws must change.

The US ranks number 31 for mean IQ in cross-national comparisons so the gullible public are easily fooled. The American IQ deficit is compensated for by psychopathy and most of the psychopaths, per capita, are in Washington DC. So they can commit democide and get away with it. The Communists in China and North Korea with their vastly superior IQs saw right through the American bullshit and told the US to stick its vaccines where the sun don't shine. They don't have to worry about anyone going to jail
