

Video: The Vaccine Is More Dangerous Than COVID-19

A stunning video featuring American cardiologist Dr. Peter McCullough asks the question: Why are we vaccinating people against COVID-19 – particularly when we have adequate, safe, available treatments for the infection?

Selected excerpts from the 28-minute video interview with McCullough include graphics showing vaccination numbers and how deaths spiked in several different countries after the COVID-19 vaccination program began in each country.

Specifically, a study published in September 2021 shows there are five times the number of deaths attributable to each inoculation versus those attributable to COVID-19 in the most vulnerable 65 and plus demographic. If that's not enough to wave red flags over the continuation of this vaccination program, there are plenty more points highlighted in the interview.

"I'm a doctor. I'm an internist and cardiologist," McCullough says. "I've had a woman die of the COVID-19 vaccine ... She developed blood clots throughout her body. She required hospitalization. She required intravenous blood thinners. She was ravaged. She had neurologic damage." The woman went home using a walker and taking blood thinners, but a month later she was dead.

McCullough had another fully vaccinated patient who received the booster shot – and still got COVID. The film also points out that CDC and FDA are running the program with no transparency, with no safety monitoring board – usually a part of every vaccine program – and no human ethics committee.

"To this day, the patients who get hospitalized are largely those who receive no early care at home," McCullough says. "They're either denied care or they don't know about it, and they end up dying. The vast majority of people who die, die in the hospital, they don't die at home. And the reason they end up in the hospital, it's typically two weeks of lack of treatment, and you can't let a fatal illness brew for two weeks at home with no treatment, and then start treatment very late in the hospital. It's not going to work."

A huge sticking point is that there are effective, readily available, approved treatments for COVID-19 that health leaders are largely ignoring, such as monoclonal antibody infusions, that can prevent hospitalizations. "This is not renegade medicine," McCullough says. "This is what patients should have. This is the correct thing."

1. Viruses don't exist, only dead cell fragments that the body gets rid of have been named as such. Due to the infinite range of "variants," it would be quite a feat to "isolate" ANY of them. It would be a good exercise to check the financing of the labs where "viruses" have been "isolated." I personally don't care, because the answer is so obvious.

2. By "isolation," researchers mean that they place a sample of a "patient's goodness-knows-what" (considered the "source" of the "virus" without any evidence) into a brew, add chemicals and live cells to it, and upon the live cell's dying, they triumphantly declare that it was the "virus" that killed them, although toxic chemicals and/or deprivation from nutrients (both are the case most of the time) would alone do the job. 3. Nobody can "sequence" something that is not pure. Conjecturing by deduction is a far cry from "isolation." www.westonaprice.org/.../covid-there-is-no-virus ~ thefreedomarticles.com/official-narrative-fake-covid-vaccine-gives-you-fake-covid-immunity

CocoaCin: Thank you, corrected. Also, some links don't open in the most-commonly-used browsers.

I think the elimination of refined carbohydrates from the diet and maybe taking some D3 is a safer strategy than taking the clot-shots.

I don't think your graphs are reliable. You can't attribute the increase in deaths solely to vaccines. Pandemics usually have 3 waves. The increases you show in your graphs I believe are because (a) viruses usually have 3 waves in a pandemic (b) very small increase in death from the vaccine AND (c) many people becoming generally less healthy due to sanitizing, mask wearing and isolating. I have to believe & hope that the virus will start to disappear around Feb 2022 for most countries and as late as Sept 2022 for countries that did not really start to have problems until Sept 2021.

There is no virus to "disappear"; although, I can guarantee you that this global PsyOps will continue through next year.

Another aspect that needs to be addressed is the other substances that they introduce with the GT injections
